

Society

By Helen Bechen

Herald and News

Klamath Falls, Oregon

Sunday, November 1, 1959

RUSTLING THROUGH brightly colored fallen autumn leaves, in the spooky just before dark time, marched the parade of witches, goblins, black cats and pumpkins turned Jack-o-lanterns. It was Halloween and happy youngsters made their yearly trick or treat calls at the neighborhood homes.

Photographers Don Kettler and Sgt. Charles Bennett found a few of the small fry ready before the witching hour and had them pose for pictures. No one recognized the characters in the top photo as Oliver and Bradley Spires, sons of Mr. and Mrs. Wallace Spires, who were mighty proud of their costumes sent by grandma from New York. The three center pictures show Russell, left, Kathleen and David, right, children of Sgt. and Mrs. Howard Simmons of Falcon Heights. The children of Mr. and Mrs. Ben Kerns are pictured below and are identified in the left picture, Bengie, left, Marcia, and Tommy holding little Kristin Mia.

