

SHARPLY CONTOURED HILLS such as this one rise here and there along the lake's shoreline, each hiding its own little inlet. Many of these spots are ideally suited for picnics and for swimming beaches.

GRASSY MEADOWS fringed with heavy brush of the country are dotted here and there around the winding shoreline of Copco Lake. Several of these clearings appear to be suitable for recreational development.

run I suppose it would boil down to whether or not the State of California believes it important enough to spend important money in development. Recreation looms large in the minds of the planners. It is likely that they will approve the project. If money should be available.

If the park is developed it will offer pleasant surroundings. It will interfere to some extent with hunting, but will offer probably more fishing than it supports now, although the lake is open to the public at at least one point and no boatmen are turned away.

If you are looking for a day's trip it might be worthwhile to drive down and take a look.

ABOUT THE COVER

The cover picture for this week was taken by Herald and News staff photographer Wes Guderian of a group of young skaters on Upper Klamath Lake during the recent cold spell. George Price, city parks and recreation director, says there have been as many as 800 youngsters skating on the lake on a single afternoon. He has provided supervision for this recreation as well as evening skating at the Moore Park rink.

RAZE IN PAY

CRESCENT CITY, Calif. (UPI)—Contractor Tom Hull built a water tank for the city 40 years ago for $1,000. He recently was awarded a contract to tear down the same tank for a $2,000.

Angus Bull Donated For Dimes March

RED BLUFF—A royally bred, top Angus herd bull prospect has been donated by William T. Beaton and wife of Napa, to be the March of Dimes bull at the 1960 Red Bluff Bull Sale, scheduled for February 4, 5, 6, according to Sidney Watson, member of the sale committee.

The young bull is sired by Bardoliermere S A 3510 who was sired by O Bardoliermere 35th, a full brother to the 1953 International Grand Champion Angus bull at Chicago.

The 1960 Red Bluff auction will offer 355 horned and polled Hereford bulls, 42 Shorthorns and 80 Angus consigned by 83 leading registered beef cattle breeders from seven western states, Watson added.

The March of Dimes bull will be sold on Friday, February 5, just preceding the auction of the Angus and Shorthorn consignment. Already, the Red Bluff event has brought in $103,029 for the Polio Foundation since this addition was included in the nation's greatest sale of graded and inspected bulls, the committeeman said.

He added that the Red Bluff Sale Committee first began auctioning a March of Dimes bull in 1947 and that this feature of the event has since become a traditional highlight of the famous sale.

Each year, he said, a noted figure in public life serves as a guest auctioneer. TV and movie star Rex Allen auctioned the 1959 March of Dimes bull for $11,009 to cattlemen operating in California, Nevada, Oregon, Iowa, Washington and Wyoming.

In February 1953, guest auctioneer Tennessee Ernie Ford obtained $10,595 for a Hereford March of Dimes bull.

Watson added that the name of another equally famous personality, who will serve as the 1960 March of Dimes bull guest auctioneer, will be announced soon.
