

Radio Report Being Jammed By Russians

WASHINGTON (AP)—Washington monitors reported today the Soviets apparently have turned on their radio jammers against the Voice of America's broadcasts of the Langelie affair.

Russell A. Langelie is the U.S. diplomat whom the Reds kicked out of the Soviet Union last weekend, saying they caught him in spy work. The United States has denied the spy accusations.

Langelie, who had been top security officer at the American Embassy in Moscow, is now on his way back to Washington with his family amid protests and counter-protests between the two capitals.

Soviet jamming of the Voice of America's Russian-language programs stopped for the first time in a decade when Premier Nikita Khrushchev visited the United States last month. It has been sporadic since.

The story was published today for the first time in the Soviet Union, in a brief account by the Soviet news agency Tass. It briefly outlined the charges against Langelie and made no mention of the U.S. version of the incident.

The U.S. version is that Langelie was seized last Friday by five Soviets in civilian clothes as he alighted from a bus near the embassy which took him to a nearby building, and questioned and threatened him for several hours. "They also tried unsuccessfully to get him to act as a spy for the Soviet Union."

Langelie, on his way back to Washington, said in Amsterdam Monday night he got "pretty rough treatment" from the Soviets. He didn't elaborate.

The version of the incident reported by Soviet newspaper sources is that passengers on the bus seized two men after one handed the other a large package that appeared to contain money. Authorities found one man, a Soviet citizen, had a package containing 20,000 rubles (about $5,000) and material for making secret inks. The other, Langelie, voluntarily handed over a notebook containing secret data written in invisible ink.

Stay Slim - Live Longer

NEW YORK (AP)—If you're 15 to 20 pounds overweight, you are likely to live longer than people of average weight—and a lot longer than people who are overweight.

This was one of the conclusions of a four-year study by the Society of Actuaries which Monday issued the first insurance industry report of its kind in 30 years.

The survey also developed new average weight charts to replace those they have been used in doctors' offices and on weighing machines since 1929. The charts indicate men are considerably heavier than they used to be and women more slender.

The study cost 2 1/2 million dollars. It involved five million Americans.

Other findings of the study: Women are healthier than men. Women carry high blood pressure and additional weight with less risk.

Extreme underweight—40 pounds or so below average—sometimes carries a higher mortality rate than overweight.

Overweight persons who reduce gain in life expectancy as long as they keep their weight down.

The mortality rate for women has declined much more than for men.

There is some advantage in slight overweight for teen-agers.

Health Code Hearing Set

The public is invited to participate in a hearing in Klamath Falls November 18 to debate the health code portion of the state's new migrant labor law.

The hearing, to be conducted from 1 to 4 p.m. in the county courthouse, will give farmers and others interested a chance to testify, the State Board of Health announced.

The farm migrant labor act was passed by the State Legislature this year and became law when signed by the governor several months ago. But it won't become fully in effect until final acceptance of the health code and employment of staff, the board said.

Included in the proposed code are standards for farm labor camps covering shelter, food service, water supply, toilet facilities, refuse disposal and rodent, insect and disease control.

Other hearings are scheduled at Gresham, Hood River, Salem, Hillsboro, Medford, Redmond, The Dalles, Pendleton, Ontario and Portland.

UF Burro-Mascot, Mother To Be Given Away Saturday

UFie, the little burro-mascot of the 1960 United Fund-Red Cross campaign, will go to some lucky new owner Saturday at the Merrill Spud Festival.

Though contributions to UFie's "final roundup" were disappointing, Rex Dye, UF executive secretary, says he is sure donations will start rolling in as soon as a few questions are cleared up in people's minds.

The big question which apparently has stopped people from contributing, Dye said, is "what to do with UFie if one's name is drawn Saturday noon?" The UF official went on to point out that the question has many answers.

First, if UFie's new owner lives in the country or on a large suburban property, there's no problem, Dye said, because UFie and her mother would be economical to feed, easy to care for, a lot of fun for the youngsters and just the ticket for packing in supplies on wilderness area camping, hunting or fishing trips.

"On the surface," Dye continued, "the apartment or city dweller who suddenly finds himself the owner of two burros, does have a problem, but not for long. Burros are worth money—quite a bit of money—and no one would have any trouble finding a ready market for UFie and her mother, Jenny D."

Dye added that if need be, he would give the winner a check for $100 for the pair then auction the animals for benefit of the United Fund. "But of course the happiest solution," Dye said, "would be for some boy or girl who can keep UFie and Jenny D to win them. However, I did want people to know that if the winner couldn't keep UFie and Jenny D, they undoubtedly could be sold right on the spot."

Contributions to UFie's last roundup can be made in some 40 local business establishments that are designated by "UFie Roundup" signs in the windows. By making a contribution a person is entitled to enter his name for the drawing which will take place in Merrill during the Potato Festival.

Dye said he hopes the last roundup will take the United Fund campaign the last five per cent of the way to its $132,328 goal.
