

Contract Talks Resume Today

NEW YORK (AP) — Top-level contract negotiations in the basic steel industry resume today after a recess.

Four-man teams representing the United Steelworkers Union of America and the 12 largest steel companies are seeking to reach agreement on terms for a new contract before the current three-year pact expires June 30.

If no agreement is reached by that date, there almost certainly will be a strike.

Towns Quiet After Riot

D'URBAN, South Africa (AP) — The nonwhite townships of Cato Manor and Chesterville were reported quiet this morning after a night of riots and arson in which three Africans were killed. Strong police patrols remained in the area.

The Africans were killed after rioters attacked a police picket in Cato Manor. Police used rifles and machine guns against the rioting Negroes. About 30 Africans were hospitalized. Three policemen were injured.

The riots were touched off by government regulations forbidding Africans from brewing their own beer at home.

Government Of Argentina Target Of Political Plot

By ROMAN JIMENEZ
BUENOS AIRES, Argentina (AP) — President Arturo Frondizi's government charged today it is the target of a revolutionary plot. Unconfirmed reports spread that a military revolt already is under way in the interior.

Angry officers were reported collecting at Cordoba, 400 miles northwest of Buenos Aires. Leaders of the Coroba military garrison have been openly opposing government policies since Tuesday.

Police swept through the capital with orders to arrest top generals and admirals, many of them leaders of the provisional military government that steered Argentina back to civilian rule after the armed forces had overthrown the dictator, Juan D. Peron, in 1955. Many of those sought were said to have fled.

Communications to Cordoba were partly cut by a heavy storm. It was impossible to check the report of a revolt or the government's counterclaim that everything was under control throughout the country. The federal police asked radio amateurs to relay any official messages they picked up.

The Cordoba garrison was said to be backed by troops in Campo de Mayo, near Buenos Aires, and Salta, in northern Argentina. Discontent with the government was reported spreading to other garrisons.

Curbs on the armed forces, including confinement to quarters for some troops, were reimposed after being lifted briefly Thursday by Frondizi tried to bargain with some of the military leaders. Leaders and supporters of the previous provisional government have never been too happy with Frondizi and have believed he was secretly in the league with the Peronists.

The current flareup apparently stems from a renewal of reports which the President has denied—that he signed a secret pact with Peron to get elected. Although they are anti-Peron and anti-Communist, the dissident army leaders reportedly oppose Frondizi's use of troops against Peronist and Communist unions trying to nullify his economic austerity program with strikes.

Alfredo Vitolo, Frondizi's interior minister, told a heated session of the House of Deputies early today that the government "has known for some time there was a plot afoot with insurrectional activities designed to break down national institutions."

He linked the purported plot to Col. Desiderio Fernandez Suarez, who served as chief of police in Buenos Aires Province under the provisional government. Two hours later Fernandez Suarez was reported arrested. Gen. Emilio Bonaccarrere and Rear Adm. Arturo Rial also were reported under arrest.

U.S. Defense Secretary Says MIGs North Korean

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Communist MIGs that shot up an American patrol plane over the Sea of Japan were more than likely North Korean, Secretary of Defense Neil H. McElroy says.

McElroy told a news conference Thursday he bases that opinion on the direction from which the planes came. In the area of the attack, 85 miles east of Wonsan, the jet fighters could have been manned by North Koreans, Red Chinese, or Russians. Planes of all three carry the Red Star insignia seen on the attackers.

McElroy said it was ridiculous to raise a fuss about whether the American patrol plane was adequately armed or not. Its World War II vintage guns "are not going to knock off a MIG anyway," he said.

Curtain Down On Show Era

HOLLYWOOD, Calif. (AP) — Death came quietly Thursday to Ethel Barrymore and closed the curtain on an era ruled by a proud theatrical dynasty.

She died in her sleep. She had been an invalid in her Beverly Hills apartment for more than a year with a heart ailment.

Miss Barrymore would have been 80 Aug. 15. She will be buried in Calvary Cemetery Monday.

For more than six decades, her regal bearing and resonant voice had captivated audiences. And she had been a star of the theater, movies, radio, and television.

The sharp-witted actress, who originally wanted to be a pianist, was the last surviving member of a theatrical triumvirate that included her equally famous brothers John and Lionel. John died in 1942 and Lionel in 1954.

"We Barrymores became actors not because we wanted to go on the stage," she once explained, "but simply because it was the thing we could do best."

And it was. Ethel was the most versatile, ranging from light comedy to tragedy with equal skill. She won a 1944 Academy Award for her portrayal of the fatally ill mother in "None but the Lonely Heart" and nominations for "Spiral Staircase" and "Pinky."

Show business' great and near-great mourned her death.

In New York, the Ethel Barrymore Theater dimmed its lights for five minutes before starting the night's performance.

In Hollywood, actress Judith Anderson, a friend of 30 years, wept softly when told the news and then quoted these lines: "There's a new star in the sky... and the glory of the heavens is my infinite sorrow."

The defense secretary said the really important thing about the incident was that the U.S. plane was on a peaceful mission over international waters and was jumped by "an irresponsible pair of fighters."

The U.S. plane's tail gunner was severely wounded by the attacking jets, and his gun was knocked out before he could return the fire. Crew members agreed the attackers were Soviet-built MIGs or MIG-17s.

Other gun turrets on the plane had been disarmed so radar and cameras could be installed.

A photograph of the enemy planes which one of the crewmen snapped in the confusion of the attack could pin down the nationality of the planes beyond doubt.

The picture is being sent to Washington for evaluation. A Navy spokesman said "it is not known when and if it will be released."

The state department wants to protest Monday's attack but isn't sure where to direct the protest. The United States at any rate has no diplomatic relations with North Korea.

McElroy told his news conference "our patrol aircraft see aircraft of the other side with some regularity. It is an area where each side keeps track of what the other is doing."

Earlier in the day Congress members said they understood patrol planes in that area would be escorted by fighters in the future, armed with the deadly sidewinder rockets.

But the Pentagon promptly knocked down that report and said it must have been misunderstood. It said there were no plans for escorting patrol planes.
