ST. LOUIS (AP) — Richard Beardslee, 14, was the hero of his neighborhood after rescuing another boy from drowning in a St. Louis County lake.

"Aw, it wasn't much," he said. "I was kinda afraid mom would be sore about me going swimming, though."

Richard had gone fishing with his brother, Don, and a friend, Paul Wunderlich. Then a boy began shouting for help.

"He had stomach cramps and was going down when I got him," Richard said. "The guy sure was pooped and woozy, so I sat on his back and started pumping his arms like I saw on TV. Pretty soon he felt better so I got on my clothes and rode my bike back home."

The boys didn't bother to learn the identity of the rescued lad.

Crash Of Boeing 707 Jet Probed By Investigators

CALVERTON, N.Y. (UPI)—Investigators tried today to determine why a huge, swept-wing American Airlines Boeing 707 jet passenger plane crashed here on a training mission, killing all five crew members.

Thirty-two investigators headed by David L. Thompson of the Civil Aeronautics Board joined with American Airlines probes in sifting through the charred wreckage of the five million dollar plane, which crashed and burned in a Long Island potato patch Saturday.

They also questioned eyewitnesses who saw the craft, the pride of this nation's commercial jet fleet, falter and plunge to earth about four miles from the Grumman Aircraft Corporation's Peconic River airfield where it was practicing "touch-and-go" landings.

It was the first fatal crash of the commercial version of the Boeing 707. Witnesses said the plane was flying at a height of about 500 feet when the right wing seemed to dip and the craft nosed to earth.

The victims were Capt. Harry C. Job, chief pilot instructor of Ridgewood, N.J., flight engineer Arthur Anderson, Jericho, N.Y.; Capt. Fred Jeberjahn, Los Angeles; Capt. William T. Swain, San Francisco, and flight engineer E. A. Freeman, Los Angeles. Job and Anderson, veteran jet airman, were serving as instructors for the other three.

Steven's mother arrived Monday after an overnight jet flight from New York. Gov. Rockefeller is due here Friday.

Mrs. Rockefeller's first evening here was spent at dinner with the Rasmussens. She knows no Norwegian, and the bride's family knows no English—so Anne Marie interpreted.

"A wonderful girl" said New York's first lady of her son's fiancée, who once worked as a maid in the Rockefeller's New York home, to improve her English.

The Rasmussens treated their future-in-laws to a lobster dinner. There were no cocktails. The hosts are teetotalers like many others in this Bible belt of southern Norway.

About six per cent of the working population of the United States is engaged in some form of selling sea winters.

The Lutheran Church has been selected for Steven Rockefeller's marriage to Anne Marie Rasmussen. The attendants have been chosen, and the reception is organized.

Saturday is the big day for joining the scion of Rockefeller millions with the blonde daughter of a simple, proud Norwegian family.

Mrs. Rockefeller, who comes from Philadelphia's Main Line, indicated she especially wants to see the church and then the reception hall.

The reception will take place at the Businessmen's Club in nearby Kristiansand, known as "The Club" or "The White House" to distinguish it from nearby buildings, weathered under North

ROSSIE BUMS RIDE
CALLINGTON, England (UPI)—Truck driver William Hill picked up an unexpected hitchhiker Saturday. He was driving along a lane, calm as you please, when a cow jumped over a hedge and landed smack on the hood of his truck. The hey-diddle-diddle cow rode along calmly for a short distance, then slid off and trotted away, none the worse for the trip.

School Chiefs Deny Claim

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (AP)—School officials deny a segregationist's claim of unrest and fighting between white pupils and a Negro at integrated Central High School. They said peace reigns at Central and at Hall, the other integrated high school.

Jefferson Thomas, 16-year-old senior and the lone Negro at Central, also denied being in any fights. But he said he was jeered and hooted at by a small group of white pupils as he left school Monday. It was the first such incident reported at the school, which has 1,200 white pupils.

Three Negro girls at Hall High have had no trouble.

Ted L. Lamb, school board secretary, said School Superintendent Terrell E. Powell had assured him no disciplinary problems had arisen in the schools.

The Rev. Wesley Pruden charged in a telegram to Little Rock's Mayor Werner Knoop and the city Board of Directors that unrest permeated Central, and that fights had occurred between Thomas and white pupils.

The minister is past president of the segregationist Capital Citizens Council.

Negro Cleric Raps Split

DALLAS, Tex. (AP)—Christian churches "can no longer permit themselves to be split along racial lines and to suffer from schizophrenia," a Negro church leader said here Monday night.

The Rev. John R. Compton, Cincinnati, Ohio, told the National Christian Missionary Convention annual assembly "lack of complete integration in the church denies the unity we have in Jesus Christ."

Dr. Compton, minister of Cincinnati's Wehrman Avenue Christian Church, is president of the convention which represents more than 500 Negro congregations of the Christian Churches (Disciples of Christ) in 27 states.

Dr. Compton said the ancient church was multiracial and Christ prayed that the church "might be one."

Labor Controls Slash Eyed By Union Chiefs

FOREST PARK, Pa. (AP)—AFL-CIO chiefs mapped plans today to try to get Congress to cut from Senate and House labor control bills the provisions to which organized labor objects most.

The differing bills passed by the two houses are now before a joint conference committee. The union leaders expressed dislike for both, but held some hope that the conference group might rewrite a bill to salvage what organized labor considers the better features of each.

That hope obviously ran counter to the mood of many Congress members pushing for a bill they consider strong enough to control racketeering and other abuses shown by Senate investigations in a segment of labor-management relations.

The AFL-CIO leaders are attending executive council sessions in this Pocono Mountain resort area. They still are trying to figure the 229-201 House vote last week that upset House leadership plans and put over a labor control bill personally endorsed by President Eisenhower. It was the measure least desired by union leaders, who had criticized as too severe the much milder version passed earlier by the Senate.

In formal actions, the executive council pledged all-out support for the striking Steel Workers Union and decided to reverse organized labor's six-year expulsion of the International Longshoremen's Assn. on corruption charges.

The council declared that the steel strike is a symptom of a business attempt to "reverse the whole pattern of labor relations in industrial America."

The 60,000-member ILA was expelled from the former AFL in 1953 on grounds it was dominated by hoodlums and engaged in racketeer practices.

The AFL-CIO Council, deciding that the ILA has now substantially corrected the alleged abuses, voted to recommend that the federation convention meeting next month in San Francisco accept the ILA back in the body of organized labor.

The council attached to its reinstatement resolution a number of conditions, including the right of the council to suspend the union again by majority vote during the next two years if it should return to its erring ways.

Much of the talk centered on the role of House Speaker Sam Rayburn (D-Tex.). Some took the view that Rayburn may have lost his grip as a Democratic leader while others wondered aloud whether he had deliberately let them down.

It was being pointed out frequently in the post-mortem discussions that a total of 95 Democrats including 84 from Southern states voted for the tougher Eisenhower-endorsed bill. Another point mentioned was that only four members of the House delegation from Rayburn's home state of Texas voted labor's way.
