

HERB KENAGA

Game Slides To Be Shown

Herb Kenaga, formerly of Klamath Falls, the Ozarks and several Western states, shoots his Alaskan big game with a 35 millimeter camera. He has collected trophies of just about every species in the far northern state.

Kenaga will bring a carefully edited selection of his assortment of slides to the Odd Fellows Hall in Merrill December 27, 28, and 29 beginning at 8 o'clock each night.

Each night's showing will produce about 500 slides of big game, scenery and adventure. Each night's showing will be different. The shows will last more than two hours each. Kenaga will narrate.

For an hour preceding each, and during intermissions he will play stereophonic music with his excellent equipment.

Kenaga has spent about $7,000 for film and has amassed a library of some 25,000 slides. He has traveled three or four hundred thousand miles in all corners of Alaska and the Yukon, mostly by bush plane.

A rifle cannot replace the camera for sheer big game hunting thrills, he says.

Kenaga has been living in Merrill since April. But he wants to return to the North Country as soon as possible.

"There is plenty of country where you get the honest feeling you are the first man ever to have stood," he says. "It's a good feeling."

His show is sponsored by the Merrill Odd Fellows Lodge as a fund-raising project.

Educators Hold Conclave

WEED—Dr. M. J. Greenfields represented College of the Siskiyous at an all day conference entitled "Relationships Between Chico State College and Northern California Junior Colleges."

The conference was held Thursday, December 10, in Chico at the state college. Besides Dr. Greenfields, representatives from other colleges are: L. Vernon Greenleaf, Lassen Junior College; J. J. Collins, Yuba College; and Gilbert Collyer and Jackson Price, Shasta College.

The yearly conference, organized by Dr. Glen Kendall, president of Chico State College, allows the various institutions involved to discuss and solve mutual problems.

Sea Mishap Details Told

PORTLAND (AP)—The Coast Guard commander on a buoy tender that rammed a Japanese freighter at Astoria last week told an investigating board Thursday he saw the vessel on his radar screen.

The Japanese ship, said Lt. Cmdr. William Gill, was just off the port bow, perhaps 1,500 yards away. He said he headed his own vessel a bit right and expected the other ship to pass to the left.

An officer soon reported seeing the lights of the approaching ship through the fog, and Cmdr. Gill said he ordered right rudder to give it more room to pass.

Then, he said, he saw the three white lights on his starboard looming out of the fog, which showed the vessel had another in tow.

He said he knew he would run it down if he continued on course. He ordered the engines reversed and had about stopped when the Japanese vessel appeared on the collision course.

"I could think of nothing more that I could do," said Gill. "I was backing full. The Meiko Maru continued across our bow for seconds. I was wondering why it didn't hit. Then at midship the vessels struck."

Capt. T. Fujita, commander of the Meiko Maru, testified earlier at the hearing before Cmdr. W. L. Morrison, that the collision came so suddenly after he first saw the Mallow that it was impossible to avoid it.

MRS. JIM (MARJORIE) CONROY, Malin, new president of the Klamath County Tuberculosis and Health Association has served on the association board for several years. Her husband is principal of Malin High School. She is the mother of two sons and is active in school and community projects. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Victor Ongman, 2245 Radcliffe, this city. The bulletin board background was prepared by office personnel at the health department.

Government To Buy Fowl

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Agriculture Department will buy all stillbirth-treated poultry from producers at prices based on market levels before Dec. 10.

That was the day Secretary of Welfare Arthur S. Flemming announced a voluntary withdrawal of these fowl from the market because stillbirth had been found to cause cancer in test animals, and possibly in humans.

Less than 1 per cent of the nation's poultry have been treated with the hormone, and these are premium-priced birds called "caponettes." However, not all caponettes had stillbirth.

The Agriculture Department was asked Friday what it would do with the poultry it purchased. A spokesman replied "we will decide that later. Our obligation right now is to protect producers."

Officials said they had no idea how many treated fowl would be offered or what the total cost to the Agriculture Department would be.

Acting Secretary of Agriculture True D. Morse said "caponettes should not be confused with caponets. Capons are surgically unsexed birds which have not been treated with stillbirth. Caponettes were treated with it to give them similar characteristics."

Gas Truck Fire Noted

CORVALLIS (AP)—A truck loaded with 1,300 gallons of gasoline caught fire and burned about one-half mile from downtown Corvallis Friday.

For a time flames threatened to spread to several houses, but firemen beat them back and saved some of the gasoline.

"We were just lucky it didn't blow up," said Corvallis Fire Chief Les Edmonson.

The chief said a passing motorist saw smoke coming from the rear of the truck and hailed it down on the city's outskirts. The driver, George Laubner, 56, of Albany, pulled off the road and as he did, the fire broke out.

The truck was a total loss but no one was injured. The owner was Glen White, an Albany distributor. Laubner was driving to Philomath.

Edmonson said gasoline leaking from the tank onto a muffler apparently caused the blaze.

Albany Youth Killed By Car

ALBANY, Ore. (AP)—Twelve-year-old John Aas suffered fatal injuries Friday night when an automobile struck an unlighted bicycle he was riding.

The boy, son of Mr. and Mrs. Gilman Aas of Albany, was returning home from his newspaper route when he was struck by an automobile operated by Robert N. Schrader of Albany. Schrader was not cited.

The mishap occurred on a highway one mile north of the city limits.

The boy was Oregon's 456th traffic victim this year in the Associated Press tabulation. Sixteen have perished this month.

Inspection Of Ship Set

PARIS (UPI)—A squad of French frogmen will inspect the hull of the cruiser U.S.S. Des Moines when it docks at Toulon next Friday with President Eisenhower aboard.

U. S. and French officials who are planning details of Eisenhower's three-day stay here for a Western summit meeting said the frogmen also will inspect the underpinnings of the dock for security an hour before the cruiser arrives.

They outlined other details of the Eisenhower visit as follows: The meeting of Eisenhower, President Charles de Gaulle, British Prime Minister Harold Macmillan and West German Chancellor Konrad Adenauer is expected to last 2½ days.

The exact schedule has yet to be set, but it was expected they will meet Saturday morning and afternoon at the Elysee Palace.

De Gaulle's Paris residence, with lunch there in between; Sunday morning and afternoon at Rambouillet Castle, the presidential hunting lodge 30 miles southwest of Paris and again Monday at the Elysee.

Home Looted By 'Mourners'

MIAMI, Fla. (AP)—Posing as mourners, thieves looted the house of a dead man while his survivors attended his funeral Friday.

Dressed in black, a man and woman forced the back door lock at the home of the late Arthur W. Kneibler, former chairman of the Miami Housing Authority. They stole a bag containing $30 in change from an unlocked safe and took more than $500 worth of jewelry.

Kneibler's son, Arthur, said the thieves apparently planned the break-in after reading obituaries which listed the time of the service.

Chances Good Railroads Won't Strike

WASHINGTON (AP)—There's a 50-50 chance a railroad contract settlement can be reached without a strike, the nation's top rail labor official says.

"We are not looking for a strike," said George E. Leighty Friday. "We're trying to settle this thing. If there is a strike it will be forced on us by the railroads." Leighty is chairman of the Railway Labor Executives Assn.

He said any railway work stoppage would not be likely to come before May 1.

Leighty said rail unions are sending questionnaires to all recognized labor arbitrators who might be called on to serve on an emergency board named by the White House in the contract dispute.

The questionnaires, he said, are designed to find out if potential arbitrators have been "brainwashed" by what he called a multimillion dollar propaganda campaign by railroads on the "featherbedding" issue.

Railroads have charged there is rampant featherbedding enforced by the union. Featherbedding means requiring payment to employees for work not needed or in some cases for merely standing by doing nothing.

Leighty said the questionnaires asked potential arbitrators if they believe rail workers are overpaid; paid for work not performed; whether state laws require unneeded overloading of payrolls; whether railroads are in desperate financial straits.

None of these things are true, Leighty said. But because of nationwide advertising by the railroads, he added, "seven out of 10 Americans mistakenly believe they are true."

'Rebel' Flag To Be Mended

CHARLESTON, W.Va. (AP)—A Confederate flag, believed to be the first captured during the Civil War, will be laboriously reconditioned by the West Virginia Historical Society.

Kyle McCormick, director of the State Department of Archives and History, said the flag was captured at the Battle of Philippi June 3, 1861, and will be used in re-enactment of the battle.

McCormick said the job, undertaken on recommendation of the Smithsonian Institution, will require about 200 hours of stitching.

Close Race Seen By Labor Chief

ST. PAUL, Minn. (AP)—Oregon Labor Commissioner Norman Nilson expects that Sen. Hubert Humphrey (D-Minn.) and Sen. John Kennedy (D-Mass.) will produce a "neck and neck" race in the Oregon Democratic primary election next May.

Nilson is here to discuss the agenda of a governors' civil rights meeting to be held Jan. 14-15. He told newsmen that if Sen. Wayne Morse (D-Ore.) is entered in the primary, he expects Morse to be close behind Humphrey and Kennedy.

Nilson is chairman of the Humphrey for President Committee in Oregon.
