Chamber Comments

By GEORGE CALLISON
Assistant Manager
Chamber of Commerce

Through the good offices of Herald and News publisher Frank Jenkins this Sunday sees the start of a weekly chamber of commerce news column. . . a chronicle of some of the day-to-day happenings that go to make up the work of a chamber of commerce.

Off the presses a mimeograph machine, really! This week came 600 copies of a new booklet designed to help our Klamath citizens who will be first to greet Centennial tourists.

Included in the 18-page booklet are maps, highways, tourist accommodations, roadside picnic and camping information, sight-seeing suggestions and, perhaps most important of all, answers to typical tourist questions.

The booklets, as I mentioned, will go to the people who are usually first to meet the tourists—the waitresses and the gasoline station attendants. . . Plans now call for a series of meetings with the waitresses and gas station operators to go over the booklet with them and, as a brief refresher course on the wonders of the Klamath country, a private showing of the chamber's highly successful television film—"Wish You Were Here."

There are many ways of spreading the good word about Klamath County and Oregon. One of the most unusual methods came to the chamber's attention this week through Mrs. Helen Lee, who divides her time among the activities of being a wife and mother, a nurse and a "ham" operator. . . it was as the latter recently that Mrs. Lee was trying to contact her son, who is stationed with the Army at El Paso, Texas, when instead she found herself talking with Harold Wolfe, a radio operator aboard a ship of the west coast of Mexico. Wolfe, who apparently spends his off-duty hours in the "ham shack," told Mrs. Lee his ship was en route to New York from Hong Kong via the Panama Canal. . . that he sometimes gets into port at Portland. . . that Oregon is his favorite state and that he never misses an opportunity to tell his "ham" friends all over the world about the Beaver State.

Chamber manager, R. Frank Tucker, wrote to world-traveling "ham" operator Wolfe, acknowledging his unique method of spreading the word about Oregon, and enclosing a copy of the Klamath County chamber's new, full-color folder. A copy of the letter went to Gov. Mark Hatfield.

Incidentally, Mrs. Lee tells me that Oregon's "hams" are doing their part to advertise the Centennial. All "hams" exchange cards to verify their contacts, and the cards Oregon "hams" are sending out this year are special ones, imprinted with a Centennial message. . . Also, any "ham" outside the state who "works" 100 Oregon "hams" during 1959 will be given ka-Arcata airport station. . . Keeton has had more than eight years' airline experience including ticket agent, supervisor ticket counter and operations and as special representative to the president of a major regional airline. . . announcement was made by R. C. Withers, passenger service manager. . . Medford is at present the most northerly terminal of Pacific Air Lines and originates two flights daily serving the Sacramento Valley and San Francisco with connecting flights to Los Angeles and Las Vegas.

alluring promotional folder." It bought 250 copies "to distribute among a select group of advertising customer contacts throughout the country." As an advertising department executive of the paper firm explained in a letter accompanying the order, "You may rest assured the copies of the folder will serve a real useful purpose for us in this way. At the same time, we'll try as far as possible to spot the items around in a manner beneficial to your interests as well." The Klamath story does have ways of getting around.
