Court Meets On 30 Cases

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Supreme Court reconvenes today after its holiday recess with decisions awaited in some 30 cases involving espionage, race conflict, citizenship and other issues. Later in the week, the nine justices will hear arguments on the constitutionality of the 1957 civil rights law, which permits the federal government to enforce Negro voting rights. Attorney General William P. Rogers will represent the government. Federal Judge T. Hoyt Davis of Americus, Ga., ruled last April that the statute was unconstitutional. Among the more important cases up for decision is the dispute between the United States and five Gulf Coast states over ownership of the rich offshore oil lands. The government wants a state ownership confined to a three-mile belt around the coastline. The states claim as far out to sea as three leagues, or 10 1/2 miles. Decisions are due in race cases involving 1957 tax ordinances of Little Rock and North Little Rock, Ark., which require local NAACP groups to reveal their membership lists, and an attempt by Negroes to play on a Greensboro, N.C., golf course restricted to white persons. Arguments also have been heard on the appeal of Col. Rudolf Ivanovich Abel, Soviet Agent convicted of espionage in New York in 1957. Abel argued that the government violated the constitution's guarantee against unreasonable searches and seizures. A group of cases vitally important to the military services will determine whether the 480,000 dependents and other civilians living abroad with the armed forces are subject to trial by court-martial for non-capital offenses. The court previously has ruled that in cases involving the death penalty dependents must be given a civilian trial. In another personal liberties case, the high court has been asked to decide whether Congress can take away the citizenship of a native-born American if he goes abroad to escape military service.

New Boundary Bisects Dam

SALEM, Ore. (AP) — Maybe the new Oregon-Washington boundary isn't in the right place after all. The Oregon Committee on Interstate Cooperation has found that the new boundary would bisect the power house at John Day dam on the Columbia River. It wants to talk to Washington state officials about it. The new boundary was adopted in 1958, using fixed points along the river. The old boundary was the shifting channel of the river. John Day Dam now is under construction.

Missing Deb Is Located; On Trip With Chauffeur

ANTWERP, Belgium (AP) — Missing heiress Gamble Benedict today was traced to Paris after a freighter trip from New York with a married, Romanian-born chauffeur.

New York police said the 18-year-old New York debutante sailed from New York Dec. 31 aboard the freighter Edga with Andre Porumbeanu, 35, onetime chauffeur-buttler for Mrs. Arde Bulova, widow of the watch king. The freighter arrived in Antwerp Saturday. Both Miss Benedict and Porumbeanu remained aboard Saturday night, sources in Antwerp said.

Sunday afternoon Miss Benedict boarded an express train which got to Paris late in the afternoon. It could not be learned immediately whether she remained in the French capital. When they sailed from New York, she had listed Naples as her destination and Porumbeanu gave Paris as his, New York authorities said.

Police said they are closing the case since they are satisfied Miss Benedict voluntarily left her fashionable upper East Side home Dec. 27 after a society party. Friends had reported seeing her several times in New York since then. Her grandmother, Katherine Gaddes Benedict, who is under a physician's care, reported the girl missing. Friends said Mrs. Benedict, widow of Henry Harper Ben-

Jessel Picks Symington For President

NEW YORK (AP) — George Jessel nominated Stuart Symington for president Sunday night, and Joey Adams promised to run his campaign. But the senator said not one word about politics. He talked about Israel.

The Missourian, who is being billed as a possible dark horse at the Democratic convention, rushed up from Washington to help honor Jennie Grossinger, a Catskill Mountain innkeeper, who has a medical center in Israel named for her.

Before appearing at the Astor Hotel dinner sponsored by Histadrut, the Israel labor federation, Symington told reporters he wasn't planning to announce any political intentions that night—or any night soon. But he had no sooner got up on the dais—along with Eddie Fisher, Elizabeth Taylor and Harry Belafonte—and taken his seat alongside Carmine De Sapio, Democratic national committeeman, than Jessel was calling him "Mr. President."

Symington was introduced by Abraham Feinberg of New York City, chairman of the board of trustees of Brandeis University, Waltham, Mass., who said that "there are those of us who believe that the inexorable force of that which we call the democratic way may call him to higher office and greater responsibility."

Then Symington made a chatty speech about the trip to Israel from which he just returned—"Something I wanted to do a long time—a thrilling, delightful experience."

He said he was impressed with the courage and vision he found among the Israelis—"more than any other country I have ever been in."

Clipping Scarce; Barber Missing At San Quentin SAN QUENTIN, Calif. (AP) — Haircuts were hard to come by here today as state prison officials continued the search for the prison barber, Robbie Craig, missing since Thursday.

Craig, 28, a San Joaquin county burglar doing 15 years, is assumed still within the 42-acre prison grounds, although police are checking all his old contacts.

The 16 international airlines made 10,966 scheduled passenger flights across the Atlantic during the summer of 1959.

Sheriff Adopts Ancient Bromide, Finds It Works

MOUNDSVILLE, W.Va. (AP) — "I think that's the best way to handle a man — go through his stomach," says Sheriff Herman Laas. Laas cut off all food to 15 prisoners at the County Jail for three days after they tampered with the locks on their cell doors and gave him the "horse laugh" when he tried to talk to them about it. The 15 prisoners were given three regular meals Sunday after subsisting on tap water from their cells for more than 80 hours. "Everything has settled back to normal," the sheriff said. "The case is closed."

Union Aide Seeks Law To Prevent Strikebreak

SALEM (AP) — George Brown, political education director of the Oregon AFL-CIO, urged that Oregon pass a law to prevent struck industries from using professional strikebreakers.

Brown, appearing at a hearing before the Legislature's Labor-Management Committee, said that use of strikebreakers threatens to break down collective bargaining, with harm to the state's economy.

He told the committee, and the standing-room-only crowd of 250 persons, that professional strikebreakers are being used at Portland by The Oregonian and Oregon Journal, which have been publishing a joint edition since a stereotypers strike started two months ago. Other unions observed the picket line.

Brown said that if "importation of professional strikebreakers is allowed to continue, it can spread to every industry in the state, and can only lead to a breakdown of negotiations. "The result would be chaos, putting an end to collective bargaining, and returning to the law of the jungle."

Brown said Oregon could not attract new industry under such chaos. He said the "importation of professional strikebreakers by The Oregonian and Journal is a historic departure from historic, peaceful collective bargaining."

Brown agreed it is all right for a struck employer to try to continue operation—but not by importing strikebreakers. Other AFL-CIO witnesses testified that there are organizations which supply strikebreakers to struck newspapers, paying them premium wages.

Rene J. Valentine, Indianapolis, Ind., international representative of the International Typographical Union, testified about strikebreakers in other cities, asserting that some of the new employees of the Portland newspapers have broken strikes in other cities. He said a New York state investigating committee has found that it is not in the public interest to import strikebreakers. Gerald E. Gish, Cleveland, Ohio, now a member of the Typographical Union, said he was a strikebreaker from 1935 to 1937. He said he worked in Oklahoma City, Bristol, Pa., and Grand Junction, Ohio. He said he usually got $300 a week plus expenses, but that he had made as much as $827 a week. Gish said the organizations which supply strikebreakers usually know six months to two years ahead of time when there will be a strike. The hearing was requested by the labor unions.
