Drive Slated To Entice New Industry

SALEM (AP)—Gov. Mark Hatfield and his Advisory Committee to the State Department of Planning and Development announced Monday an intensified campaign to bring new industry to Oregon. At the same time, the governor announced that Robert H. Tarr, deputy director, had been named acting director of the department. He replaces Julius R. Jensen, who came here two years ago from a similar job in Iowa to found the department. Jensen will be retained as industrial consultant to the department.

Hatfield said he would lead a group of Oregon industrialists next March 20-26 on a trip to meet eastern industrial leaders in New York, Boston and Chicago.

The governor also announced a large new industry plans to locate in Oregon, and now is looking for a site. He said he made the initial contact with this industry in San Francisco two months ago.

The governor told the 11-member committee he is taking a personal interest in its work, and that he expects it to become much more active in promoting the industrial development of the state.

The committee made plans to work closely with all communities in the state, making an inventory of all industrial sites and favorable factors for industrial development. Chester Moores, Portland industrial realtor, will head this phase.

Heading the program to help existing business and industry expand will be Sam Mallicoat, the department's field representative. Moores said it is important that industrial development be spread throughout the state, instead of being concentrated in Portland.

The Portland agency of Dawson and Turner was given the contract for advertising and promotion. The advisory committee is headed by Gerald Frank, Salem department store operator.

Finch Trial Commences; Steeped With Intrigue

LOS ANGELES (AP)—The Finch murder trial, with all the earmarks of a stark and sensational drama, opens today.

Its setting is more society's well-to-do. It is steeped with intrigue, extra-marital romance and violence. It has attracted widespread advance notice.

The case appears due for a long run. The scene is a courtroom on the eighth floor of the Hall of Justice in the Civic Center. Throughout the trial, there will be flashbacks to another scene, the grounds of an estate in suburban West Covina.

Late in June, Carole moved to Las Vegas. She said she wanted to avoid being named co-respondent in Barbara's divorce suit. The doctor also went to Las Vegas, stayed at Carole's apartment.

Then, on July 18, the lovers drove to West Covina for what Carole said was to be a discussion of an out-of-court divorce settlement with Barbara.

Carole later said that when Barbara came home that night, Carole and the doctor were waiting outside. Barbara, seeing them, drew a gun. Carole ran, hid in a clump of bushes, heard shots.

Miss Lidholm, the maid, had another story. She said she ran out when she heard Mrs. Finch scream. She said Finch had a gun and chased his wife onto the lawn. Then, she said, there were shots.

Finch was arrested next day at Carole's Las Vegas apartment. Carole was not held at first. She testified at Finch's preliminary hearing, saying among other things that she had sexual relations with the doctor. Then, after she stepped down, Asst. Dist. Atty. Fred Whichello dramatically arrested her. He said Carole, on the stand, told a story that didn't completely jibe with her original statement of what happened on the visit to the Finch home. She was charged with murder. Whichello said Carole and Finch had a "do-it-yourself murder kit," consisting of a knife, rope, bullets, poison, sleeping pills, a hypodermic. No gun was ever found.

Authorities came up with a new angle in September. They said Donald Williams of Las Vegas, a friend of Carole, told police he was approached by the girl and asked to introduce her to "two rough guys who can take care of somebody."

Williams later said his statement was distorted by police to imply a murder plot. But Dist. Atty. William McKesson of Los Angeles said his office located another man who supported the police interpretation of the story. McKesson said a Jack Patrick Cody, contacted in Minneapolis, reported Carole and Finch asked him in Las Vegas to "do away with somebody."

Finch's attorney is Grant Cooper, a veteran of many big cases. Carole was to have had Jerry Giesler, the famed Hollywood attorney, as her counsel. But Giesler is ill so the job will be handled by Robert Neeb.

Whichello estimates the trial will run six to eight weeks. He says it may take two weeks to agree on a jury.

Labor Council Bans Scribe

PORTLAND (AP)—The Multnomah Central Labor Council voted unanimously Monday night to bar from its weekly meeting a reporter from the struck, combined Oregonian-Oregon Journal.

In calling for a vote, Ed Whelan, council president, said "The issue is simply whether we want a scab reporter to be present here."

The Stereotypers Union local here has been on strike against Portland's two daily newspapers since Nov. 10. Other unions have observed picket lines.

Faulty Brakes Damage Store

TEXARKANA, Tex. (AP)—Mrs. A. F. McMinn planned to buy a can of paint Monday but she didn't plan to drive in to the Porter McClure paint store.

She said she drove up to the store, pressed on the brake but her car went right into the store. She blamed faulty brakes.

Nobody was injured and damages were several hundred dollars.

New Jersey Primary Tangle Looms Between Rocky, Dick

WASHINGTON (AP)—The possibility that Vice President Richard M. Nixon and New York Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller may tangle in New Jersey's 1960 presidential primary developed today.

Nixon was reported to have cancelled the New Jersey situation internally Monday night with former Gov. Alfred E. Driscoll, a dinner guest. There was no public comment from either after what was described as largely a social affair.

While Driscoll has been relatively inactive in politics recently, his support helped President Eisenhower give the late Sen. Robert A. Taft of Ohio one of the latter's worst pre-convention setbacks in the 1952 New Jersey primary.

Sen. Clifford P. Case (R-N.J.) said it is his judgment that if Rockefeller decides to contest Nixon for the 1960 Republican presidential nomination he is likely to carry the fight to the vice president in the state's April 19 primary.

Case, who is maintaining a neutral attitude between the two potential candidates, said in an interview he thinks most organization Republicans in New Jersey now are for Nixon. But he said this could change.

"It seems to be the general attitude that Nixon has earned his chance for the nomination," Case said. "The organization leaders are for him. But that doesn't mean that they wouldn't change if something should happen which made Nixon look like a had bet to be elected."

New Jersey's 38 convention votes offer a tasty bit of bait for any presidential aspirant willing to take his chances of publicly endorsing delegate candidates. He might find it less risky, however, to run on a preferential primary ballot in a popularity contest that is not binding on the delegates.

Because the New Jersey test is the first in a populous Eastern state, many politicians think it might provide Rockefeller with an opportunity to demonstrate his vote-getting ability in areas that cast heavy electoral votes in the general election.

As the governor of a neighboring state, Rockefeller is widely known in New Jersey. Whether he could translate this into support at the polls in a battle with Nixon would remain to be seen.

March 10 is the deadline for filing of petitions to get a presidential candidate's name on the New Jersey ballot. Rockefeller has delayed any announcement of his intentions.

Absent Feline Valued At $500

SAN FRANCISCO (AP)—A bar-bor's cat which ate poached eggs for breakfast "just like a member of the family" was valued in absentia Monday at $500.

That's the amount Municipal Court Judge Byron Arnold awarded the barber, Richard O. D'Amico, for the escape from a pet hospital of Nipper, a black tomcat embodying a mixture of Siamese and Persian.
