SOCIETY
By HELEN BECHEN

FAR AWAY in Norway lives this chubby little boy whose name is Kjell Arne Johanssen, and unlike most youngsters Kjell has 18 mothers, all members of the Postal Carriers Auxiliary of Klamath Falls. His adoption by the women came after Mrs. Don Parks, president of the club, returned from a three month visit in Norway this summer where she met Kjell who lives with his grandparents since the death of his mother. His father lives in Sweden. The auxiliary members are busy planning boxes of clothing and special birthday and Christmas boxes for the little fellow. Proceeds from a rummage sale on October 24 will assist in these plans as well as the club's other project of helping with Christmas gifts for the Klamath Falls Nursing Home.

The telemark Arbeiderblad newspaper of Skien, Norway, was so impressed with the story of Kjell's good fortune that it published a front page story to urge women's groups in Norway to follow the pattern set by the Postal Carriers Auxiliary in this city.

Malin Council Holds Meet

MALIN—An ordinance was introduced at the recent city council meeting prohibiting the keeping of livestock or poultry in the city of Malin. Exceptions are those who have livestock on a pasture or land of one or more acres, or livestock being driven or moved over the streets of the city. The proposed ordinance will be acted upon at the November meeting of the council.

The council passed an ordinance vacating the alley in block 61. Rural and city firemen were present to discuss the repeater station on Haymaker Mountain. Each city in the area is being asked to share the expense of the station. No decision was made.

All city officers and councilmen were present except Vac. Kalina and Paul McCulley. The Venus flytrap plant is "ninged" in the middle, enabling it to close tightly around vulnerable insects and devour them.
