

Pilots Report Red 'Buzzing'

TOKYO (AP) — Jet planes believed to be Soviet made three observation approaches on an American airliner over the north Pacific today more than 200 miles off Soviet territory, Northwest Airlines reported.

The U.S. Air Force said it had no planes in the area at the time, prompting speculation that Soviet fighters had approached the Seattle-to-Tokyo Northwest DC7C.

The plane crew reported that the closest approach came within two or three miles but the plane or planes did not cross in front of the airliner.

The American plane continued on course and reached Tokyo ahead of schedule. Its 46 passengers were asleep and apparently unaware of the incident.

A Northwest spokesman said the mystery planes appeared when the airliner was some 200 miles southeast of the Soviet Union's Kamchatka Peninsula, at 50 degrees 50 minutes north latitude, 162 degrees 55 minutes east longitude, and in the center of the busy commercial airline used by five U.S., Canadian and European companies.

Siberian-based Soviet Jets have recently been reported patrolling the region of the great circle air-line between Japan and Alaska.

An airline spokesman said from vapor trails and specks in the dawn sky, it was assumed two or three jets were involved. The planes dropped two flares, presumably to identify the American craft.

WHEN THE TOWN was young these hand drawn hose carts went to fires. Rigs are preserved to be looked at perhaps after another 50 years.

FIRE CHIEF A. L. Schmidt is on running board of most recently purchased fire department truck. His assistant is Wilmer Allers on ground. Department president is Art Evans, and George Pappe is secretary. Department is manned by volunteer firemen, mostly businessmen who answer fire calls without salaries. Both city and rural fire fighting equipment is housed in same pumice tile building.

Governor Orders Probe Of Equipment Removal

HONOLULU (AP) — Territorial Gov. William F. Quinn has ordered a formal investigation of removal of office equipment and supplies from Senate chambers after the last Territorial Legislature adjourned May 11.

Quinn, a Republican running for governor in Hawaii's first state election July 28, issued a statement Sunday asking legislators to "account for their stewardship" of public property. He followed this up Wednesday with a directive for an inventory.

Some members of the Democratic-controlled Legislature were accused indirectly of making off with desk sets, chairs, desks, vacuum cleaners, typewriters, filing cabinets and other equipment after their last session as a territorial body.

Some senators conceded taking the articles but contended such practice was traditional.

Some others said they had paid for the articles.

Newspapers, radio stations and some Republicans are making a big to-do of it. Newspapers report the equipment involved is worth several thousand dollars.

The acting president, Democrat Sen. Matsuki Arashiro, and the Senate Accounts Committee Chairman, Sen. John G. Duarte, agreed to cooperate in the investigation.

"So far as the Legislature goes, it has always been done," Arashiro said.

"The Legislature gets new things every session. Who, as a legislator, wants to use something that has been used by someone else?"

Arashiro said he gave his Senate desk set to school children for souvenirs.

Duarte said 852 pounds of such furnishings were sent to him by plane to his Maui Island home. But he said he paid for them. The shipment includes a desk, four chairs, a foam rubber couch, a filing cabinet, a fan, a typewriter and stand, a TV set and two cartons of miscellaneous items.

Duarte, whose committee is charged with keeping track of equipment, said someone sent him a rug but he hadn't bought that, so he shipped it back.
