

Two Teachers To Fill Voids

Two teachers were picked by the Klamath Union High School board of directors at a meeting Monday night to fill positions in the school's English and commercial departments.

Vacancies in the Spanish and mathematics department probably will be filled after the board selects a head football coach at a special meeting Thursday at 12:30 p.m. in the Winema Hotel.

Selection will depend on academic subjects the coach is able to teach.

Board members discussed two candidates for the coaching position. They are Bob Williams, a graduate of Lewiston Teachers College, Idaho, and John Zaeger of Washington. Both have excellent coaching credentials.

The board picked Gordon Burtner, who has a master of arts degree and three years' teaching experience, for the English department. If he accepts the job, his salary will be $4,900 this school year.

Kenneth D. Casteel, who also holds a master's degree, but has no teaching experience, was selected for the commercial department. His salary was set at $4,200 per year.

The board authorized Gary Robertson, assistant superintendent in charge of curriculum, to requisition equipment that is needed, such as student script and handbooks. The principal usually handles these items, but none has been hired. Harold Ashley, clerk of the board, was authorized to sign checks for the equipment. Ashley is bonded.

The board also set July 10 as the deadline for receiving teacher resignations. The board may hold teachers to contracts after that date unless replacements are available immediately.

It boosted weekly counseling time from six hours to eight hours and stipulated that if more counseling time is allocated, it will be done in multiples of two hours. The action was taken to better fit the counseling program to national defense Education Act requirements. The school receives government aid for its counseling program.

The board also voted to call for bids for a fume hood and three science tables. The lowest of several informal bids the board received for the equipment was $3,750.

CD Office Now Full Time

A full-time civil defense office has been operating in Klamath Falls since July 1. Joe Searles, formerly assistant chief of the Suburban Fire Department, is its director.

For two years previous to the opening of the office in the Klamath County Courthouse, the Klamath County Civil Defense operated on a "part time" basis.

But this year the county court allocated additional funds to make the full time project possible.

Searles replaces Melvin Gordon, chief of the Suburban Fire Department, as director. He resigned from the department to accept the civil defense position.

He says business throughout the county will keep him away from the office frequently, but he is attempting to set up a schedule of hours when he will be present.

They are, tentatively, Mondays, Wednesdays and Fridays from 9 a.m. until noon. The office phone number is TU 2-3524, and Searles' home phone number is TU 2-1645.

MARK RUNNELS shut his eyes and ripped out of the chutes aboard a hefty calf at the Tulelake Junior Rodeo last year. The event is expected to draw many entries this year. It will be held at the Tulelake Fairgrounds July 19.

Park Flowers Book Subject

The wildflowers of Crater Lake National Park—where to find them and how to identify them—are featured in "101 Wildflowers of Crater Lake National Park," a new handbook designed for the park's vacation visitors and weekend flower-hunters.

Published by the University of Washington Press in cooperation with the Crater Lake Natural History Association, the field guide is the work of the much-traveled writing team of Grant and Wenonah Sharpe. Preparation was begun in the summer of 1958, while University of Michigan forestry professor Grant Sharpe worked as a naturalist in the park.

The handbook is geared toward vacationers who want to know their flower discoveries by name. Each wildflower is illustrated, described and coded by its predominant color for easy identification. Park visitors, whether motoring or hiking, are told exactly where the flowers may be found growing along roadways or mountain trails.

Readers are also given a brief explanation of the park's natural features: the volcanic origins of brilliant-blue Crater Lake, America's deepest lake, and the park's four vegetation "life zones," encountered as different elevations are reached.

The Sharpes have spent summers in four American national parks and produced as many guidebooks. Previous excursions have resulted in "101 Wildflowers of Mt. Rainier National Park," "101 Wildflowers of Olympic National Park" and "101 Wildflowers of Shenandoah National Park."

Entry Blanks Are Available For Tulelake Junior Rodeo

Klamath Basin cowboys and cowgirls from 8 to 18 years of age who wish to compete in the fifth annual Tulelake Junior Rodeo July 19 at the Tulelake Fairgrounds must obtain entry blanks.

They are available at the Floyd A. Boyd Equipment Company, Tulelake; Freeman's Saddlery, 4532 South Sixth Street, and the House of Shoes, Town and Country Shopping Center, Klamath Falls. The information was released by Warren Woodard, chairman of the junior rodeo committee.

Woodard urged all contestants to be sure that entry blanks are signed by their parents and returned before deadline, the night of July 15.

The rodeo will feature 16 events. There will be seven races, a cutting horse contest, steer riding, calf and team roping, and bareback riding. Horses will be furnished by Ora Summers who has owned such famous bucking horses as War Paint and Miss Klamath. The youngsters will compete for prize money, composed of a purse plus entry fee, and a silver belt buckle for every event. The buckles are being donated by many of the merchants of the Klamath Basin. There will also be a trophy saddle for the best all-around cowboy, donated by the Tulelake businessmen. The buckles and saddle are on display at Freeman's Saddlery.

This popular event which gives boys and girls the opportunity to exhibit their riding ability will begin at 1 p.m. daylight saving time.
