

Radio-Television Guide For The Week

Itinerant Gunsmith Has Popular Insurance Line

BAKERSFIELD, Calif. (AP)—Scotty Mackenzie is one of the last of the vagabond tradesmen. He is a familiar sight to thousands of policemen in the market for cheap, reliable life insurance in the form of a smooth-working gun.

For 60 years Scotty has been an itinerant gunsmith. Now 76, he makes the rounds of police stations with his car and house trailer.

He quietly takes an officer's gun and for $1 returns it cleaned, oiled and repaired. The fee for shotguns, rifles and machineguns is $2.

Officers look upon Scotty's gunsmithing as life insurance. He has never increased his fee.

Recently Scotty pulled into Bakersfield, entered the squad room of the California Highway Patrol, and spread his tools on a table. He was in business after a three-year absence.

Scotty was born in Boston, Mass. He went to live with an uncle on an Idaho ranch after his parents died in his infancy.

"I was 15 when I ran away from the ranch," he said. "My first real job was in the Colt firearms factory at Hartford, Conn., where I learned the trade."

Among his clients he lists Teddy Roosevelt, Zane Grey, Bing Crosby and Clark Gable.

"Since the wanderlust got me," he said, "my home has been any police station."

In the 1920s, Scotty recalls, one of his gunsmithing jobs was far removed from police surroundings. He was approached by men requesting his aid at a "hunting club." He was whisked away in a dark limousine to a shack where he was kept busy for eight days. "I couldn't leave, but they treated me well," he said. "When they let me go they paid me handsomely and told me to keep my mouth shut."

Later he saw the men's picture in a newspaper. They were members of Al Capone's gang.

DEFINITION OF A DEAN

BOSTON (UPI)—John F. MacKenzie, defines a dean as "one who is not smart enough to become a college professor and is too smart to be a college president."

EVERY INCH COUNTS

BURLINGTON, Vt. (UPI)—A school here is so crowded that superintendent William Logan ordered a coal bin converted into a classroom.
