Quips and Quotes

The motorist was disconsolate as he pulled into the garage. "What's the matter this time?" the mechanic asked.

"Remember that carburetor you installed that saves 30 percent on gas?"

"Yes."

"And the timer you sold me that saved 50 percent on gas, and the spark plugs that cut off another 30 percent?"

"Sure, I remember."

"Well, now put on something to stop the gas tank from overflowing!"

Mad Scramble

Although I can cook, it's the lord of our cottage
 Who enters the kitchen to glorify pottage.
 So when he's been cheffing, it's surely no matter
 For anguish to wash up a plate and a platter.
 And while I am at it, a mixer, a grater,
 A skillet (best soak it and scour it out later),
 A chopping bowl, a mixing bowl, measure, and
 stew pan;
 (Ah well, c'est la guerre, and we'll just get a new pan!)

Plus casserole, spatula, cheese knife, and strainer.
 But as I was saying, should I turn complainer
 At scullery duty when, out of this shambles,
 My darling serves eggs which he swears that he scrambles?

—Georgie Starbuck Galbraith

Note to a Doting Grandfather
 Give Junior a jarful of bugs,
 A parakeet, turtle, or guppy;
 But since we've just purchased new rugs,
 For Pete's sake, don't make it a puppy!
 —Hal Chadwick

When a boy follows in his father's footsteps, it's probably because he's too lazy to shovel the walk, too.
 —Francis O. Walsh

Wash day is one time a man is pretty sure of where his wife is hanging out.
 —Al Spong

"I wish you'd stop falling madly in love! It's hard enough doing your homework without having to do Janie Zimmerman's, too!"

Magic Button Trick

Bess A. Lee

Lay a large, flat button on the table. Ask someone in the group to place his hands, palms down, on the table near the button. Then you leave the room, and he picks up the button in one hand. Waving it in circles above his head, he says this rhyme slowly: "Button, button, round it goes—which hand holds it, no one knows." He puts the button back on the table, places his hands in the same position they were before, and calls for you to return. You look at the button and tell everyone in which hand it was held! How? See right.
