If your complexion isn't all that you'd like it to be now, the summer's suntan is fading. L.O.L. O'Leary, new to our area as a skin authority, has a suggestion. Miss O'Leary, who lives in New York, says that complexions only seem worse at the close of summer, but actually the problems have really been there all the time, concealed by the tanning effects of the sun.

To tackle the problem of blackheads, enlarged pores, pimples and acne, Miss O'Leary recommends a two-way approach, first to understand the cause and secondly to treat it. Most blemishes stem from excessive oiliness, when oil mixed with surface dirt seeps back into the pores to seal and clog them and form blackheads. Underneath the blackheads the oil keeps pouring out and, unable to escape, irritates the walls of the pores and causes infection. This gives rise to eruptions, bumps, blackheads, and acne.

Most important, then, Miss O'Leary advises, is first to learn how to keep the face scrupulously clean and remove surplus oil. For this purpose she has created L.O.L. Lotion, a completely clear, anti-septic liquid preparation with powerful and long-lasting germ-killing action. The lotion destroys blemish-causing bacteria that might otherwise multiply and spread pimples. Deep-penetrating, yet gentle to the skin, it searches out and loosens clogging matter such as hidden dirt and blackheads, reduces enlarged pores, fights excessive oiliness. Easy to use, you merely saturate a cotton square with L.O.L. Lotion and cleanse the skin of hidden dirt twice daily and before bedtime.

To heal eruptions amazingly fast, after each cleansing apply L.O.L. Lotion once more to affected areas and let it dry. Its quick-acting miracle ingredients of Organic Sulphur Oil Compound, Hexachlorophene, and Resorcinol go to work instantly to clear the skin and restore it to velvet-smooth beauty.

While you're working at healing skin blemishes, you can make them invisible to the eyes of your audience by touching them with Spotstik, a most ingenious camouflage for bumps. As easy to use as a lipstick, Spotstik can be found in a shade that's a twin to your skin. Merely dot it on the blemish and smooth in.

Once you have restored your complexion to peaches and cream loveliness, keep it that way by preventing flare-ups. L.O.L. Lotion, used daily to cleanse, is your best insurance against problem skin, a perpetual annuity in complexion beauty.

Bonne Bell

Housewives have become homemakers; but "gilding the lily" stops right there. Along with the euphemism are no guarantees of shorter hours or higher wages. Wages you can forget, but at least one hour out of 24 should be labelled yours and yours alone. No matter where you find it, guard your one hour of privacy by retreating behind a locked bathroom door and hanging out a "do not disturb" sign to flag down all trespassers. You'll soon condition your family to not being "in" to their assorted demands. Just pretend you're on a South Seas island with no communication to the mainland.

But be sure to have all your "camping out" equipment at hand. Perhaps a new magazine or novel; perhaps a portable record player and "music to take a bath by;" perhaps a lending library painting to prop up for leisurely study. And in this "no men and children allowed" land, you can even turn off your worry mechanism and dream a while. Deliciously warm water flows gently and deeply into the tub. Into it you have poured half-a-cupful of Bonne Bell's "Bonne Bath," a bath cosmetic with a single purpose — to soften the skin, every square immersed inch of it. After your dip in Lethe (the mythical river of forgetfulness), you'll come out just wonderfully soft-and-smooth all over. "Bonne Bath" is scented pleasantly but lightly, setting up no interference with whatever other fragrance you will use later. Allot part of your hour to your hair, pinning it up before the bath, brushing and arranging it afterwards. It's a good time for nail repairs too, both fingers and toes. Be kind to your face and throat by applying Bonne Bell's "Moisture Lotion" while tubbing, again as a make-up base before your finishing touches. After a bath is the best time for a deodorant. You'll like Bonne's "Bodyguard," a liquid cream so convenient to use, a drop for each underarm, from its plastic squeeze bottle. Then, slip into something fresh and pretty; smooth your hands with Bonne Bell's new formula "Hand Care" with silicones; swish on an exciting fragrance; and walk down the "gangplank" to greet your family as if returning from a long journey as indeed you are.

THANKSGIVING, complete with turkey through cranberries, will be observed on Thursday throughout the land. Cranberry juice makes an excellent cocktail (or a breakfast beverage) and either fresh or canned cranberries can be used for the sauce or made into jelly as shown here.

THANKSGIVING

Many a Thanksgiving dinner menu is modernized these days. But the traditional menu starring roast turkey and all the fixins is still the favorite.

Since the beginning of the Thanksgiving menu, cranberries have belonged with slices of tender turkey. Today fresh cranberries are bigger and tastier than ever. And there's also canned cranberry sauce to choose, as well as cranberry juice.

Let's begin dinner with a cranberry juice cocktail. Pilgrim women used the juice of the berry years ago. Today, through modern processing, this sparkling ready-to-serve beverage can be picked from any grocery store shelf.

Then, to serve with the turkey, make a shimmering jellied salad with either fresh cranberries or canned cranberry sauce.

CRANBERRY COCKTAIL

- 1 cup cranberry juice cocktail
- 1/4 cup lemon juice
- 1/2 cup orange juice
- 1/2 cup syrup from spiced peaches, watermelon rind or spiced fruit
- 1 tablespoon rum or rum flavoring

ECONOMY

Instead of throwing away leftover gift tags and Christmas stickers after the holidays, package them neatly in waxed paper sandwich bags and store with tree ornaments for use the following year.

SERVE IT RARE

Because beef tenderloin has very little mottling of fat, it must be cooked quickly and is best when served on the rare side.

"DO NOT DISTURB" sign is out when mother retreats into the sanctuary of the bathroom for an hour of beauty care and relaxation. For this ritual she chooses a quartet of Bonne Bell beauty preparations shown here. The Bonne Bell line is handled in Klamath Falls and is popular with teen-agers as well as their mothers.
