

Fragrance

Fragrance gifts should have a place under every Christmas tree when there are feminine hearts to please.

Dorothy Gray has a selection of pretty presents to appeal to many tastes. There are five distinctive fragrance series for adults and one for little girls: Voltage, Nosegay, Aureate, Figurine, White Lilac, and Hidden Charm. In individual items and sets, all have a fresh, contemporary look.

Voltage has brilliance and excitement. Its perfume, cologne, dusting powder and sets are done in lustrous black, with the name in raised letters, alternating crimson, orange and bright pink. Concentrate deluxe mist comes in a black metal dispenser with gold metal medallion. Dusting powder has a fluffy, flame-colored puff. The scent is a sophisticated blend of florals with woody moss.

Dorothy Gray's Aureate series is in rich cream and gold. There is one huge box of dusting powder with fluffy, champagne-colored puff. Essence comes in slender, tear-drop bottles that look like

FROM SPAIN, the storied land of gallantry and beautiful women, comes a sparkling perfume, "Joya," to illuminate the Christmas season. "Joya," translated into English, means "jewel," and jewel translated into perfume means "Joya." The perfume is from Myrurgia. Jewels shown are by Trifari.

JOYA

Our American Christmas is a happy blend of many customs, both pagan and Christian, from many lands and long ago. Yet each country that has contributed to our celebration retains certain customs uniquely and charmingly their own.

In Spain, for instance, gifts are mostly toys and candies for children given on the Day of the Three Kings, January 6, which ends the holiday season. It begins on December 8 with the feast of the Immaculate Conception; and early in December, street stalls are set up for selling nativity scenes and special Christmas candies. The beautiful and ornate churches are illuminated from within to cast the radiance of festivities.

On Christmas Eve, "Noche Buena," meaning literally, "good night," there is revelry reminiscent of our New Year's Eve when the celebrants wear paper hats, blow horns, and shout and sing all night. At midnight mass, the Spanish people join with those all over the Christian world, in singing old Christmas carols called "villancicos."

As typically Spanish as these Christmas traditions is Myrurgia's beloved fragrance, "Joya," (pronounced hoya and meaning "jewel"). A gift of "Joya" carries with it a bit of Spain, a touch of the Old World, a special kind of charm. Since it's not customary for adults to exchange gifts at Christmas in the land of the castanets, American women can count themselves far luckier than their Spanish sisters. An American Christmas without at least one gift of perfume would make any of us feel as deprived as the Spanish child who receives lumps of coal instead of candy if he's been naughty.

Surprisingly, perhaps, "Joya" is the type of fragrance American women prefer, being a tender bouquet based on jasmine (the flower "jewel" of perfume), faceted for sparkle with carnation spice, and glowing deeply with a woody freshness. The perfume is the prize jewel, a dazzling gift of fragrance. But there are also jewel-matched toilet water and cologne, reflecting the brilliance of the perfume. Each is set in a jewel-faceted flacon. A gift of any one, or any combination of these three fragrance treasures, is a "jewel of a gift" to any woman.

Georges Clemenceau, "tiger of France," once taught in a girls' school and practiced medicine in the United States.

WHITE LILAC by Dorothy Gray now comes in hand lotion, cologne and dusting powder. The items may be purchased singly or in pairs or trios. This year, Dorothy Gray has a new fragrance, Voltage. The brilliant scent in perfume, cologne, dusting powder and sets is done in lustrous black with the name in raised letters, alternating crimson, orange and bright pink making it so new and so different.

ARRIVE at your destination neat and wrinkle-free by choosing travel clothes which are made to shed wrinkles and stay trim. Shown is a Halldon coat in a navy and white hound's tooth check of "Orlon" acrylic fiber and wool. It is light in weight yet warm and machine washable.

crystal. There are also perfume, soap, an atomist purser, and several sets. Aureate fragrance combines rose and jasmine with a breath of sandalwood.

Nosegay, dainty and modern, is a series packaged in shiny, marshmallow white, decorated with stylized nosegays in pink, blue and green. The names, Nosegay and Dorothy Gray, in pink and blue letters, curve fancifully down from the bouquets, like two streamers. The feeling is one of youth and joy, and the scent is reminiscent of a springtime garden.

Figurine series, in black and gold packages with ballet dancer motifs, has a wide range of preparations, newest of which is a concentrate atomist in tall, black plastic-coated bottle. Figurine is a joyous scent with a bit of a punch. In a different mood is White Lilac, a dainty and delicate group, with the true lilac fragrance. Packages are white, embossed in white with lilac flower motif, and banded in tender tones of lilac. There are touches of gold on the packages.

Hidden Charm, Dorothy Gray's series for little girls, has turquoise blue predominating, with accents of yellow and pink. Scent is a light floral. New are a manicure kit in post-through, carryall case, and there are many single items and interesting combinations in this series.
