

Why Dubbidobber? It Looks Like One

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — Air-craft worker Sarge Signer thinks every part in a plane should have a name. When he found a small bit of metal in North American Aviation's X-15 rocket plane which didn't have one, it bothered him.

So Signer began calling it a dubbidobber. The name stuck, and now the part, an essential in the seat ejection system although it's only an inch long and costs only a dime, is known as a dubbidobber.

Another worker asked Signer how he happened to call the part a dubbidobber.

"I don't know," he said, "But it just looked like a dubbidobber."

Refugee Is Boy Of Year

NEW YORK (UPI) — The national "Boy of the Year," chosen from 500,000 members of the Boys' Clubs of America, earned his title the hard way.

John Drupa, 16, of Binghamton, N.Y., was born in Latvia. His mother was forced to flee Soviet troops with John, his brother and sister. His father and an older brother were taken prisoner and sent to Siberia. In 1951, after years of wandering through Europe, John and his family came to the United States.

Although he couldn't speak English when he arrived, he became an honor student and rang doorbells and made speeches to get out the vote in 1956.

STUDENTS' WIVES DEGREE

PROVIDENCE, R. I. (UPI) — Bryant College is now offering a purely honorary degree of P. H. T. (Putting Husband Through).

The degree goes to the wives of graduates, "in recognition of the unselfish love and devotion which has made her husband's education possible" and as "a humble acknowledgment" for service and sacrifice.

UPSTAIRS AND DOWN

COLUMBUS, Ohio (UPI) — Shortly after the turn of the century, a Professor Lord taught mining at Ohio State University. When another Professor Lord was added to the faculty, this one to teach astronomy, students distinguished between the two by calling one the "earthly Lord" and the other the "heavenly Lord."
