Candlestick Park Slowly Shapes Up

By OSCAR FRALEY
SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Sitting on a thumb of land jutting out into San Francisco Bay, a huge concrete doughnut is slowly shaping up today as the new home of the baseball Giants.

mer-day the odor should be even worse than a game against the Phillies.
There is some resentment in San Francisco because the city did not even consult with football interests, such as the professional San Francisco 49'ers who now play in Kezar Stadium, and come up with an all-purpose stadium. If they had, the stadium could have been put to use almost on a year-round basis instead of being constructed solely for 77 home baseball games.

Two Candlestick Theories
There are two theories as to how this was named Candlestick. One is that the peninsula is shaped like a candle. The other is that in this section there once was a campaign among the residents to put candlesticks in their windows as a guide to ships and boats out in the oft-fog shrouded bay.

However, and in this case that becomes a huge word, there are too few streets leading in and out of this playground peninsula. In addition, there is the fact that not too far away is the point of destination of the city's vast sewage system. Even on crisp, cool days, there is a far from pleasing aroma noticeable and even the hottest of the "fors" admits that on a blazing sun-

J. Pittman, Watson Lead In Lafayette

LAFAYETTE, La. (AP) — Two golfers who have tasted little of victory's nectar led the way into today's second round of the $10,000 Lafayette Open. But their margin was such that it could easily vanish by sundown.

Young Jerry Pittman of Tulsa, Okla., 22-year-old one-time Texas collegiate golf king, and veteran Bob Watson, 36-year-old home professional from Ardley-on-Hudson, N.Y., each posted 66 Thursday to share first-round honors.

Their showings clipped five strokes off par over the 6,700-yard Oakbourne Country Club course that took a real beating. No less than 25 of the 138 entries posted scores better than the regulation 71.

Billy Maxwell of Odessa, Tex., one of the big money winners of this year's tour, and hard-luck Walker Inman of Eglin Air Force Base, Fla., trailed the top pair at 67, while three others were another stroke back at 68.

Between them, Pittman and Watson had won about $2,000 this year. By contrast, Maxwell has won about $20,000, although he has yet to enter the winner's circle of the 1958 tour.

Pittman, who was the Southwest Conference golf champ while at Southern Methodist in 1957, came through with a real flair to tie for the lead. He holed a chip shot from 60-feet away on the 18th green.

Watson's finish was not so spectacular. He birdied six holes and had a bogey on only one.
Watson, who has been away from the tour for about four months, shows earnings of $1,400 this year, and $1,100 of that came from a sixth-place finish at Hartford, Conn. Pittman, playing in only his 11th tournament, has earned a meager $630.

LSU Mentor Denies Blaming Officials For Loss To Vols

By PAUL F. DIETZEL
Head Coach
Louisiana State University
(Written for UPI)
BATON ROUGE, La. (UPI) — A true champion is always a champion, even in defeat.

Each time two teams get squared away at each other, one of them is bound to lose (except in the case of a tie). It's one thing to win like a champion but it is even more important to lose like a champion. No one can make you enjoy losing but you certainly have to be man enough to accept it.

Personally, I detest a cry-baby. By a cry-baby, I mean the fellow who tries to make excuses for why he lost.

Most coaches try to guard their post-game statements so that they cannot be misconstrued to the embarrassment of their squad, or their institution. In my own case, I have done my best to avoid statements that are a source of embarrassment to anyone.

Sometimes it just doesn't seem to work. It is amazing how the same facts seen or heard by different people can be interpreted so completely differently. It's sort of like the blind man who examined an elephant for the first time. The one who encountered his trunk said the elephant was like a huge snake but the one who had felt the elephant's side argued that the animal was huge and flat like a great wall.

To be more specific, this past week has been a real case in point. My statements to the press after the Tennessee game were certainly as complimentary as were possible. Frankly, I felt no excuse was necessary. I had lost and that was that.

Two days after the game, I appeared on my weekly TV quarterback club (it is carried only locally). The statements I made were of exactly the same nature but most of the time was spent discussing our up-and-going opponent after I had thanked the 10,000 Louisiana fans for meeting our plane upon the return trip from Tennessee.

We generally repeat a short film clip which shows the scoring drives of both teams. I always narrate this film clip and in passing I mentioned that the officials had "missed" a call on Tennessee's drive but quickly added that it was just a miss; it was over with, and we'd already forgotten the game because we were in preparation for our Mississippi State game.

The next morning I was greeted by a wire service story (carried throughout the U.S.) stating in headings that I charged the officials with some poor calls! What a shock!

While it is true that officials are human and subject to error, the games we have lost since I have been at LSU, we have lost ourselves.

Baseball Beef Getting Hot, Shea Boiling

NEW YORK (UPI)—Baseball's cold war today erupted into a hot controversy between the major leagues and the new Continental circuit.

William A. Shea, founder of the Continental League, opened the shooting battle by charging that the withdrawal of the Dallas-Fort Worth application for a franchise from the newly-organized loop is "part of the program of the American League and baseball to harass us."

Shea further alleged that millionaire contractor J. W. Bateson took the Texas franchise application out of the area because Bateson "has been sold by someone on the idea that he has a chance of getting into the American League."

"We are sorry he has been so gullible," Shea said. "Dallas has no more chance of getting into the American League than Sioux City has."

Bateson, who has been in baseball only two years as operator of the Dallas franchise in the Texas League and then in the American Association, denied that any major league interests had influenced his decisions.

"The only selling done," said Bateson, "was by the people of Dallas and Fort Worth. They sold me the idea that there wasn't enough enthusiasm to insure success."

Bateson said he didn't know whether the Dallas-Fort Worth section would ever get into the established major leagues, but "I'll certainly try to keep my hands in baseball until that day comes."

"I tried, and tried hard," he said, to find someone interested in the Continental League. "Not a person in Fort Worth offered to put a dime into the venture and we couldn't find any substantial financial backing in Dallas."

The Dallas-Fort Worth franchise had been touted as an addition of the Continental League's five founding cities — New York, Toronto, Denver, Houston and Minneapolis-St. Paul.

New York already appropriated $170,000 to investigate the building possibilities of a 30,000-seat stadium for that city's team in the Continental League.

Navy To Revise Recruit Program
ANNAPOLIS, Md. (AP) — Navy plans to revise its football recruiting program and shift the emphasis from quantity to quality, Asst. Athletic Director E. E. (Rip) Miller said Thursday night.

"We've got to cut down on the number of boys we've been working on and concentrate harder on those top level ones we know can make the grade scholastically as well as athletically," said Miller, who directs Navy's recruiting program.

The Middies have a 3-4-1 record so far in Wayne Hardin's first year as head coach. They have games remaining with George Washington and Army.
