Queen Elizabeth, Prince Leave For Tour Of Canada

LONDON (AP) — Queen Elizabeth II and Prince Philip left by jet airliner today for a 45-day tour of Canada.

Fog will force the royal party to land first at the U.S. airbase at Argentina, N.J.

Bad weather over St. Johns, the Newfoundland capital, forced British Overseas Airways Corp. to switch the landing spot. Fog has shrouded much of the rocky coast of Newfoundland for days.

From Argentina, the Queen, Prince Philip and their 11 attendants will make the 45-mile trip to St. Johns by car.

The shift in the landing spot postponed the Queen's arrival ceremonies at St. Johns about three hours, until late afternoon, and meant a curtailment of her first drive about St. Johns.

Canadian warships and planes were posted on the comet's flight path in the Western half of the Atlantic in case of trouble. British vessels and the Royal Air Force furnished protection along the first half of the route.

County District Attorney Seeks Murder Case Data

By TOM STIMMEL
District Attorney Arthur Beddoe drove to Carson City today to take a full statement in a four-year-old murder case—a murder for which James Quinton Anderson is serving a life term.

The man Beddoe is to see is Walter Garcia, 24, who is completing a term in the Nevada State Penitentiary for forgery.

Garcia has a unique double role in the case of Richard David Miller, a 25-year-old horse breeder from Tucson, who was murdered on a Beatty ranch November 5, 1954.

Garcia was the state's star witness during the trial that convicted Anderson of second degree murder; now he stands accused by Anderson of having killed Miller himself.

Anderson's sensational charge was made this winter in the course of a lengthy legal motion that amounts to a request for a new trial. Since then, Anderson has heaped more accusations in subsequent legal papers designed to bring his case back into court.

In a "replication" filed last month, Anderson has brought remarkable charges against jurors, his own attorneys, and trial evidence, as well as Garcia. Among other things, he maintained that:

"Walter Garcia was assured he would go to the gas chamber unless he testified he witnessed your petitioner fire the fatal shot. . . ."

"When the truth is finally known, it will prove . . . very probably that Walter Garcia is guilty of murdering the deceased."

"Lawrence Bergmann (the state police officer who arrested Anderson) constantly directed . . . Garcia, telling him he would 'beat him to death' if he did not testify as directed."

Attorney Herbert Welch of Lakeview, leader of Anderson's three-man defense team, "raised not one pertinent question throughout the trial, which lasted for some 16 days;" was guilty of "extreme incompetence," and "only perfunctorily performed his duty."

"The completely negligent and indifferent attitude of both attorneys (Leonard Waterman of Burns) and Welch are the major reason why the petitioner finds himself, four years after the trial, under a life sentence for a crime he did not commit. . . ."

Regarding jurors, Anderson lashed particularly at two. His replication maintained that juror Henry Otley of Diamond, Oregon, was seated despite his statement "during questioning of jurors, that he believed the defendant to be guilty as charged."

Anderson said Otley "remained on the trial jury and sneered at petitioner (Anderson) throughout the trial. . . . Upon entering the jury room . . . for deliberating the verdict, Mr. Otley is known to have said, 'He's guilty as hell and unless you all decide to burn him, don't call on my vote.'"

He said, also that two copies of a detective magazine containing a story, "Tomahawk Kid," a version of the Miller shooting, were in the

Figures Released On Stockade

One third of the 2,000 persons who have registered at the Siskiyou Summit Stockade near the California-Oregon border on Highway 99 were out of state residents.

California, South Dakota and Arizona residents topped the list, but other registrations have come from those living in Hawaii, Alaska, Germany, New Zealand and most of the other states.

The welcome booth, a replica of an Army garrison stockade, opened May 18.

Indian Village Plans 'Move'

The historic Indian village Eulalia will move, symbolically, to Moore Park Sunday, June 21.

Eulalia Chapter of the Daughters of the American Revolution, a local group, will rededicate a monument that marked the site of the village just across Fremont Bridge that crosses Link River on Lakeshore Drive.

The marker was moved to Moore Park recently by the DAR in cooperation with the Klamath County Court.

DAR members say a portion of the old village was formerly in Moore Park.

Representatives of Klamath Falls and of Klamath County will be present for the dedication. The public is invited to the ceremonies due to get started at 3:30 p.m.

Farm Adviser Gives Report

Finding new uses for farm products is the aim of considerable research being carried on today. Already much progress has come from this, reports Tulelake farm adviser, Ken Baggett of the University of California.

Such research aims at providing new markets and strengthened demand for the output of farms. The nation needs the new and better products from farm-grown materials that science can create.

Research has shown that farm commodities can be used as raw materials for almost any of the products of the multibillion-pound chemical and plastics industries.

Utilization studies already have proved that cotton and wool fabrics can be given wash-and-wear qualities. Cotton can be made resistant to weathering and rotting. Wool can be made shrink-proof. Grain starches can be used in new ways for the manufacture of paper and textiles.

Baggett points out that utilization research is being carried on by the U.S. Department of Agriculture working closely with the University Experiment Stations and industry.

California has one of the four regional laboratories of the U.S. Department of Agriculture working closely for agricultural utilization research. Headquarters for this are at Albany.

Crescent Club Meeting Held

CRESCENT — The problem of bottles being thrown through a window of the Crescent Community Club was the primary topic brought up at the club's regular meeting recently.

President Charles Shotts suggested that rather than construct wire screens to prevent damage that the club "appeal to people's consciences to stop these juvenile acts." He stressed that he was not inferring that the damage was done by juveniles, however.

Other reports were given on the drain field project, which was completed by Robert Sherman and Al Soukup, by Arthur Sherman, building committee chairman. All but two proposed projects have been taken. Those yet to be spoken for are finishing the ceiling in the annex and placing batten and storm doors on the outside entrances.

It was announced that there will be no meeting in July, and no regular square dance sessions for adults for the remainder of the summer. Junior square dancers will continue to meet on Tuesday evenings.

The members also discussed the problem of campers on the community club grounds. No camping signs will be posted in the area.

Dad Plans Suit Against Kin

BERKELEY, Calif. (AP) — Sol E. Handler, 60, is suing his daughter and son-in-law for $25,000 because he fell out of a chair while babysitting at their home.

The suit alleges he suffered a leg injury which aggravated a heart condition when he fell from a defective chair. He was watching his grandson, Adam, 2, son of Mr. and Mrs. Sheldon Messinger.

The Messingers declined comment.

165TH BIRTHDAY

STARKS, Maine (AP) — Barlow D. Nichols treated Wednesday like any other day, but his family noted it was his 165th birthday.

The family said he isn't allowed much excitement now, in contrast to his life when he was a cook for the mule trains supplying the gold fields in the Dakotas in the 1870s.
