U.S. Faces Tough Task In Convicting Mobsters

NEW YORK (UPI) — Twenty-one men sit today in a double row of chairs before a marble wall in a federal court. Their clothes are well tailored, their fingernails manicured, their hair sleek, their faces impassive.

Among them is a virtual "board of directors" of the rackets in the United States. Some have records running from narcotics to white slavery, assault to suspicion of murder.

The government is trying to send them to prison for five years. It is one of the biggest federal offensives against the underworld since the late Al Capone was hanged for income tax evasion.

And, as in that case, the 21 are charged with none of the major felonies but with the abstract offense of "conspiring to obstruct justice."

The 21 represent one-third of a band of men surprised on Nov. 14, 1957, at the hilltop home of the late Joseph Barbara Sr., near Apalachin, N.Y.

They took to the woods, their cashmere coats got caught on barbed wire fences, their fine leather shoes caked with mud, their limousines caught in roadblocks that day as they sought to flee when Barbara's wife spotted a state police car.

The government charges they have steadfastly and unanimously refused to disclose the purpose of the meeting two years ago.

Their story is that they just happened to drop in on their ailing friend, Barbara. It was quite a coincidence. They dropped in simultaneously from such spots as Scranton, Dallas, Miami, Niagara Falls, Cleveland, San Gabriel, Calif., and Phoenix.

Milton R. Wessel, special assistant to the U.S. attorney general who heads the prosecution, admitted at the outset that the government does not know what really happened.

"The conspiracy has been successful," he told the jury. "I tell you frankly and fairly that the government will not be able to show what was going on at that meeting."

There are a good many suspicions of why it was called.

Albert Anastasia, kingpin of the New York rackets, had been shot dead in a barber's chair in the Park Sheraton Hotel just 20 days before. The "boys" may have been choosing a successor.

The McClellan committee in Washington was putting the heat on labor racketeering and there may have been a discussion of ways and means of weathering that storm.

Each of the 63 men there was of Italian ancestry. Investigators have dug up evidence indicating a considerable number of the assembly were members of the Mafia, the Sicilian criminal society.

STATE LAND SALE

Oral auction bids will be received by the Oregon State Land Board at the main entrance of the Klamath County Court House, Klamath Falls, Oregon, beginning at 10:00 A.M., Wednesday, December 2, 1959, for all of the State's interest in and to the NE 1/4, NW 1/4, Sec. 18, T. 40 S., R. 13, E., W.M., Klamath County, Oregon, together with all timber thereon; reserving, however, to the State of Oregon all coal, oil, gas and other minerals in said land, together with the right to prospect for, mine and remove same for coal or on statutory terms.

In order to qualify for bidding, each bidder must deposit with auctioneer certified or cashier's check, money order or cash in amount of not less than $100.00 as evidence of good faith to be applied on purchase price returned to unsuccessful bidder or retained as liquidated damages should successful bidder fail to meet final terms of sale. The minimum price which will be considered for said tract is $900; the board reserving right to reject any and all bids. Establishment of property lines is responsibility of successful bidder.

U.S. Airlines Face Threat

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—America, home of stiff air line competition, may learn the Soviet brand before long.

James T. Pyle, deputy federal aviation administrator, says the Soviet Union's big air line, Aeroflot, is about to move into the field of international transportation with a price-cutting come-on.

"They are challenging us at our own game," Pyle told the Institute of Aeronautical Sciences.

"They will be meeting us head-on in every field of civil aviation. They will be scrambling for passenger, freight and aircraft sales and rentals."

Their main selling point will be high volume and low fares, Pyle predicted.
