

Geneva Conclave Useful, Says Nixon In SF Speech

By JOHN R. WARD
 SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — "Is anything to be gained by conferences with the Russians?" That question was put to Vice President Richard M. Nixon at a Commonwealth Club banquet Thursday night and he replied: "There is a great deal of justification for the question. Developments in Geneva don't offer too much encouragement, but the conferences are most useful. "And the main point is the alternative to talking is unacceptable. The United States and the Soviet Union would draw apart and quite conceivably could end up by fighting. Neither the United States or any other nation can afford to risk settlements by force. "But the frightening thing is war can come when all parties concerned do not want it." Nixon said, however, there has been absolutely no change in the U.S. policy that any summit conference would have to be preceded by signs of progress at the current conference of foreign ministers. The vice president, his wife, Pat, and daughters, Patricia, 12, and Julie, 10, flew here from New York where he participated in ceremonies marking the 350th anniversary of the discovery of the Hudson River. They go to Virginia City today where Nixon will speak informally at Nevada's silver centennial celebration. Nixon spoke on a wide range of subjects at the dinner sponsored by the civic club. He predicted that labor reform will be a "major issue in the 1960 presidential campaign and should be." He expressed doubt that the current session of Congress would enact labor reform legislation. "The Kennedy-Ives bill, as passed by the Senate, still is too weak to deal with labor excesses," he added. "The legislation should make all unions follow the good practices already being observed by most unions in the country." He hopes his July trip to Moscow to open the U.S. exhibit at the International Trade Fair "will help reduce the lack of understanding of our country." "It is in the national interest to extend our exchanges of all types with the Soviet Union," he added. "Over the long haul it is the only way to reduce tensions."

Foreign Relations Group Seeks Erasure Of Gifts

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Senate Foreign Relations Committee wants a start made next year on a cutting down and eventually wiping out all gifts of foreign economic assistance. It contends loans are better. The committee wrote its demand Thursday into President Eisenhower's $3,930,000,000 foreign aid bill. Both the Senate and the House must agree if it is to become effective. No deadline was fixed. Sen. Mike Mansfield (D-Mont.), pushing for more emphasis on loans, had been urging that all gifts of aid be ended by June 30, 1963. Mansfield's proposal would have applied to grants and gifts of special economic assistance, for which Eisenhower is asking 250 million dollars next year, and defense economic supports, for which he seeks $35 million. Fixing no time limit, the committee adopted an amendment asking Eisenhower to submit a specific plan next year under which such grant assistance "shall be progressively reduced and eliminated." The plan it asked for would apply different standards to different countries receiving aid. Critics of Mansfield's proposal had contended that some countries would need grants rather than loans for a long time. In other actions, the committee voted to curb secrecy on foreign aid spending and to restrict government guarantees on private investment abroad. Secrecy on the amount of aid to any country would be limited to that necessary to U.S. security. The administration would be required to make public all other information on both military and economic aid.

Sen. Frank Church (D-Idaho), who sponsored the secrecy ban, cited an example involving Brazil. He said it has long been known that this country has a missile tracking station on a Brazilian island, but secrecy hides "how much rent," as he put it, this country is paying Brazil. Under an amendment investment guarantees would be limited to those made in underdeveloped countries. They are now available generally to guarantee American investments abroad against losses from war, confiscation or inability to convert foreign currencies into dollars. Aiken said the change would prevent further guarantees against such losses in countries like England, France, West Germany and Italy. It would tend to steer private investment into underdeveloped areas of Asia, Africa and Latin America. He said it would permit continued guarantees on investments in underdeveloped areas of Spain, Greece and other countries generally eligible for technical assistance.

Writer Of Famous Letter Retires As NY Educator

NEW YORK (AP)—The unseasonal theme of the balmy June evening was "is there a Santa Claus?" But it was appropriate, because it honored the gentle Virginia whose query brought a famed answer 62 years ago.

An 8-year-old, Virginia O'Hanlon wrote a letter to the old New York Sun asking that pointed and poignant question about Santa. The editorial reply on Sept. 21, 1897, has had countless reprintings and translations into 20 languages.

Thursday night Virginia — Mrs. Laura Virginia O'Hanlon Douglas, now 70 — was given a retirement dinner in Brooklyn after 43 years as a public school teacher and principal.

Virginia, now silver-haired and a widow, never has lost her faith in all kinds of folk, including Kris Kringle. It has paid off, too, in universal love and respect, and endeared her to thousands of kids who came under her supervision.

Only the other day a middle-aged cab driver turned to his passenger, who was Virginia, and said: "I'm Harold from Public School 31. I used to think you were a greater person than the President."

In addition to the songs and speeches at the dinner, there was a reading of that famous letter: "Dear Editor: Some of my little friends say there is no Santa Claus. Please tell me the truth."

Mrs. Douglas was "feeling a little shy" about rereading the reply written by the late Francis Pharcellus Church, which said in part:

"Yes, Virginia, there is a Santa Claus. He exists as certainly as love and generosity and devotion exist. How dreary would be the world if there were no Santa Claus. It would be as dreary as if there were no Virginias."

For the last three years Mrs. Douglas, retired at the mandatory age, was junior principal at P.S. 401, which supervises classes held in 10 hospitals and other institutions for chronically ill children.

Mrs. Douglas plans to live with her only daughter and son-in-law Mr. and Mrs. Robert Temple, and their seven children at North Chatham, N.Y.

Summing up her feelings about her students, Mrs. Douglas said: "It must be the eternal light with which childhood fills the world."
