By J. O. McKINNEY
Dr. J. L. Patterson of Mount Shasta is the dean of Northern California dentists. He has been practicing his profession for 58 years, most of this time within sight of Mt. Shasta.

Bluegrass grows around the base of the mountain to delight the heart of any racehorse man, and the good doctor has been a fan of horse racing as long as he can remember. He says the bluegrass growing so luxuriantly in the volcanic ash is why he chose Mount Shasta as his permanent abode.

Born in Lexington, Kentucky, on March 20, 1876, Dr. Patterson was graduated from Baltimore College of Dental Surgery in 1901. Fresh from the halls of college, he opened dental offices in Atlanta. He didn't like that country, and soon moved on to Dallas, Texas. That, too, failed to hold him, and with Butte, Montana, next stop, he was seeing the country.

It was in 1912 when the roving dentist came to Mount Shasta. In the lush fields along Wagon Creek he saw bluegrass that would delight any Kentuckian. At what is now Shasta Butte Ranch he erected a model horse ranch, with barns, and individual pastures; with cross fences, houses, other buildings, all painted white which loom against a backdrop of evergreen forests. Here he raised racehorses with the prefix Shasta connected with all of their names. Thirty nine such named horses blazed winning streaks all over North America.

Dr. Patterson once raced his own steeds. But this interfered with his profession. He soon learned that he could have the fun of selling his colts, and collect a share of their purses while working at his dental business.

The racing dentist retired from active dentistry two years ago, and now acts only occasionally in an advisory capacity for friends and clients of many years standing. He takes vacations to racing meets whenever the fever mounts.

Cheesecake Hit By Women

LOS ANGELES (AP)—The ladies figure a gal's figure is her own business—not to be exploited by someone else's business.

And cheesecake—the female art you see on calendars, not the stuff you buy in pastry shops—is an evil.

So declared a resolution of the General Federation of Women's Clubs. The group, ended its annual meeting Friday.

The 3,000 delegates passed a resolution condemning exploitation of feminine appeal after hearing Mrs. Walter Magee of Lakewood

FREER EDUCATION

EAST LANSING, Mich. (UPI)—A classroom with no textbooks and no examinations might be one way to stimulate the creative thinking of gifted children, says Dr. C. Gratton Kemp, Michigan State University researcher. Kemp feels many gifted children are stifled by a "rigid" classroom environment.

But another delegate warned adoption of the resolution "might lead thousands of young women to decide they are not the women's club type."

The resolution, passed after lengthy debate, urges clubs to influence public opinion "to correct this evil" and "inform any media which indulges in such abuses of their objections."

RADAR "POLITICAL DEATH"

KNOXVILLE, Tenn. (UPI)—Mayor John Duncan is risking "an early political death" by being tough on speeders, said former Mayor Cas Walker. Duncan has ordered full use of radar to catch speeders. Walker said he had restricted use of radar because "it is catching some of our best citizens."
