Agri-Chemical Study Slated By State Unit

The growing concern with use of chemicals in agriculture will come before a study committee which will sift out and evaluate present information in this field, the State Board of Agriculture was informed Wednesday.

Frank McKennon, director of agriculture, told the board that he and Dean F. E. Price of Oregon State College have held preliminary discussions toward calling together a selected committee early in the new year. Representatives will be asked to participate from the state board of health, chemical companies, ground and air applicators and others directly concerned with the problem.

In connection with the discussion of spray residues, the board approved the stand taken by the State Department of Agriculture in the recent cranberry situation. Members agreed with McKennon that the first concern is for the needs of the public and its welfare but that within this framework the needs of agriculture should also be guarded.

Ward Spatz, Medford horticulturist, referred to the need for sprays on fruits, but said, "I cannot see for the life of me why growers should not follow the recommendations made for the use of these products."

McKennon reported that the Department has found no aminotriazole contamination in cranberries analyzed in its laboratories, nor was any found in samples the department sent to the federal laboratory in Albany, California.

The board approved a suggestion that the director of agriculture, in consultation with the OSC dean of agriculture, sift selections proposed by commodity commissions and that the governor make the appointment of basis of this screening. This proposal will be submitted to Governor Hatfield, who earlier asked that he be relieved of the many commission appointments.

Predator Kill Set At 941

Predators in Oregon caused heavy sheep losses during the past three months, the State Department of Agriculture reported Friday, listing 941 animals killed largely by coyotes according to co-operative federal-state hunters.

Ralph S. Ingles, Harney County hunter, reported 243 sheep taken by coyotes; next high was 84 attributed lost to coyotes by Gordon A. Mitchell, Crook County.

Total stock and game losses reported for the period of July 1 to October 4 were: sheep, 941; goats, 14; calves, 2; pigs, 50; and one colt. Poultry losses included: 729 chickens, 294 geese, 63 turkeys, and 25 ducks. Two antelope, six deer, and one pheasant succumbed to predators.

ABSENT-MINDED PROF

ALFRED, N.Y. (UPI) — When Prof. Ray W. Wingate of Alfred University moved into a new office, two five-pound sacks of sugar were discovered in the top of a phonograph in his old office. Wingate laughingly recalled that they were part of his World War II sugar ration and that he'd put them there 15 years ago "for safe-keeping" while he was out of town.
