The Bureau of Land Management announces plans to advertise for competitive bids timber from the tracts described below during the period July 1, 1959 to June 30, 1960. These tracts are in addition to the tracts included in the plan previously announced for the period January 1, 1959 to June 30, 1960. This timber is on lands managed by the Medford District. The volumes listed are preliminary estimates of the timber to be offered from certain portions of the sections described. The tracts are grouped according to the quarter of the calendar year in which they are probable that the timber will be offered for bids. Auctions will be held each month of the year at which time specific cruised volumes and minimum appraised prices will be published, as well as other information regarding the type of bidding, the exact time and place for receipt of bids, and other terms and conditions relating to the conduct of the auction and to timber sale contracts.

Temperatures Of Depths Provide Clues For Crew

By LEONARD ENGEL

ABOARD RESEARCH VESSEL VEMA (AP)—The men call it the hero board, because "you feel like a bloody hero after you've been out on it in bad weather."
It's a swaying, slender pivoted board that projects out over the side of the far-ranging Columbia University research ship Vema—two thirds of the way aft along the starboard side, and seven feet above the deck.

down to the howels of the ocean, miles below.
In the weeks I was on Vema, someone was out on the hero board almost every day, sending down and retrieving thermometers and bottles. Vema and three other research ships were cruising the Atlantic north of Puerto Rico, looking for a site for the Mohole, the miles-deep hole that is to be drilled through the earth's crust beneath the sea. Knowledge of water conditions is indispensable to the Mohole project.

Moreover, ocean research ships send down thermometers and bottles wherever they go. For water samples and temperature measurements provide clues to one of the most important and most mysterious regions on earth—the region below the surface of the sea.
(Oceans cover more than 70 per cent of the earth's surface and contain an almost inconceivably vast mass of water—over 320 million cubic miles of it. Hidden within this huge "inner space" is more life than exists on land—much of it still unknown.

As a result, ocean researchers have been able to work out the main patterns of ocean water flow. Warm water flows along the surface of the ocean from the equator to the poles. Cold water flows back again down below, near the bottom.

TODAY'S 2-MINUTE MYSTERY
THE CASE OF THE FORGETFUL SHERIFF
By Donald J. Sebel
Haledjunt dismounted from his little burro and limped after the other dudes bent upon corralling some western color.

"Them outlaws held up the bank at River Falls and got off with $12,000 in gold. The sheriff set out after 'em, but bein' new on the job, forgets to buckle on his shootin' irons.

"So a posse rides after the sheriff, 'seen' as he might need help. About a mile outa town, they hear gun play. When it stops, they ride up to this here spot. Stretched out dead as fish in a barrel is them five outlaws.

"The sheriff has the gold and a bad arm. Claimin' he only done his duty, he says the lookout spotted him and pumped two bullets into his left arm afore he can act. Then he gets ahold of the lookout's pearl-handled six-gun, and puts a shot plumb through the lookout's head.

"I guess they reckoned he was either one of the gang or the lie he told was an insult to their brains. Either case was cause for the rope in them days."
Haledjunt knew what the citizen said. Do you?

"The other four buckoes come ashootin', but the lawman drills 'em all in four seconds flat—two between the eyes and two in the heart.

"The leader of the posse tells the sheriff he can run for mayor. Then one of the citizens speaks up. The six outlaws is boothilled where they lay, and the posse conducts the sheriff back to town.

"Remember—the lookout killed two of a six-gun."
"You can't get seven bullets out of a six-gun."
"Grab the next stage out. If you missed this one, part of the five outlaws." and the sheriff then killed each two of the lookout fired two of a six-gun.

And Vema's biology trawl did bring back, off Central America, five specimens of a marine worm belonging to a family thought extinct for 300 million years.
