GELATIN

Modern foods aren't all like those of grandmother's day.

Where a grandmother spent hours boiling beef bones to obtain gelatin and make the soup nice and thick and rich, today's modern woman buys her gelatin in capsules.

The food we eat determines our health, beauty and industry. Food is a vital issue of the day, especially because we eat so little natural food.

For years, doctors have recommended gelatin to build strength during convalescence and for doctor-prescribed diets. All-Purpose Gelatin Capsules are low in calories, with only 2.1 calories in each capsule.

Gelatin is good for fingernail growth, for hair beauty and all around health. It can be taken in dry form mixed with fruit juice, broth or water or it can be swallowed as capsules with a drink of water.

Party Idea

Things to serve that are unusual—and not sweet—are in great demand with most hostesses during the holiday season when coffee are the order of the day.

Of course, if holiday parties were spaced evenly through the year they would be easier and perhaps more enjoyable in the total, but they are not, so a little advance thought to a different type of hot hors d'oeuvre may be in order.

Bacon Biscuit Balls offer one solution. These are biscuit morsels which capitalize on the smoky taste of bacon bits. They can be mixed, dropped on baking sheets and refrigerated with a damp towel covering hours before the party. When the guests arrive, a quick transfer to the hot oven is all that is needed.

Bacon has long been a party food. Broiled bacon wrapped olives or smoked oysters are always appealing. Crumbled crisp bacon makes almost any cheese spread better.

This Bacon Biscuit Balls recipe is courtesy of the Martha Logan test kitchens of Swift and Company, Chicago.

BACON BISCUIT BALLS

Yield: 50

- 1 pound sliced bacon
- 4 tablespoons chopped green pepper
- 3 tablespoons chopped mushrooms
- 1 1/2 cups sifted flour
- 2 teaspoons baking powder
- 1/4 teaspoon dry mustard
- 1 egg, beaten
- 1/2 cup milk
- 1/4 cup bacon drippings

Fry bacon until crisp. Save the drippings. Snip the bacon into small pieces and combine it with green pepper and mushrooms. Sift together the flour, baking powder and mustard. Mix the bacon and vegetables with the flour. Combine the egg, milk, and bacon drippings. Stir the liquid into the flour mixture with a fork. Drop by teaspoons onto a greased cookie sheet. Bake in a hot oven (425 degrees) about eight minutes.

Serve on wooden picks with a hot tomato sauce.

DATE ADVICE

Dates should be rolled in flour before they are cut. Then the slices will not stick together, nor will they cling to the scissors. The flour used should be a part of that called for in the recipe.

GRAVY

If you like to add catsup to a pot roast gravy, go easy on the amount or the gravy will be too sweet.

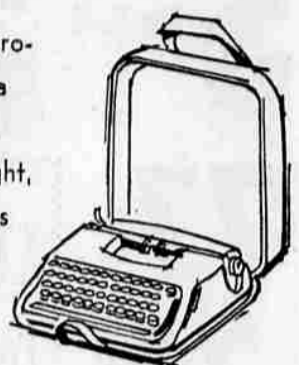

LEFTOVER POTATOES

Slice those leftover cooked potatoes (boiled or baked), arrange in a baking dish you can bring to the table. Brush potatoes with melted butter, salt and pepper to taste and broil.

HEIGHT for spring is portrayed in this high crowned cloche by Chenda in burnt straw with two belts of black grosgrain. A black face veil completes the look of elegance.

WHITE MILAN is stitched in this new sailor-baret by Irene of New York. The brim has the "upswept broton" feeling yet the bulk of a baret fills the crown.

SPRING HATS

One of the important silhouettes for spring 1960 is the Broton; the innovation: the up-swept front. The newest version is banded about the crown with an up-sweeping brim.

There is a definite trend toward large full-blown berets worn to the back of the head or on profile. These seem to be right for many of the suits and ready-to-wear that have short, young jackets with skirts lightly gathered or rounded at the sides or for the Chanel-inspired ensembles. Height is featured in tall pillboxes, turbans and toques which often telescope, and fezzes that keep to the back of the head are shown in many collections. All in all, the spring season calls for the "battier hat" with a stress on the bulky look, not heavy, but light. Ready-to-wear seems to demand this silhouette because of the short bell sleeves cut just above the elbow featured in coats, suits and dresses. It gives perfect balance to the total look. Solid flowers are blooming as usual on the hat fashion scene.

As to materials, there's a great use of handmade braids which are lustrous and appealing. This medium seems to be the perfect accompaniment for the white tones (banana, cream, ivory, etc.) endorsed by the ready-to-wear market.

Novelty straw handings are featured either sewn together, or for an airy effect, stitched on net, which gives a soft, light look to many of the fuller silhouettes.

Panamatic, ball-hurl and strawcloths are found in every line. There seems to be an emphasis on texture both in hat bodies and novelty braids. As a contrast there are the fine braids—seven millan for example, and the novelty lace and light braids. Fabrics seem to emphasize geometric patterns with muted tones and flower prints. There are chiffons, stitched fabrics, crepes and silk jerseys.

Colors are gold shades, ranging from chamis to bright buttercup yellow; blues, from ice to rivers to sapphire; reds, carnation pink to ruby; and whites and neutrals. The very bright clear colors may take the lead in the fashion picture since the "gloomy" prints and whites which are seen in coats, suits and dresses, need a color accent.

GLAZE A shiny glaze for a hot bread is made by spooning a confectioner's sugar frosting over the top while the bread is hot.
