JANET OWENS

Local Girl Wins Trip

Janet Owens of Lindley Heights has been rewarded with an expense-paid trip to the 38th National 4-H Club Congress in Chicago, November 28 to December 3. It has been announced by Burton Hutton, State 4-H Club leader, Oregon State College. Her project was food preparation. Twenty two other outstanding Oregon 4-H Club members have been rewarded with the trip, also.

Janet is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Chester Owens. She has had seven years of 4-H work and has completed 19 4-H projects. At present, Janet is attending Southern Oregon College as a freshman.

Eleven more Oregon 4-H'ers and one former 4-H Club member also were named winners in statewide competition in a national 4-H awards judging program. Fountain pen sets, wrist watches, savings bonds, certificates of achievement or plaques will be awarded these additional state winners. Some of these also may receive trips to Club Congress next month.

Selection of winners is based on youth participation in 4-H projects and activities, leadership shown in club, community, church and school, and growth shown in personal development during their 4-H careers.

Hutton noted that 150 4-H records representing all counties were submitted and judged before the top 34 records were chosen for state recognition.

Four of the trip winners were chosen at this year's State Fair. National 4-H Club Congress is financed by representative business firms and individuals operating through the National Committee on Boys and Girls Club Work with headquarters in Chicago.

Gas Import Views Told

WASHINGTON (AP)—An officer of Pacific Gas & Electric Company said Monday he would recommend his companies and its subsidiaries carry out alone, if necessary, a project to import Canadian gas. James S. Moulton, vice president of PG & E and the Pacific Gas Transmission Company, was asked at a Power Commission hearing what would happen if the commission granted the PGT permit but denied related applications of Pacific Northwest Pipeline Corp. and Montana Power Company.

PGT proposes to build a pipeline from the Canadian border to the California-Oregon boundary to deliver 400 million cubic feet of gas daily to PG & E.

The pipeline also would transport an additional 130 million cubic feet daily for delivery to Pacific Northwest.

Another PG & E subsidiary in Canada would buy the gas for delivery to California, plus another 30 million cubic feet daily for ultimate resale to Montana Power Company.

Moulton said he could not predict what action his company's directors would take if the Pacific Northwest and Montana applications were denied, but he would recommend that the permit be accepted.

In that event, he said, there would be excess capacity in the pipeline that could be used to supply gas to Sand Point, Idaho, Klamath Falls and Bend, Oregon, and other communities along the proposed route of the line.

GRANGE NEWS

BOOSTER NIGHT
NEW PINE CREEK—About 135 persons agreed that the recent Booster Night at Eastside Grange seemed like oldtimes. Ohyl Cundiff, worthy chaplain, returned thanks before supper was served at 7:30. After the meal, get-acquainted games were played with the prize going to Mrs. Barbara Baker.

State Grange Deputy Carl J. Means was speaker for the program. He drew a clear, composite picture of the work and purpose of the grange in every community. He gave its history from the time right after the Civil War when Founder Kelly, a Mason, and William Sanders traveled through the South, bent on the re-establishment of good feeling between the agricultural population of the North and South.

The two men, along with five other friends, were so elated with the concurrence of opinion uncovered—namely that a good farmers' fraternal order should be established, that they returned to New York in 1888 and founded the first grange in that state, which remains active today.

Means continued the history of the grange by saying that soon 18 had been formed in the state of New York. Minnesota was first to form a State Grange. The grange was the only farm fraternity in the world and the movement spread rapidly until every state in the union has a State Grange.

Among some of the worthwhile things accomplished, Means said, are free rural mail delivery, parcel post, state agriculture colleges, rural electrification, among many others.

At present, he said, the State Grange is working on the regulation to have shoes labeled so the buyer may know exactly what the shoe is made of and what he is buying.

In Washington cheaper automobile insurance is being driven for and Idaho has a life insurance program in effect. Means said all is aimed to give Grangers the most for their money.

The speaker also mentioned that the Centennial Farmstead exhibit at the state fair, sponsored by the State Grange, was such an outstanding success that it has been held over for another year.

A commercial skit advertising the Grange Bazaar, October 24, was presented by Terry Butler and Carrol Hinton; Alice Allen gave her version of Martha Ray, "Calling the Butcher," and a song was done in the style of the McGuire sisters by Dianne Cundiff and Charlene Aldridge.

Clem Mulkey, Home Ec chairman, thanked the Valley Falls Grange for its large visitation group for Booster Night and announced the grange hard time party had been canceled. Instead the Eastside members had accepted an invitation from the Valley Falls Grange members to attend their meeting.

Dancing until 11:30 p.m. followed the program.

GIVE REFUGEE REPORT
BERLIN (UPI)—The West Berlin City Council today reported that 1,212 refugees from the Soviet Zone crossed into West Berlin last week. About 25 per cent of the refugees were unmarried youths, it said.

Expert Warns United States

WASHINGTON (AP)—Wernher von Braun said today that unless America steps up its pace in the space race "I suspect we will have to pass Russian customs when we finally reach the moon."

Von Braun, chief scientist at the Army's Ballistic Missile Agency at Huntsville, Ala., predicted further: "We may expect to hear a Russian accented voice coming from an artificial inhabited satellite roaming our American skies."

He spoke at a breakfast meeting of the National Assn. of Food Chains.

"I do not believe the American people will accept second place. Yet it is painfully clear that the other fellow is building up a momentum that will enable him to carry out even more astonishing experiments shortly," he said.

Von Braun said he is convinced that "it would definitely speed up our national space program if we could have a little more program stability and confidence in our proved rocket teams, and a little less official re-evaluations and justifications."

"As a nation," he said, "we are also making a fundamental mistake if we consider this space business as nothing but an exciting if silly race between rival missile teams or a weightlifting contest between rocket engineers and scientists."

HOPPING CARGO

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)— Things were hopping Monday at San Francisco International Airport. Twenty-six kangaroos arrived from Australia as gifts for the hometowns of 13 newboys who visited Australia last year.

STEEL EMERGENCY

WELLS, Nev. (UPI)—The Union Pacific Railroad told town officials it couldn't replace the outdoor privy with inside plumbing at its station because of the steel shortage.

The City Council warned the railroad it would face a misdemeanor charge if it didn't, regardless of the steel strike.

Lad Subdues 4th Rattler

"Rattlesnake Harry" he may become known as. Harry Drew, 14, 623 North Ninth Street, student at Fremont Junior High School, says he has no particular interest in snakes, but he seems to be bumping into them at fairly regular intervals.

He has three grown snakes to his credit, having killed the last one near Captain Jack's monument when he was 11 years old. In his latest encounter with the reptiles, last Thursday, he brought the critter in alive.

Harry's buddy and next-door neighbor, 11-year-old Terry Klawitter, informed his friend that a snake was coiled between the screen and glass of a basement window in Harry's home.

Harry attacked the problem from inside and knocked the small reptile to the basement floor, where it came up fighting. He said it was only a baby snake, but it coiled and struck at him several times before he subdued it with a large piece of cardboard and popped it into a bottle.

Friend Terry took the catch to Fairview School where his science teacher confirmed it to be a young rattler and administered a painless shot of gas, before preserving it for the boys in a bottle of pickling fluid.

Harry is keeping an eye out for a possible mother rattlesnake in the vicinity with a family of brothers and sisters of the deceased.
