MOSCOW (UPI) — The American Exhibition here is in the middle of a chaotic last-minute scramble. Although scheduled to open Friday, the show still isn't finished.

Millions are clamoring for tickets, but so far none have been issued.

Loyalty Oath Vote Slated

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Senate votes today on a bill to repeal the loyalty oath requirement in the National Defense Education Act.

The measure faces a cross fire of amendments. Students receiving federal college loans, fellowships or other benefits now are required by law to file a non-Communist affidavit and to swear allegiance to the United States.

The Eisenhower administration has recommended repeal of the provision on the grounds that Communists would not hesitate to swear falsely they are loyal. Sen. John F. Kennedy (D-Mass.) argued in opening debate that the law now singles out needy college students and requires them to swear to their loyalty while other Americans are permitted to receive subsidies without doing this.

Mt. Rainier Record Set

SEATTLE (AP) — The story of a mad-dash climb up and down the slopes of Mt. Rainier was related here Wednesday by a 50-year-old Oregon rancher who began mountaineering only two years ago.

The alpine sprint was made in seven hours and 50 minutes, said John Day of Central Point. This cuts 3 1/2 hours from the record set in 1934 by Bill Butler, ranger at Mt. Rainier National Park.

Day, accompanied by Seattle guides Jim and Lou Whittaker, made the ascent in five hours and 20 minutes, 1 1/2 hours less than the time set by Rainier guide Dick McGowan on a rescue mission last year.

The climbers were clocked by Park rangers when they left Paradise at 1 a.m. Tuesday morning. They returned from the summit of the 14,160-foot mountain in time for breakfast.

Day said the trio encountered few bad crevasses and had "all the breaks." He admitted they came down the icy slopes at "almost a dead run" part of the way.

Day said he started climbing mountains in 1937 and in that year conquered six major Western Washington peaks.

Fair Attendance Log Continues

PORTLAND (AP) — Plagued by slumping attendance, the Oregon Centennial Exposition decided Wednesday to give free admission to children under 15 accompanied by their parents.

Only about 7,600 persons visited the exposition Wednesday — far under the 15,000 which officials say are needed each day to break even.

However, singer Harry Belafonte opens a three-day stand at the exposition tonight, and officials said they expected him to draw bumper crowds.

the exhibition isn't finished on rate. Some of the tickets were to be distributed through official organizations and the rest were to be put on sale at kiosks in the Soviet capital.

But the lack of tickets threatens a catastrophic crush similar to what might occur in the United States if no tickets were offered for a World Series until the first pitch.

Scalpers are standing by licking their chops, only they don't have any tickets yet either.

Soviet authorities planned to issue four million tickets to the exhibition at a ruble apiece—about 10 cents at the tourist exchange rate.

BIGGEST FAMILY FUN-TIME ATTRACTION IN OREGON'S HISTORY

An American Exhibition official said, "we had to let the Russians sell the tickets because it would have taken a staff of a hundred people and we couldn't do it." He added, however, "we have an agreement with the Soviets that, after three or four days, if we don't think enough crowds are coming in we can pull out of the ticket deal with them and make our own arrangements." There was little chance the exhibition would suffer from a lack of crowds. The reason that officials ruled out the sale of admissions at the gate was that it threatened to turn Sokolniki into a human pancake. Vice President Richard M. Nixon was scheduled to cut the red, white and blue ribbons signifying the fair's opening at 6 p.m. Moscow time. About 3,000 guests—the cream of Soviet officialdom, including Premier Nikita Khrushchev—were invited to the preview.
