4-H Youths Receive Gift From Ike

CHICAGO (UPI) — Larry S. Watson, Lawton, Okla., and Barbara Totten, Riverside, Calif., received a chest of sterling silver flatware donated by President Eisenhower and a $400 scholarship Thursday for winning top achievement awards at the National 4-H Club Congress.

Larry, 18, and Barbara, 17, named at the annual banquet which ended the five-day meeting attended by more than 1,300 delegates, both agreed they would wait until after marriage before using their gift from the President.

Larry bought his own $50,000 farm last fall from money he earned while raising livestock during the past nine years on his family's farm. The farm was being rented to help pay his way to Oklahoma State University where he is a freshman.

Larry won his award for outstanding project work in leadership, safety, fire prevention, and entomology, and for his success as a teen-age farmer.

Barbara won her 4-H award for proficiency in cooking and sewing and community service, such as singing for shut-ins, bringing gifts to children in hospitals, and demonstrating improved homemaking methods.

She is a freshman at the University of California at Davis, majoring in home economics. Barbara considered a teaching career but said she would rather be a 4-H home adviser and ultimately a housewife and mother, although she may seek teaching credentials.

President Will Discover U.S. Prestige Up In India

By THOMAS R. CURRAN UPI Vice President

NEW DELHI (UPI) — President Eisenhower will find in his five-day visit here that U.S. prestige in India has skyrocketed to its highest point in the history of the two countries.

Red China's Premier Chou-En-lai can take part of the credit. The shock of the Tibetan revolt and Red China's creeping aggression against India's borders have opened Indian eyes and lent a sense of urgency to the President's five-day visit.

This, and Eisenhower's role in the seeming thaw of the cold war in Europe, add up to a warm welcome for the President, whom the villagers call "a man of peace from the land of multi-millionaires."

Observers will be interested in comparing the warmth of Ike's reception with the enthusiastic welcome Nikita Khrushchev and Nikolai Bulganin received when they barnstormed this country for three weeks in 1955.

Indira Gandhi, daughter of Indian Prime Minister Jawaharlal Nehru, told United Press International she hoped Ike's reception would be as big as the Russians. But she noted the shortness of the President's stay.

She is Nehru's official hostess and she forecast a "very warm" reception for the President during his stopover. In an exclusive interview she told me "the entire country" has been waiting for an Eisenhower visit.

Would Ike's reception match the 1955 welcome for Khrushchev and Bulganin? "I certainly hope so," Mrs. Gandhi replied.

But it would be hard to compare the occasions, she said, because the Russians were the first important foreign visitors ever received by independent India, and they stayed longer.

Chinese encroachment on the Indian frontier has made the Indians appreciative of the friendship of the United States and America's military might.

Nor is United States' friendship for Pakistan so deeply resented now as a year ago when India and Pakistan grimly faced each other as enemies. Explanations that American defense expenditures in Pakistan were strictly a Communist deterrent now are making sense in Delhi, Bombay and Calcutta.

India is expected to ask for more economic aid, thereby freeing scarce foreign exchange for an anticipated increase in defense expenditures to meet the Chinese aggression.

The President's unofficial program calls for his arrival here on the afternoon of Dec. 9 from Karachi, Pakistan, and Kabul, Afghanistan. On Dec. 10 he will visit President Rajendra Prasad and address a joint session of the Indian parliament.

On Dec. 11 he will receive a doctorate at Delhi University at a special convocation, and later will open the American exhibition at the World Agricultural Fair with his most important address in Asia.

The day of Dec. 12 will be confined to sightseeing, and on Dec. 13 he will go to church and then fly to Agra, 20 minutes by air from Delhi, to see the Taj Mahal. The next day he will visit an Indian village near Delhi which is receiving United States aid.

Aqua Supply Under Study

LAKEVIEW—Water supply information under study by the town council of Lakeview as far back as 1929, was again brought up for consideration at the regular council meeting Tuesday evening.

Under discussion was the McCord Springs project which, according to a survey made by the city engineer at that time, produced a flow of approximately 60 gallons per minute. The feasibility of procuring the flow for city use is being looked into as far as costs and water rights are concerned.

The need for an increased water supply for Lakeview is under continuous study by the council. Recent authorization of the water commission to use funds for drilling a test well in Bullard Canyon did not produce satisfactory results. No water was found.

Two new ordinances were adopted at the meeting. Ordinance No. 470 places responsibility for sidewalk repairs on adjacent property owners, prescribes the procedure for making repairs, provides for assessment of the cost on the property owners when the work is done by the town, and provides for liability of property owners for personal injuries due to defective sidewalks.

Ordinance No. 469 prescribes methods for making public improvements such as sidewalks, streets, sewers, drains, etc.; provides for hearings, assessments to pay for the work, appeals, and provides for endorsement of assessment liens.

Churches Facing Tough Tasks

PORTLAND (AP) — The task ahead for churches is fraught with hardships and problems, the Oregon Council of Churches was told here Thursday.

Dr. Hughes Pruden, pastor of the First Baptist Church, Washington, D.C., asserted "The task of the church does not promise security."

The former University of Shanghai teacher said foreign missions now are an absolute must instead of an elective. He spoke at a dinner that marked the close of the meeting.

Test Planting Service Told

Test planting service for uncertified potatoes is available to Klamath County growers again this winter, according to the county agent's office.

Greenhouse space presently occupied by certified lots becomes available for commercial lots as certified lots are removed.

The Klamath County Agent's Office has been advised that some commercial lots might be planted in December. Reports might be expected in March.

The service is offered on a fee basis. A $15 fee for a 400-tuber sample covers costs of preparation, planting, growing and inspection.

County Agent Walt Jendrzewski stresses the point that the greenhouse test is only as reliable as the sample is representative of the lot.

The agent reports that leafroll spread has reduced the local supply of certified netted gem seed. He states that virus spread last season makes test planting desirable for any commercial lot which might be held for seed use.

Third Judge To Hear Case

A third judge must be named to hear the trial of Leon Merle Crawford, 23-year-old Chiloquin resident, indicted by the grand jury on a charge of assault with a dangerous weapon.

Circuit Judge David R. Vandenberg originally would have heard the trial, scheduled for January 25, but Crawford filed a motion requesting the judge to disqualify himself. This was backed by an affidavit alleging prejudice against Crawford.

Chief Justice William McAllister of the State Supreme Court then appointed Circuit Judge Charles H. Foster to hear the case. On Thursday Crawford, through his attorney, Glenn D. Ramirez, filed a similar motion for disqualification.

Justice McAllister must appoint a third judge to hear the case. The third judge will definitely hear the case, because under law a defendant may make only two motions for disqualification.

Crawford is accused of drawing a pistol on Chiloquin Police Chief Louis Jones during a speeding arrest last June 2.

The bandits took in all about $800 from Stetler and store employees and a $4,816 ring that was not in the vault.

Stetler and Werst shook hands.

2 Brothers Get Together

HONOLULU (AP) — By being mistakenly identified as dead, Thomas R. Riddle, 45, contacted a brother he last saw 35 years ago.

Kenneth L. Riddle of Castorville, Calif., read an Associated Press story in the San Jose Mercury Nov. 19 reporting two mistaken identifications of a body found in a parking lot before the right name came up.

Kenneth wrote The Associated Press in Honolulu saying he had a brother named Thomas Riddle "and I have a feeling it is he."

Thomas read Kenneth's letter and learned for the first time that his father, Jesse, had died 15 years ago.

Tom, 65, retired automobile mechanic, said he came to Honolulu in 1925 and since had lost track of his four brothers and four sisters.

Portland Mayor Launches Probe

PORTLAND (AP)—A tavern operator testified that two policemen solicited a bribe from him, and Mayor Terry Schunk launched an immediate investigation.

Earl T. Gould, operator of Lil Sandy's at 1318 N. Williams Ave., said under oath that two officers he identified only by last names came into his tavern and asked for money.

Gould issued the charge at a City Council hearing that rejected his application for a renewal of his liquor license. He blamed his troubles on an adverse Police Department recommendation.

Three girls were injured Friday night in a two-car accident at Third and Main streets and the driver of the second car, Lionel E. Scott, 20, Route 1, Box 23, was booked for reckless driving and was scheduled to appear in municipal court at 10 a.m. Thursday.

Gas Gone; Thief Nabbed

DUNSMUIR — An accused car thief ran out of gas twice Friday and the alertness of a California highway patrolman was responsible for the Friday night arrest of Mark E. Parsons, 20, of Ocean Lake, Oregon.

Parsons is being held in jail here awaiting official action on his case.

Officer Gus Kehrer apprehended Parsons at a Gazelle service station after the suspect allegedly had stolen his second vehicle, a pickup truck, and was attempting to sell some tools that were in the truck to pay for some gas.

Parsons, believed wanted by the FBI on the Dyer Act, transporting stolen vehicles across a state line, had escaped from custody Friday morning at the Eureka Courthouse while awaiting trial for car theft.

Local police said he is believed to have stolen a 1952 sedan in Eureka and driven here, dumping the car when it ran out of gas.

Friday night Parsons allegedly stole a pickup truck belonging to Ibanal Valenzuela, 529 Florence Avenue. Valenzuela reported the disappearance to the police.

Cancer Fight Rages On

DALLAS, Tex. (AP)—There was fresh fuel today for a dispute between medical and tobacco industry researchers over what constitutes a link between lung cancer and cigarette smoking.

New anatomical evidence shows a direct relation between abnormal tissue changes which precede cancer, as well as lung cancer itself, and the number of cigarettes smoked, a scientist told the American Medical Assn. Friday.

His report drew immediate fire from the Tobacco Research Committee. Its spokesman declared that numerous other experts do not agree with the finding.

Dr. Oscar Auerbach, chief of laboratory service at the Veterans Administration Hospital in East Orange, N.J., made these points in a report to an AMA clinical gathering:

Studies of 17,597 lung tissue samples from 402 men who died in VA hospital "seem to us to indicate that cigarette smoking is today a major factor in the causation of lung cancer."

Sixty-three of the deaths resulted from lung cancer. All 63 men smoked tobacco, and 60 used cigarettes.

Of the 339 patients dying from other causes, 238 had smoked half a pack or more cigarettes a day. Lung tissue from this group showed cell changes which "probably represent a change toward cancer."

Few changes appeared in lung cells of 55 who smoked little or none.

Auerbach, who also is an associate professor at New York Medical College, drew a conclusion that lung cancer and conditions leading to it "depend almost completely on the number of cigarettes smoked."

He added that this opinion agrees fully with previous evidence based on extensive statistical studies.

Those who worked with Dr. Auerbach included Dr. Arthur Purdy Stout of Columbia University and Dr. E. Cuyler Hammond of the American Cancer Society.

Taking issue with Auerbach and his staff was Dr. Robert C. Hockett of the Tobacco Research Committee, which has an exhibit at the AMA meeting here.

McKneally's action was a follow-up of a resolution passed at the Legion convention in Minneapolis last August, urging the 40 and 8 to review its discrimination clause.

Opponents of the clause complained it was un-American to block Negro, Nisei and other non-white veterans from membership in the 100,000-member society.

"We recognized and accepted this action," Hobbie said. "We said we'd bring it up at the next national convention scheduled in October, 1960, at Miami."

But McKneally ended the Legion's 29-year association with the 40 and 8 with his notice that the organization's revocable license, issued in 1952, "is now revoked."

McKneally also ordered the 40 and 8 "to discontinue immediately the use of the American Legion emblem and the name, 'the American Legion'."
