Strike Aides, U.S. Mediator Meet Today

PORTLAND (AP) — Federal mediator Elmer Williams will sit down with representatives of Portland's newspapers and the striking Stereotypers Union this afternoon and attempt again to work out a settlement of Portland's newspaper strike.

It will be the first meeting between the management of The Oregonian and Oregon Journal and the union since Dec. 11.

The strike began 50 days ago on Nov. 10 when the Stereotypers Union walked off the job in a contract dispute. Other unions at the two newspaper plants voted not to cross the Stereotypers' picket lines.

The two papers combined and since have been publishing a joint edition at The Oregonian plant. The newspapers reported Monday that 19 members of the Newspaper Guild have decided to return to work. In addition, nine Guild members now are at work in the Journal circulation department, the paper said.

The newspaper added that some members of the Typographical and Engravers unions also are back at work.

The Inter-Union Strike Committee, which represents some 900 striking workers, said that 300,000 copies of the latest edition of the Oregon Labor Press are being distributed in Portland and upstate communities.

The edition reports the strikers' side of the dispute. The committee said the press run of the edition dealing with the strike was 10 times the size of the normal circulation of the labor newspaper.

Man's Death Under Probe

PASADENA, Calif. (AP)—Korrad Walter Hubele kept an appointment book. In it, he detailed in diary form how he treated himself for a terrible disease, multiple sclerosis.

But the book did not hint at his early appointment with death. And, after two days, authorities still have not determined just why the 28-year-old biochemist died.

Hubele, a Caltech graduate student from Germany, was found dead Sunday in his car, parked in freezing temperatures outside a mountain cabin in Angles National Forest. The book lay beside him.

There was no indication of suicide and sheriff's deputies thought he might have frozen to death. An autopsy Monday did not show whether this was the case or whether he might have died of an over-injection of medicine.

The coroner's office has ordered a laboratory examination of vital organs. Hubele's book showed he had been injecting himself with histamine diphosphate, a commercial medication.

War Criminal Dies In Spain

MADRID, Spain (AP) — Dr. Ante Pavelic, 70, quiling president of Croatia during World War II and one of the leading war criminals still at large, died Monday in the German hospital here. The death was reported by Madrid newspapers and confirmed by the municipal funeral service, which said it had taken the body to the morgue of San Lisdro Cemetery. It declined to say when funeral services would be held.

Pavelic was wanted by President Tito's Yugoslav government for trial on charges that he was responsible for the killing of 700,000 Serbs and Jews during his 3 1/2 years as the Axis viceroy.

He fled Yugoslavia in May 1945, and turned up in Argentina later in the year.

3 Oregonians Tetanus Victims

PORTLAND (AP) — Three middle-aged Oregon residents have died within the last month from tetanus—sometimes called lockjaw—and the state Board of Health is urging everyone to get immunization shots.

The deaths occurred in Douglas, Coos and Umatilla counties. The last previous death from the infection was in 1952.

Two or three injections of tetanus toxoid usually are necessary to provide immunization. There should be booster shots one year later and every five years after that.

Two Complete Nuclear Study

Two Klamath Falls students were among nine who were graduated recently from a course in nuclear science for technicians, pioneered by Oregon Technical Institute.

They are Jeanne C. Millon, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. T. Millon, and Jerry L. Slusser, son of Tracy Slusser, all of Klamath Falls.

Miss Millon has completed all necessary work at OTI and externship in X-ray. She expects to work in the field soon. Slusser has two more terms to complete.

The course, called Modern Physics 221, is designed to familiarize students with principles involved in working with radioactive materials.

Winston Purvine, OTI director, says he believes the institute is the first school of its type to offer a course in nuclear science specifically for technicians.

The instructor, Hiram M. Hunt, is a graduate of Drury College, Springfield, Missouri. He received a master's degree from the University of Oregon. He also attended Biarritz American University, France; Missouri Southwest State College and the University of Nevada and received an Atomic Energy Commission and American Society for Engineering Education Institute fellowship in 1958.

He was a research associate at Argonne National Laboratory last summer.

He is assisted by Charles A. Jacobi, medical X-ray technology chairman and G. L. Phillips, head of the metals division, who has charge of gamma radiation facilities. Jacobi is the school's radiation safety officer.

Judge Rules For Farmers

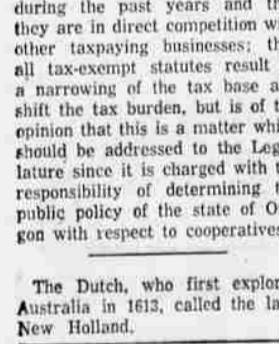

PORTLAND (AP) — Pacific Supply Cooperative is exempt from state taxation under Oregon law, Circuit Judge Alfred T. Sulmonetti held Monday.

The ruling cancels state Tax Commission judgments against the big farmers' cooperative for 1954-57.

The judge disagreed with the Tax Commission's contention in the trial that Pacific Supply is not a cooperative as defined by law. But he conceded the state had a point in arguing that co-ops compete with taxpaying businesses.

He said in the decision: "The court recognizes that the business activity of the plaintiff (Pacific Supply) and similar cooperatives has greatly increased during the past years and that they are in direct competition with other taxpaying businesses; that all tax-exempt statutes result in a narrowing of the tax base and shift the tax burden, but is of the opinion that this is a matter which should be addressed to the Legislature since it is charged with the responsibility of determining the public policy of the state of Oregon with respect to cooperatives."
