BETHEL 61

Grand Guardian Evelyn Rogers soon informed the bethel of her made her grand visitation to Bethel No. 61, International Order of Job's Daughters, at the regular meeting Monday, November 16, in the Scottish Rite Temple. Preceding the meeting a school of instruction by the grand guardian was held at 6 p.m. after which a potluck dinner was served to members and guests.

The regular meeting started at 7:30 p.m. with Honored Queen Penny Preston presiding and Natalia Reichenberg, guardian, and Larry Whytal, associate guardian, in charge. Extorted and introduced in the east were Honored Queen Ann Anderson of Bethel No. 6; Grand Guardian Evelyn Rogers; Barbara Vinson, grand junior custodian; Gladys Hall, past supreme guardian and present deputy grand guardian of this district; and Lucille Crawley, guardian of Bethel No. 6. Many guests were present and those introduced and welcomed from the sidelines were Past Guardians Lucile Anderson and Blanche Schulz of Bethel No. 6; Kitty Hanville of Bethel No. 61; Gus Vlahos, wise master of Rose Cross chapter, Scottish Rite and Jack Schulz, venerable master of consistory, Scottish Rite.

Initiated as new daughters of the bethel were Jean Blupham, Tamia Mitchell, Jean Ledbetter, Gail Campbell and Lynn Guendol.

The resignation of Ray Owens, associate guardian, was received with regrets by the bethel, and Larry Whytal was greeted and received as the newly appointed one. Installation of five members of the guardian council was performed by Evelyn Rogers, installing officer; Gladys Hall, installing guide; and Phyllis Poole, installing mistress, in an impressive ceremony. Those installed were Larry Whytal, associate guardian; Gus Vlahos, guardian of fraternal relations; Helen McGonack, guardian of publicity; Virginia McClure, guardian of hospitality; and Jackie Bedford, guardian of finances.

Entertainment for the evening was given by Diane Bringle, librarian, who gave an interesting book report of "The Cane Valley" by Herman Work.

The grand guardian complimented the bethel members on their fine work and the large choir, also encouraging the girls to become acquainted with their adopted grandmothers at the home. The honoree queen was presented with a myrtlewood pin as a gift from the grand officers and associate grand guardian and Penny Preston in turn presented Evelyn Rogers with a gift from the bethel.

TIP FOR BLONDES

Blondes with dark skins should avoid saffron colors and too-dead neutrals. Grays and beiges should be brightened with a touch of cream at the neck, otherwise the skin will tend to look yellow.

A VISITOR in Klamath Falls this past week was Mrs. P. H. Dye of Grangeville, Idaho. She left on Friday with her son, Rex Dye, to drive to Los Angeles where she will visit with a sister, Mrs. George Braham. On Thanksgiving Mrs. Dye was dinner guest of another son, Jay Dye, his wife and children, Jay Jr. and Marion, also residents of this city. —Photo by Guderian
