

ONE SMALL CANDLE on a pretty cake marked the first birthday of Mark, young son of Mr. and Mrs. Rod Van Buskirk, who observed the day on December 22 during a holiday visit with his grandmother, Mrs. Claudine Van Buskirk. The young family welcomed the New Year at the home of Mrs. Van Buskirk's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Pete Wilkerson in Macdoel. They will return to Corvallis on Sunday where Rod is a student at Oregon State College.

CHRISTMAS was just a day for tiny eight weeks old Richard Bryan Wilkins, but for his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Bramlett, it meant having their children home for the holiday the first time since 1952. Mr. and Mrs. Joseph M. Wilkins and their young son, residents of Sacramento, were houseguests of Ralph Waggoner, who joined the Christmas day festivities at the Bramlett home. Another important event of the week was Richard's baptism at St. Paul's Episcopal Church on December 26 with Mr. and Mrs. Richard Cullen as Godparents.

ROUND ABOUT

By Helen Bechen
The busy holiday season meant much activity in most local homes as college folk arrived, visitors came and left, and general confusion for many families, but fun just the same.

Kathleen and Bob Thompson's home on Loma Linda Drive was busy with the comings and goings of their daughter, Sue, who brought her fiancé, Mike Doherty of Baker, home for the holidays.

The Ed Gearys had Christmas with Alice and Richard Kilham in San Francisco.

The day after a reception in their honor, Mr. and Mrs. Jack Maxwell and Mrs. Walter Beane flew to San Francisco. Mrs. Maxwell's daughter, Marcia, saw the East-West game with them and flew with her mother to Honolulu on January 2.

Mrs. Joseph Wilkins, the former Judy Bramlett, found herself pictured in the December 26 issue of Saturday Evening Post. She was a member of the Mother and Baby Care class sponsored by the Red Cross in Sacramento and pictured in "The Face of America" series.

The William Tyers of Medford with Debbie and Trudie were Christmas guests of Mrs. Tyer's twin sister, Gail Carter and her family.

A Christmas tree from the Klamath Falls Tree Farm was a welcome addition to Navy circles on Guam when it was received by Lt. Margaret B. O'Connor, daughter of the Jack Bishops of this city. At the time it was received it was the only one in Guam where Margaret is stationed with the medics.

Carrie Heilbronner invited a group of former college classmates and members of the '53 class of KUHS for an evening of fun at her home on December 26. She returned to Portland the next day stopping for a little skiing at Bachelor in Bend.
