

NEW OWNER of the Montague Drive-In Market is George Wacker of Yreka. The market had its grand opening last weekend. Wacker, who assumed ownership of the Montague market early this year, also manages Wacker's, a grocery store in Yreka. The letter has been in continuous operation since August 1919, when it was first established by his father, Mike Wacker. Art Halterman, butcher at the Montague Drive-In, is at the left and George Wacker, the right. — Photo by Betty Dow

$300,000 Fire

Continued from Page 1
return to their stations at 2:11 p.m.
Two firemen were injured, neither seriously, by flying glass and falling debris. Lawrence Mitchell of the Klamath Falls department was struck by a ventilating hood that fell from its position over a cooking range in the cafe. He was felled, unconscious, but revived soon and continued to fight fire. Raymond Meininger, a volunteer on the Suburban department, received a cut hand from a glass splinter sent flying by one of the numerous small explosions as fire swept glass-packaged merchandise in the drug store.
Firemen were endangered constantly by long banks of fluorescent lights which crashed to the floor unpredictably during the attic fire.
Chief Roy Rowe of the city department spent most of this morning poking through the ruins to discover the fire's cause. He said preliminary investigation led him to believe the fire started in the dishwashing compartment in the rear of the cafe where electrical circuits were concentrated.
Fire apparently took hold on a wooden metal wall and burned quickly into the attic.
The cafe and drug store both were lodged in the Maguire Estate Building. Adjacent stores may have received some smoke damage. Chief Rowe said he would investigate today.
He said he was pleased with the performance of a new fire engine recently purchased by the city. The big pumper powered four high pressure hose lines with a huge pumping capacity for a long period of time.
Rowe said he is unsure how many men responded to the fire or how many feet of hose were used. Water was pumped from five hydrants. Hose probably measured from a half-mile to a mile in length.

Once-Powerful Coalition Has Lost Its Potency

WASHINGTON (AP) — The once-powerful House coalition of Republicans and Southern Democrats has lost its potency as a positive legislative force.
But it still packs a punch in a negative sort of way in that it can sustain a veto of legislation it can't stop outright.
The coalition came apart on the key voting last week when the House passed a general housing bill. Fewer than half the 100-odd Southern Democrats joined Republicans in an unsuccessful fight to tone down the measure and then kill it.
But the 45 Democrats and 115 Republicans who voted against the bill constituted more than enough to uphold an expected veto, on which a two-thirds vote would be needed for passage.
Leaders of the coalition have various explanations for their loss of strength.
In the first place, there are fewer Republicans in the House than in past years when the coalition ruled the roost. The GOP membership, including vacancies, is 153. A majority of the House is 219, which means that if all the Republicans vote together, they must pick up 66 Democratic votes to call the shots.
But the Republicans no longer are the cohesive force they used to be. On the final housing bill vote, 33 Republicans voted with the majority of the Democrats. On an earlier vote this year, six Republicans voted to override the President's veto of a rural electrification bill.
Lack of unity among the Southern Democrats is attributed by some coalition leaders to the growth of urban areas in the South. There are more "city members" in the South than in past years and bills dealing with such subjects as housing, airport development and public works have a strong appeal to them.
Southerners also have a deep interest in legislation dealing with the Tennessee Valley Authority and some aspects of the farm program. They need the votes of big city Democrats from time to time and find it advantageous to do a little trading with the Northerners.
Perhaps the dominant factor in breaking the rule of the coalition has been the ability of the Democratic leadership in the House to keep its members on the floor.
There are 383 Democrats in the House this year, including one vacancy, and they have been conspicuous by their regular attendance. On two votes this session, all but four of the Democrats were recorded.
With that kind of party discipline, the coalition doesn't have a chance. It is simply outnumbered.

MILLER BROWN of Montague

SISKIYOU Sketchbook

By BETTY DOW
MONTAGUE — Miller Brown of Montague, who observed his 80th birthday on May 23, is still the ardent horseman that he has been all of his life. He rides daily either of his two horses, Tony, a black thoroughbred, or Red Concho, a registered quarterhorse. He is still actively interested in his favorite

In The Day's News

Continued from Page 1
was a private specialist in international law—an experience that added immensely to his diplomatic skill and increased greatly his effectiveness when he became America's foreign minister at the most critical period of America's history.
He drove himself relentlessly clear to the end. Still in harness, he knew the end was near—and he instructed his assistants carefully as to what they were to do if he were stricken on the job. He looked death in the eye as fearlessly as he has looked America's enemies in the eye.
His life and his total dedication are an inspiration to all of us.

One more word from President Eisenhower: "Because he believed in the dignity of men and in their brotherhood under God, John Foster Dulles was an ardent supporter of men's deepest hopes and aspirations."
That is to say: He was a practicing Christian.
So—
I think—
We may be certain that in the Final Judgment the verdict of the Highest Court was this:
"Well done, thou good and faithful servant."

Wheat Limit Bill Killed

WASHINGTON (AP) — The wheat growing restriction that irked Michigan farmer Stanley Yankus into moving to Australia has been plowed under in a Senate vote.
The law put a limit of 30 acres, outside general wheat acreage allotments, that a farmer could plant in wheat to use on his own farm for seed or feed.
If a farmer plants more, he is subject to penalties. Yankus was fined $5,070 for growing too much wheat to feed his chickens. Last Monday he sailed from San Francisco to make a new life in Australia, far from U.S. government restrictions.
In debating its wheat bill Friday, the Senate by voice vote approved an amendment eliminating the 30-acre limitation. It was offered by Sen. Philip A. Hart (R-Mich.), who mentioned the Yankus case.
Sen. Everett M. Dirksen (R-Ill.) told the Senate Secretary of Agriculture Ezra Taft Benson favored ending the restriction. A number of awkward cases had arisen, Dirksen said, including the prosecution of a monastery that grew and milled its own wheat.
The Senate wheat bill now goes to the House.

Compromise Water Plan Facing Legislative Test

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Gov. Edmund G. Brown's compromise plan for ending a five-year north-south deadlock on water faced a new test today.
The Senate Finance Committee meets to take up SB1106 by Sen. Hugh Burns (D-Fresno), the governor's amended bill to put the state in the water business.
At least one series of amendments was to be offered to the measure either in the Finance Committee or on the Senate floor. The changes are designed to further protect water users in the San Joaquin-Sacramento Delta area and are backed by Sen. George Miller Jr. (D-Martinez).
Although the bill has been amended several times by northern senators, it still is "an excellent bill" in the opinion of Brown. While southerners generally have been silent on the measure, it is believed they will vote for it if no further changes are made.
In its present form, the bill calls for a $1,750,000,000 bond issue to finance the Feather River Project and other water developments. It protects the south by providing that water contracts to import northern water may not be changed for as long as the bonds

Change Of Garb Requested For Emissaries To Africa

WASHINGTON (AP) — Cut the striped pants down to walking shorts. Hang up the morning coat. The State Department is sending diplomats out into the bush.
This is one of the things the wave of independent movements across Africa has done to diplomacy. Joseph C. Satterthwaite, assistant secretary of state for African affairs, told a house appropriations subcommittee about the plans.
"Many of these posts," he said, "are in areas where travel is very difficult. We are going to request authorization to purchase a number of heavy-duty cross-country vehicles to use in 13 posts."
"We hope these will make it possible for our officers to visit certain posts where, at the moment they can travel only with great difficulty and where, if they do travel, they have to stay as guests of the local leaders."
If they have these vehicles they can be self-sufficient and spend the night in the trucks. We attach great importance to this," the department is asking for 26 vehicles. Each of the wheeled diplomatic outposts will have a truck to follow it, in case of breakdowns. This is no idle worry, since the vehicles are intended to go "where there are only trails and primitive roads."
The main, sleeping-quarters trucks, costing $5,650 each, 10-h.p. factory, would be four-wheel drive types, reinforced for bucking across country and ploughing through sand. They would have heavy-duty springs, super shock absorbers, special ply tires, extra fuel tanks and carrying space on the roof for additional gear. The cast covers folding hucks, table, hot plate, refrigerator and portable generator.
As an example of the kind of territory which foreign service representatives in Africa now will be expected to cover, Satterthwaite cited the region around

Change Of Garb Requested For Emissaries To Africa

Jimma, a center of the Ethiopian coffee planting region.
Places in Africa where the United States now is or soon will be represented by foreign service officers include Mogadishu, Somalia; Yaounde, Cameroun; Abidjan, Ivory Coast; Kampala, Uganda, British East Africa; Brazzaville, French Equatorial Africa; Conakry, Guinea; Kaduna, Northern Nigeria; Lome, Togo.

Cobra Man Death Noted

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The man who startled San Francisco last March with a report that a 12-foot King Cobra was missing from his parked truck in the city was reported dead Saturday.
This was the first news of Scott Lamb, an exhibit operator since the incident, which he reported and then continued on to Grants Pass, Ore., to deliver some snakes to a reptile farm.
When Police Chief Thomas Cahill wrote Lamb's Morgan Hill, Calif., establishment asking him to telephone, a reply penciled on the letter came:
"Mr. Lamb passed away May 12th so I guess you can close the case now. It happened in Arizona (signed) Mrs. Lamb."

Three Perish In Accidents

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Two persons drowned in Oregon Sunday. Three others were pulled from the water unconscious but survived by a whisper.
A traffic accident also claimed a life Sunday.
Mrs. Harold Sicksels, 39, Eugene, perished in a head-on collision near Tangent.
Water claimed two victims near Albany.
Rhoda Mark, 6, was drowned when she tumbled into a canal that supplies the city's water.

Traveling Tutor To Visit Siskiyou

McCLOUD — Through arrangements with the State Department of Education and financing by the Siskiyou County Board of Education, a "traveling science teacher" will be available to Siskiyou high schools for six days during 1959-60. This teacher has been selected from the ranks of California science teachers. He will be sent for summer training at the Oak Ridge Institute of Nuclear Studies. The TST program is jointly sponsored by the National Science Foundation and the Atomic Energy Commission.
It is planned that the TST will spend from two to four days in the fall, sometime after October 1, and two to four days in the spring in each high school, depending upon the enrollment. More detailed planning will be completed later, possibly at Institute. A limited number of appearances may be scheduled for elementary schools and public meetings in various communities.

SCOUT NEWS

TROOP 31
WEED—Thirteen scouts of Troop 31 enjoyed a weekend outing at McClellan Air Force Base Saturday and Sunday, May 16 and 17, and observed the celebration of "Air Force Day" at the base. The group, accompanied by five adults, also made a tour of Sutter's Fort and the Capitol Building while in Sacramento.
At the regular meeting held on Wednesday night, May 13, a film on forestry was presented with remarks by Bob Kline, assistant forester of the International Paper Company, Weed Branch.
Scouts making the trip were Jeffrey Reents, Ronald Mallory, Jim Bob Culley, Sammy Williams, Douglas Henry, Lewis Rizzo, Richard Cross, Richard Cedros, Timothy Layton, Stanley Ellison, Jimmy Yates, Tommy Pease, Darrell Browning and a Cub Scout Kenny Mallory; Arden Parker, leader; Robert Mallory, assistant leader; James Culley, Henry Reents Sr. and Glenn Torkin.

Boat Mishap; Five Drown

MOUNT CLEMENS, Mich. (AP) — Five young people drowned today when their small boat overturned off Strawberry Island in Lake St. Clair. Three teen-age girls were rescued.
The Macomb County sheriff's office said three boys and two girls were lost.
Names of the victims—all from the East Detroit and Harper Woods areas—were not immediately available.
Rescued were Marilyn City, 17, of Detroit; Mary Lou Conesa, 17, of Detroit; and Nancy Benedetto, 20, of Harper Woods. They were reported in good condition at St. Joseph Hospital in Mount Clemens.

California Weather

United Press International
San Francisco Bay Area: Overcast through Tuesday, clearing partially in afternoons; high today San Francisco 58, Oakland 62, San Mateo 66, San Rafael 68; low tonight 48-53; normal westerly winds.
Mt. Shasta-Siskiyou area: Mostly cloudy with occasional showers through Tuesday; snow level near 5,300 feet; colder.
Sierra Nevada: Partly cloudy with scattered showers and thunderstorms through Tuesday; snow level dropping to 6,000 feet in northern ranges tonight; colder in north through Tuesday and in south through Tuesday and in south through Tuesday.
Sacramento Valley: Partly cloudy through Tuesday with possibility of a few showers in north end this afternoon and tonight; high both days 70-76; low tonight 47-53; variable winds 8-15 m.p.h.
Northwestern California: Partly cloudy through Tuesday with coastal overcast; few showers in extreme north today and tonight; cooler northern interior; high today and low tonight Napa 67-68; Santa Rosa 67-65; Ukiah 70-68; northwest to west winds 10-20 m.p.h. near coast except variable 8-16 m.p.h. in extreme north.
COVENTRY, R.I. (AP) — For Daniel R. Grant, 32, of north Kingston, it's never too late for highway safety.
His car early Sunday ripped down 30 feet of highway fence, uprooted several trees, and snapped off a utility pole.
When police arrived, Grant was tending two fires, one at each end of his wrecked car to warn oncoming cars. He was using the splintered fence to fuel the fires.

Negroes Report White Beating

SELMA, Ala. (AP) — Two Negro men reported a large group of white men stopped their car, ordered them out and beat them as they headed for a public lake to go fishing Sunday.
Circuit Solicitor Blanchard McCleod and Deputy Sheriff Robert A. Moore said two women and a 14-year-old boy in the Negroes' car fled into nearby woods and later made their way to Selma.
L. R. Carroll, 29, suffered a broken arm. John Foster, 17, was not seriously hurt. Carroll said one white man wielded a baseball bat.

NEGROES REPORT White Beating

ETNA — Monday, May 18, was Sneak Day for members of the senior class of the Etna High School. The day began with seniors gathering at the home of Raelyn Smith, a senior, to be served a waffle breakfast. From the Smith home the group went to Crystal Creek where a few of the seniors climbed Crystal Creek rock. Later they went to Jones' Beach, on the Scott River north of Fort Jones, to swim and picnic. That evening they attended the show in Yreka, returning to the home of another senior, Bonnie Hampton at Oro Fino, for a turkey dinner, followed by an evening's entertainment of playing games and dancing.

GLAMOR GIRLS

"Now don't tell me—this is the library—"

Weather Table

United Press International
Temperatures and rainfall for 24 hours ending at 4 p.m.

City	High	Low	Rain
Albuquerque	78	51	.51
Atlanta	84	67
Bakersfield	79	58
Boise	71	52
Boston	62	49
Brownsville	90	78
Chicago	71	53
Denver	80	51	.06
Detroit	68	49
Fairbanks	32	41	T.
Fort Worth	76	63	.26
Fresno	77	52
Helena	70	50
Kansas City	77	67
Los Angeles	67	56
Miami	83	76
Minneapolis	74	61
New Orleans	82	71	.13
New York	63	49
Oakland	55	51
Oklahoma City	75	60
Phoenix	93	82
Pittsburgh	66	46
Red Bluff	66	57
Reno	67	41
Sacramento	79	52
Salt Lake City	74	44
San Diego	68	61
San Francisco	57	50
Seattle	63	48	.01
Spokane	72	44
Stockton	78	52
Thermal	86	62
Washington	73	57

Special Purchase!

BROADLOOM SALE

ALL WOOL - STURDY LOOP PILE

Here's the Carpet buy of the year! Beautifully textured All wool - loop pile carpet perfect for bedrooms or that extra room. We have a limited supply SO HURRY! Offer good while stock lasts.

• CARPET
• PADDING
• INSTALLATION

ALL FOR JUST $6.66 Per Sq. Yd.

Lucas Furniture

195 E. Main Phone TU 4-3134

NO DOWN PAYMENT EASY TERMS!!