

Divide the players into two lines facing each other, four feet apart. Using two bean bags, small pillows, or even a pair of stuffed toys, toss them across the space from one player to the other on the opposite side, zig-zagging all down the line. Don't skip anyone. The fun is in sending down one object first to represent the "fox" and immediately following it with the second object, which is the "hound." The idea is for the "hound" to overtake the "fox" before the end of the line is reached. If your gang is expert enough, send two "hounds" after the "fox."

Curly Candles
Briana Smith

Materials needed: Lightweight three-ply clothesline, paraffin, powdered tempera for coloring (if desired), and two empty cans—one at least as tall as the candles you will make and another larger in diameter. A frozen fruit-juice can and a coffee can would be fine.

Directions: Unravel the clothesline and each of the three strands will be curly. Cut the string about an inch longer than you want the candle to be. Melt paraffin in a double boiler. Mix in color. Pour paraffin into the tall, narrow can and place this inside second can. Fill second can with boiling water to keep paraffin soft.

Now start dipping string, allowing paraffin to cool several seconds between each dip. When your candle is large enough, set it in cold water to harden.
