

Tennis Club Officials To Answer Policy Ban

NEW YORK (AP)—Officials of the West Side Tennis Club have been asked to appear July 21 before the city's Commission on Intergroup Relations to answer questions about the club's reported policy of banning Negroes and Jews.

The hearing is a result of Dr. Ralph J. Bunche's disclosure Wednesday that the fashionable Forest Hills club's president, Wilfred Burglund, had told him neither he nor his son could join the club because they are Negroes.

Sen. Jacob K. Javits (R-N.Y.) said Thursday that he and four other senators had sent a telegram to the U.S. Lawn Tennis Assn. asking that the U.S. tennis championships and the Davis Cup matches be transferred from the West Side club.

There also was a storm of other protests against the club's ban on Dr. Bunche, who is United Nations under secretary for special political affairs and a Nobel Peace Prize winner.

In announcing the July 21 hearing, Dr. Alfred J. Marrow, chairman of the intergroup relations commission, said it was "unthinkable that major international athletic events for which the general public pays admission should be conducted in this city on the grounds of an institution which discriminates in its membership policy."

"We will therefore use every power in our command to change these policies," Marrow added. He said members of the U.S. Lawn

Tennis Assn. also might be invited to the hearing.

The commission has no penalty power. The hearing will be closed.

In Washington, Javits said Sens. Clifford P. Case (R-N.J.), Paul H. Douglas (D-Ill.), Hubert H. Humphrey (D-Minn.) and Thomas H. Kuchel (R-Calif.) had joined him in messaging the tennis association.

New York City Council President Abe Stark said he would introduce a resolution of censure against the club unless the discrimination policy is altered.

Denunciations of the club also came from the National Assn. for the Advancement of Colored People, the American Jewish Congress, the New York Civil Liberties Union and many others.

Burglund could not be reached for comment.

Victor Denny, president of the tennis association, was attending a meeting of the International Lawn Tennis Federation in Dublin.

In London, the Negro tennis star, Althea Gibson, when told of the controversy, exclaimed: "How ridiculous. Are we living in the 20th century or not?" She has played many times at the West Side club, but is not a member.

Bunche said he had contacted Burglund to inquire about membership at the club for his son. He said Burglund told him membership was not by application and that Negroes and Jews were barred.

Streamlined Math Course To Greet KUHS Students

A new and exclusive general mathematics course for Klamath Union High School freshmen and sophomores is a little more than half completed, and the other half should go faster.

The high school board of education learned that, and the fact that cost estimates of the project were too low, at a meeting Monday evening.

The word came from Howard Bailey, chief of the high school math department. He and instructor Don Ross have been working since school recessed on the streamlined, flexible math program that students will test this fall.

Bailey and Ross have completed and mimeographed a 95-page book of exercises for Math 1 that freshmen will use during the first semester of next school year. They are starting a book for Math 2. They expect both to be completed by early August.

The books probably will cost students about $1 each. The board figures about $800 can be raised that way. Bailey explained that the project has cost more than $750 so far. He forgot a few items in a preliminary estimate — ink, expense of punching holes in the texts and other unforeseen items.

Sophomores studying Math 3 and 4 will use a standard text. Bailey and Ross are writing a handbook for teachers who will handle the courses to tie the second year program in with the first.

Bailey is leaving the school system this year to accept an assistant professorship in mathematics at Eastern Oregon College. But he says he is going to keep close tabs on the program. It's a pet project designed to snap student apathy toward mathematics.

Its purpose is to provide a better program for students who don't want to specialize in math or science, and to strengthen courses for students who do.

Most freshmen will take the new math course. Very fast learners may be funneled, instead, directly into first year algebra and during the next three years, up to advanced math and trigonometry.

Slow learners may be advised to take basic arithmetic in their sophomore year for a "breathing spell," if they desire. They will subsequently take the new math course if they pass a test of arithmetic knowledge, and finally, they may be allowed to take geometry or algebra.

Average students, or those not intending to major in math or science may go as high as trigonometry or advanced algebra.

Pair Sued By Company

Allstate Insurance Company has brought suit in circuit court against Elois Robin and Marvin Cook concerning an accident claim by Cook.

The suit says Robin employed Cook as a timber faller, and while on business last August 19 Robin's pickup truck overturned and Cook was injured.

Cook sued Robin $45,000 general damages, $45,000 loss of wages and $3,750 medical expenses, and Cook referred the claims to the insurance company.

But Allstate maintains that it is not liable due to the circumstances of the accident. It maintains instead that Cook was entitled to workmen's compensation.

The company also asks court interpretation of the insurance contract.

Pair Hike To Canada

Two hikers on their way to E. C. Manning Park in British Columbia reached Devil's Peak Lookout Tuesday morning, five days away from their starting point on Copco Lake and about 850 miles from their destination.

The men, David Hain and Robert P. Erickson, both of Portland, plan to spend 59 days walking the Pacific Crest or "Skyline" Trail.

Their reasons are several. They believe, after "extensive inquiries" that that long a stretch of the trail has never been conquered at once. They also believe it is an Oregon Centennial event that "truly partakes of the pioneer spirit."

The men are carrying letters from Gov. Mark Hatfield to Washington Gov. Albert Rosellini and Lt. Gov. Frank McKenzie Ross of British Columbia. They are also packing an Oregon flag.

En route, they will shoot about an hour's run of movies and about a thousand color slide photographs. They will also collect botanical specimens for Portland State College and fruit flies for Reed College.

The men stopped at Devil's Peak Lookout to radio a report of their progress to the district office of the Rogue River National Forest in Klamath Falls.

Little Girl Loses Leg

SEDALIA, Mo. (AP)—"I'm glad this happened to me instead of some other little girl or boy," 7-year-old Donna Stapel told her mother.

Donna's right leg had just been amputated above the knee by a motorboat propeller at a lake of the Ozarks resort Wednesday.

Donna screamed in terror when the boat backed into her. But the little blonde didn't shed a tear during the 60-mile ride to a Sedalia hospital.

And after undergoing surgery she managed to smile at a newspaper as she was wheeled to a hospital room. Her condition is satisfactory.

John Beaver, resort operator, said his boat struck Donna as he backed it away from a dock. He is a friend of the child's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Stapel, who are vacationing here.

Mosquito Plague Reported Heavy

PORTLAND (AP)—The mosquito infestation this year in Portland is the heaviest in years. Insect Abatement Supervisor John H. Huber told the City Health Bureau Tuesday.

Huber blamed a combination of factors, including adverse spraying weather and six nestings of the Columbia River. He said each new nesting of the river hatched a new batch of mosquitoes. The river normally crests two or three times, he added.

FIRE EXTINGUISHED

KANOSH, Utah (AP)—Fire fighters extinguished a 1,000-acre forest fire Tuesday, about 24 hours after it started. About 240 men were used.

The Forest Service said 1,100 acres were burned in the Fish Lake National Forest, 2½ miles southeast of here.

Closed-Door Probe Slated Of United Auto Workers

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Senate Rackets Committee plans to start a preliminary investigation of the United Auto Workers in hearings behind closed doors.

The three-day inquiry, starting July 27, is to determine whether evidence compiled by the committee's Republican members is sufficient to justify public hearings. The investigation could set off a political row among the senators as a similar one did when the committee investigated the UAW in 1958.

The union traditionally supports Democratic candidates for political office, although it has supported some Republicans at times.

Sen. Karl E. Mundt (R-SD) announced the inquiry. It will deal among other things with UAW "flower funds"—which usually buy few flowers.

UAW President Walter Reuther told the committee last year flower funds really are union campaign funds raised by voluntary contributions from members. He said the funds are used mainly to finance the campaigns of incumbent UAW officers, including himself, and the campaigns of rivals, with each side having its own flower fund.

Mundt and Sen. Carl Curtis (R-Neb.) want to know more about the raising and spending of these funds. Mundt said the committee also would look into the affairs and finances of some UAW officials.

Reuther told the committee in hearings last year he knew of no corruption in his union but that if the committee could point to some he would start cleaning it out within 24 hours.

Mundt said the committee also has agreed on "preliminary ground rules" for another tough inquiry. This one deals with charges that both industry and labor unions have been circumventing or even flouting federal laws forbidding them to participate directly in financing partisan political campaigns.

Pickets Idle Away Time, By Solving World Woes

PITTSBURGH (AP)—Across the Monongahela River in Homestead, Pa., a giant U.S. Steel Corp. mill lies silent and dark.

In a corner at the plant's main gate a small group of men is gathered. It's the end of the first day of the nationwide steel strike.

To a passer-by, these men resemble nothing more than an average bunch of guys "solving" world problems. Only a few signs posted on a fence indicate they are pickets of United Steelworkers Local 1397.

Behind some chairs stands a makeshift dining room table. A couple of loaves of bread, some bologna, a can of condensed milk, a jar of mustard and some mustard-smeared picket signs lie on a newspaper stand.

A radio plays. The men listen to the Pirates-Los Angeles baseball game. A couple of Pirates get tossed out of the game. One of the pickets exclaims: "Those umpires are like bosses in the mill. You can't say boo to them."

Talking and playing cards are the pickets' favorite ways of "occupying" themselves. Thomas Roscoe, who is getting ready to go on picket duty, says: "I'm looking for the boys to have a game of cards. We'll play pinochle or euchre. Can't lose any money playing that."

The men speak of various sidelines that will keep them busy during the strike. "I'm also an electrician," Michael Bakos, an inspector, says. "I have four jobs lined up. But I like golf, too. I shot a 78 out at South Park today."

Andy Kopriva remarks, "I cut the grass at home today. I'm waiting for payday. Then I'll buy some paint and paint the house. We can take eight weeks at the most. But after that, God bless us."

Posted on the bulletin board near the entrance to the plant is a sign announcing "Family Day" at a nearby amusement park July 29. "Strike or no strike, that picnic's going through. Prizes and everything," Stanley Jocz says.

A couple of supervisors check in for their night's duty inside the plant. Someone yells, "Have fun with your pinochle game."

Then, some of the pickets pull their chairs over to the newsstand and clear the food away.

Money Gone; Teller Dead

GRAY SUMMIT, Mo. (AP)—Between $20,000 and $25,000 is missing from the Bank of Gray Summit, whose cashier killed himself eight days ago.

The shortage was uncovered Wednesday by state examiners. The estimate of missing funds was made by the office of State Finance Commissioner G.H. Bates. R. Eugene Brooks, 44, bank cashier for the last eight years, shot himself in the bank July 8.

On that day examiners had arrived to begin a routine inspection of the books.

The vice president of the bank, John F. Disharoon, said he believed the entire loss would be covered by insurance.

Bank Group Pals Probe Of Ike House Bill Veto

WASHINGTON (AP)—Democrats balked today at accepting the Eisenhower administration's newest version of a housing bill. Instead, Sen. John Sparkman (D-Ala.) said a banking subcommittee he heads will begin hearings soon on President Eisenhower's veto of a Democratic-sponsored measure the chief executive called extravagant and inflationary.

"We know the President is wrong in the statements he made about this bill and we are going to show on record that he is wrong," Sparkman said in an interview.

"We are going to have a housing bill but it will be written only after full hearings. We are not going to accept just anything he throws at us."

Sparkman joined Senate Democratic Leader Lyndon B. Johnson of Texas in denouncing Eisenhower's contention that the vetoed bill would have involved $2,000,000,000 in expenditures. The Democrats estimated costs of the two-year program at $1,375,000,000.

Johnson told the Senate Tuesday that Eisenhower's figure was arrived at by a "Madison Avenue gimmick" of including estimates for possible public housing subsidies for the next 40 years. In the public housing program the federal government makes up by subsidy the difference between costs and rents received.

Sparkman said that never before, since the original act covering such projects became law in 1949, have these indefinite payments been counted as part of the cost of any housing bill.

In 1955, President Eisenhower himself asked for authority for 70,000 public housing starts and counted no single dollar of the cost against his budget," Sparkman said. "Now he is raising a phony figure in the name of economy and curbing inflation."

The new housing bill backed by Eisenhower was introduced in the House Monday by Reps. Gordon L. McDonough (R-Calif.) and William B. Widnall (R-N.J.), and in the Senate Tuesday by Sen. Prescott Bush (R-Conn.).

Providing for no new public housing, it would authorize a total of $10 million dollars in housing loans and grants.

The administration measure would provide 600 million for slum clearance to be met by congressional appropriations instead of what Bush described as "back-door" financing by Treasury borrowing to finance the 900-million-dollar program in the vetoed measure.

While Bush called his proposal "a reasonable compromise" between conflicting administration and democratic viewpoints, Sparkman said the Republicans were offering merely a "skeleton" measure to which the Democrats propose to add some flesh.

Court Blunts Demo Issue, Says Senate GOP Leader

WASHINGTON (AP)—Senate Republican Leader Everett M. Dirksen of Illinois said today the U.S. Court of Claims has blunted a favorite Democratic political issue in its Dixon-Yates ruling.

In a 3-2 opinion in the case Wednesday, the court held there was no conflict of interest in the activities of Adolph H. Wenzell, who served as a Budget Bureau consultant while he was a salaried officer of the First Boston Corp. Challenging this decision, Sen. Estes Kefauver (D-Tenn.) said in a separate interview he will urge the government to appeal to the Supreme Court.

Kefauver said the decision "doesn't stand with the facts as brought out in our committee investigations."

Dirksen said, on the other hand, that the court had laid low the contention of Kefauver and other Democrats that the administration condoned a conflict of interest in contracting with the Dixon-Yates group to provide added electric power output for the Tennessee Valley Authority area.

The contract was fought bitterly at the time by public power advocates, and figured more recently in the Senate's rejection of the nomination of Lewis L. Strauss as secretary of commerce.

"The decision certainly disproves the Democratic political contentions that there was a conflict of interest in the Dixon-Yates case," Dirksen said. "It also disproves it in the matter of the Strauss nomination. The efforts made in both instances to show a conflict of interest have fallen of their own weight."

Strauss was chairman of the Atomic Energy Commission at the time it entered into a contract with the Dixon-Yates power interests for construction of a 107-million-dollar electric plant in West Memphis, Ark.

On the basis of its findings, the court of claims ordered the government to reimburse Dixon-Yates $1,887,545.36 for the costs it incurred before the contract was canceled.

Sharp Democratic opposition and a decision by the city of Memphis, Tenn., to build its own power plant caused President Eisenhower to cancel the contract in 1955, a year after it was signed.

Democrats who successfully fought confirmation of Strauss' nomination contended that Strauss was the principal promoter of the contract, which they called illegal. They challenged his statement that he did not know about Wenzell's dual role.
