Newspaper Strike In Second Week

PORTLAND (AP)—A strike against The Oregonian and Journal, Portland's two daily newspapers, headed into its second week today and there was no sign of any letup.

There was no newspaper this morning for morning subscribers of The Oregonian, but the newspapers planned to publish a combined edition again through the day.

The paper was expected to be 40 pages—the same as that printed Sunday. The management of the combined edition said they expected to meet 520,000 copies, the full circulation of both.

The number of copies of the Sunday paper printed was placed at 520,000 by the newspaper.

The strike started last Tuesday when steno typists walked off the job. Other union employes honored the picket lines.

Issues were defined as whether or not the foremen should belong to the union and the method of hiring substitutes.

Another issue centered around a new machine expected sometime after next year that would use one man instead of the four now required.

The union asked that the issue of the new machine be left until it arrives, but management wanted it negotiated now.

Supervisory, executive and non-union employes have been putting out the combined newspaper since the strike started.

Police Foil Murder Plan

PORTLAND (AP)—An escapee from the State Hospital at Salem responsible for a 1958 fireworks warehouse explosion here was captured Sunday en route to slay a woman who turned him in, sheriff's deputies said.

Multnomah County Deputies Don Wright and Doug Wood took Richard George Wagner, 21, of Milwaukie into custody southeast of Portland as he was loitering about parked cars.

Wagner, the deputies said, claimed he was going to find and kill the woman who identified him as being near the scene of the explosion.

He later confessed causing the explosion July 5, 1958 in southeast Portland. It killed a 4-year-old girl, Mary Beth Howe; resulted in 26 hospitalized, and damaged some 300 homes.

Wright and Wood said they took from him a piece of glass the size of a half dollar he told them he was planning to use to cut the woman's throat.

The two deputies said they found this note in his pocket: "Dear Smith Gary (the name they said he was using): I know you killed that 4-year-old and old woman and hurt 25 others. I know the woman turned you in, so let's get her and her son too. Richard Wagner is guilty for murder."

Wagner was on a week's leave from the mental institution at Salem at the time of the explosion. About two months later he confessed he had broken into the warehouse and put a cigarette down that ignited his coat.

He told officers he threw the lit coat across the room and fled as the firecrackers exploded. The deputies said he told them again after his capture Sunday of the 1958 blast and described it as "an awful nice explosion."

He told them he had hitchhiked from Salem to near Portland.

Tax Confab To Be Held

The first registration received for the 1959 Oregon Tax Conference, to be held in Portland on November 19-21, was Walter H. Fleet, Klamath Falls public accountant, according to Keith Billings, general chairman.

The conference will be held at the new Sheraton-Portland Hotel. Six topflight authorities from Oregon, Washington, California and Colorado will discuss tax problems of concern to small and medium-sized businesses. There will be an all-speakers panel which was inaugurated when the conference was designated the Southern Oregon-Northern California Tax Conference.

Fleet helped organize the original tax conference a number of years ago when it was held in Southern Oregon. He is a district governor of the sponsoring Oregon Association of Public Accountants and has never missed an annual meeting, Billings said.

New Cathedral Is Dedicated

BALTIMORE (AP)—The celebration of a Pontifical Mass Sunday marked the dedication of the $2-million-dollar Catholic cathedral of Mary Our Queen.

Francis Cardinal Spellman, archbishop of the New York Archdiocese, and James Cardinal McIntyre, Archbishop of the Los Angeles Archdiocese, joined 15 archbishops, about 100 bishops and more than 1,500 other church dignitaries and invited laymen at the ceremony.

In seats of honor were relatives of Thomas O'Neill, deceased apartment store owner whose bequest financed the five-year construction.

Malin Schools Fete Week

MALIN — National Education Week was observed at both of the Malin schools. On Monday evening at the high school a program was held for all parents of junior high and senior high school students.

A general meeting was held first with Principal Jim Conroy presiding, at which time the philosophy, practices and policies of the school were discussed. Also discussed were graduation requirements, course offerings and absenteeism.

The parents were then taken through their children's daily schedule with 10 minutes spent in each class. There the teacher outlined the course content, and homework and answered any questions presented by the parents.

At the close of the program refreshments were served in the home economics room.

According to grade school principal, Charles Hale, parents of the grade school students were invited to visit their children's rooms on Friday afternoon. Parents observed the normal classroom routine and work of their children in grades one through six. This program also gave the parents an opportunity to meet the teachers and ask questions.

Refreshments were served following the visitation periods by mothers of sixth, seventh and eighth grade students.
