

Commerce Chamber Heads Hear New Tourist Plan

A proposed plan, which has been designed to lengthen the stay of tourists within the state, was presented recently to the members of the Oregon Chamber Executive Board.

The points made in the plan included that Oregon's invitational advertising through national magazines and newspapers is more effective than the major competing areas and that there is an increase of tourists visiting the state, leading to an increase in income. However, these visitors are staying within the state a shorter period of time.

the local contact level, the following proposals were made: Chambers will have meetings to which influence groups will be invited. These groups will plan the "35 Million for One Club" which relates to the additional revenue received if all tourists remained one extra day in Oregon.

Membership in the club will be by attendance at a Tourist Host School. There will also be a film for presentation to groups on the tourist industry here, and the newspapers, radio stations and television stations will carry materials on the same subject.

Chambers of commerce will also receive cards with space provided for the naming of local sites of interest.

A bi-monthly or monthly news bulletin possibly will be published during seasons of tourist activity within the state. This entire proposal will be submitted in the early fall to the Travel Information Division Advisory Committee, and upon their final approval, it will be presented at the fall conference of the Oregon chamber executives.

Accusations Backwash Rumbles In Wake Of Bill

WASHINGTON (AP)—A new backwash of accusations rumbled today in the wake of House-passed labor legislation.

Fighting mad were: 1. The AFL-CIO Executive Council. It charged in a resolution that "the vote against labor last week was part of a legislative package deal between Southern Democrats and Northern Republicans. America must not tolerate such cynical political maneuvering." It claimed there was a swap to pass strict labor controls and kill off civil rights legislation.

2. James B. Carey, AFL-CIO vice president. In sharp letters to House members who voted for the measure he called vindictive, he wrote: "We shall do all in our power to prove to the working men and women in your district that you have cast your lot against them and they should therefore take appropriate action at the ballot box."

3. Many House members who got Carey's letters. Their retorts including "attempt at political blackmail" and "a cheap effort at intimidation."

Community Loses Birds

MOUNT VERNON, N.Y. (AP)—Otto Standke moved in, and the starlings moved out. All of which makes a bird of a story.

For 10 years, residents of this area have been trying to get rid of the starlings, that appear by the thousands in August and mess up the neighborhood. All efforts failed — including fire hoses, battleship searchlights, skyrockets and dishpan pounding.

There was a big, hushed crowd of humans at twilight Thursday night when Standke, the starling starter, appeared. Out of a battered gray box about the size of a plumber's tool kit the 71-year-old Standke fished out two metal flappers and a metal chime. He hung the chime around his neck and put the flappers on his hands.

Alternately banging the flappers and sounding the chime, Standke marched around the area for 45 minutes. At first the starlings, like the spectators, just stood around and listened. Then the winged villains took off, covey after covey.

Standke said he can't say why the noise he makes causes starlings to take it on the lam.

He invented his contraption, he said, after his home town of Great Bend, Kan., spent $1,500 for aluminum owls, putting them in the trees to scare the birds. The starlings just roosted on them.

Harvard College, opened in 1836, was named for John Harvard, a young cleric in Charlestown, Massachusetts. Harvard died in 1638 and left his entire library and half of his other property to the struggling new institution.

Negro Home Vigil Kept

CLEVELAND (AP)—A policeman kept watch overnight after a gang of boys Thursday night smashed windows in a house bought by a Negro family in an all-white neighborhood.

The purchaser, postal employee Harry McCarthy, has not yet moved into the house, which is vacant.

The gang came by bicycles, and a resident of the area, Abbie Bloom, said there were about 20 of them, 12 to 17 years old. Mrs. Bloom who called police, thought they came from another neighborhood.

The vandals smashed at least eight windows. They pulled drapes from a living room window onto the porch and dragged venting blinds to the lawn.

Israel To Be Next Stop For American Friends Aide

By RUTH KING

Israel is the next stop for Elsie Dickert who some time ago came back from Alaska and an exciting period to work on the Klamath Indian Reservation with headquarters at the Indian Agency.

During the time she was here she spoke before members of the Klamath Falls Soroptimist Club, recalling some hair-raising experiences in tundra-flying while visiting Eskimo families in out of the way places in the northernmost tip of that country, then U.S. territory.

She leaves soon for Acre on the Mediterranean, 30 minutes from Haifa. She will serve under the American Friends Service and will be in charge of a nursery school and health clinic with a nurse.

She will work closely with an Arabian mayor and hopes to play a part in promoting mutual understanding and faith between the Arabs and the Jews.

Word of her new world travels was sent by Elsie Dickert to Mrs. Emil (Edna) Albrecht, past president and member of the local Soroptimist Club. Enclosed in the letter was a check for Soroptimist dues in the club for one year.

Mrs. Dickert's travels began with a career as a psychiatric case worker for the American Red Cross Army Service which took her to various camps in the United States, later to Kent State University where she taught.

She sought to return to the Red Cross psychiatric field following the death of her husband but changing qualifications in the age bracket prevented it.

She learned that there was an opening in the United States Bureau of Indian Affairs, took the civil service examination, got by without fudging on her age and was sent to Alaska.

With bush pilots she flew in all kinds of weather, under all kinds of conditions, visiting all families in that far region who needed medical aid and other help. She skimmed over rough water in walrus hide boats and experienced numerous narrow escapes from death.

Eventually she came back to the United States and to her assignment on the Klamath Indian Reservation. From here she went briefly to an Indian reservation in Arizona.

Mrs. Dickert has had a book of poems published, does professional work in metals and is an accomplished musician and photographer.
