

Looking At Babies Reward For Mother Found Innocent

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (AP)— "We got home, woke the babies up and looked at them." A joyful Mrs. Charles Anderson said that was her first reward for acquittal on charges of accused pedophile.

The attractive blonde, a 35-year-old mother of three, was acquitted Friday night after a Federal Court jury deliberated one hour and 30 minutes.

"We haven't had a chance to look at the children for more than a few minutes all this week," she said. "Looking at them now will be my celebration."

Mrs. Anderson said she and her husband spent Thursday night at a hotel because she couldn't bear to tell the children goodbye.

Asked about future plans, she answered:

"Say if they and be quiet. I'm going to try to be the best a few days."

She said the jury "were wonderful" and added, "I intend to visit each of them and thank them but first I have to settle down."

The verdict free away the controversy she maintained through the five-day trial.

After securing down her face, she stood up, turned to her husband and said: "Let's call Father so we can go home."

Thank, 3, is the oldest of her three children.

"Thank you, thank you," she said the jurors as they filed past.

her out of the courtroom.

Mrs. Anderson broke down momentarily but upon regaining her composure turned to her husband and said:

"You all right. For the first time in a year and a half I'm all right."

Then to no one in particular she said:

"This easiest defendant in the world is a human being too."

This apparently was a reference to U.S. Atty. W. L. Longshore's remarks to the jury that "I think she's the easiest defendant charged with a serious crime I've ever seen in a courtroom."

Later Anderson asked her about the child, stating she maintained through most of the five-day trial:

"I was fighting tears only when they started talking about my children," she recalled.

"We'll go home now," she said. "We'll have a party with our children."

Mrs. Anderson, wife of an insurance executive, was charged with the during non-hour holdups at two suburban shopping and loan offices last year.

The first office was robbed of $265, the second of $3,313 three months later.

Mrs. Anderson was arrested at her suburban home May 26, 1958—one week after the second hold-up. Convicted at 3:43 p.m. she would have brought sentences in 30 days if present and fines up to $20,000.

The government contended she needed the money to make up a shortage at an insurance company in Atlanta where she formerly worked.

She said she took up the short-ly five days after the first robbery—with $1,000 her father had saved for her.

Four employees of the loan association offices identified her as the woman who robbed them.

The defense emphasized that Mrs. Anderson didn't enter at all for the time of the first robbery but was able to enter her movements at the time of the second.

"It was robbery then is a matter but in all, and in the other, there is an alibi but no money," said Herbert Parsons, her attorney. "That is not the way a criminal operates."

Lake County Stockgrowers View Lower Prices Ahead

LAKEVIEW — "It's time for a consolidation of gains," Marion Thomas, Oregon State College economist, stated in speaking to Lake County cattlemen assembled for the annual meeting of the Lake County Stockgrowers Association in Lakeview Thursday afternoon.

Thomas' theme was based on the statement, "It's Been Too Good to Last." In explanation, he discussed the downward trend in the cattle market as compared with prices of the last two years. While next year will not be a bad year, he said, prices will not be as high as they have been and the stockgrowers should use all the tools at their command now to determine his own position and future prospects, even to the point of getting out of the business if the situation demands it. It is a good time, he said, for cattlemen to sell their cattle at good prices and in a few years to turn the dollars back into dollars when the prices are lower.

The high prices have in a way been detrimental to the industry, Thomas went on to say. They have encouraged too many people to get into the industry that should not be in it, and have also encouraged more imports from areas that can produce more cheaply. He pointed out that it is important to keep track of feed and weather conditions all over the nation, that the Northwest is small compared to cattle numbers in the Great Plains and the Southwest and these should be watched as a barometer of the national situation. There has been a steady shift to cattle in the Deep South. Cows and chicken prices should also be watched as they could play a determining factor in the beef situation.

On the bright side of the picture is the population increase in the West Coast area, particularly California, as it gives us a good market, he said. During a "hot war" wages will remain up and more money will be in circulation. The fact that people like beef and will continue to buy it is a good factor for the cattle industry outlook.

Another speaker in the program was Dr. J. C. Miller, head of the animal husbandry department at Oregon State College, who told of new advances in livestock production.

New officers elected during the afternoon were Erwin "Frosty" Abramson, president; Glenn Harvey, first vice president, and Con Flynn, second vice president. Continuing in their positions are Oris Judd, secretary, and Herbert Pol-lard, treasurer.

The Lake County Cow Belles served a beef stew luncheon to the public at noon. In the evening approximately 80 association members and guests gathered for a steak dinner at Van's.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 17 (AP)—Law of the governing shift by the Senate today is a much greater threat than Soviet advances in outer space, Sen. Lyndon B. Johnson (D-Tex.) says.

The Senate majority leader said Sunday. "The real threat to the world space isn't the Soviet Union, it's the lack of a consistent and new military structure. It comes from the fact that we have left behind in what has been an American specialty, from the beginning—space."
