Alaskan Craves Costly Peaches

SPARTANBURG, S.C. (AP)—A. D. Cudd, a businessman who's in Anchorage, Alaska, developed a craving for some home-grown peaches. So he telephoned Paul Black, a grower, Tuesday and asked him to ship a bushel. The peaches left by air express a few hours later. Shipping charges amounted to $69.88.

"Good—you're home early! We need somebody to settle our argument about the Middle East!"

Charitable Mayor Dies

BOWLING GREEN, Ky. (AP)—Mayor Clifford W. Lampkin once told his lieutenants: Watch for youngsters in worn-out shoes. Then he bought 500 pair for children who were shabbily shod. For six years his $333.33 monthly salary, plus part of his fortune from hotels, motels and real estate, went to boys clubs, children's parties, the needy, churches, missions, and civic improvements. Lampkin died of a heart condition Tuesday at the age of 74, just 12 hours before the Southern Kentucky Fair opened at Lampkin Park—which he created with a $10,000 payment for its 85 acres. "Bowling Green has been good to me," he once said. "I want to be good to it."

Owls Scholarly, But Plain Stupid, Says Researcher

NEW YORK (AP)—Despite their scholarly appearance, owls are just plain stupid, says Roger S. Payne, a graduate biologist at Cornell University. He stopped by the Bronx Zoo Monday, and his scorn for owls knew no bounds. "They are even dumber than chickens, if that's possible," he said. Payne bases his knowledge on two years of research with owls. He said that in his laboratory he has seen owls take off from their perches and crash into the rafters time and time again. He had one owl that had to be forced for six months. When it finally did eat it attacked the man who fed it. However, he had to admit that stupid as owls are, they seem to elude researchers pretty well. He has had considerable trouble getting enough to carry on his research.
