The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Edward Owings of this city. Her husband is the bridegroom's mother.

Harold Owings escorted his daughter to the altar which was effectively decorated with red and white chrysanthemums for the occasion. She wore a street length gown of white Chantilly lace over satin with white satin slippers and a shoulder length veil of illusion. She carried a bouquet of white baby chrysanthemums and red rosebuds. She also wore a blue garter and a 1941 lucky penny in her slipper. A strand of pearls was borrowed from her grandmother.

S. Adams Jr., all of Lakeview.

The double ring ceremony was performed by Father Peter Duignan and he celebrated the Nuptial Mass. The bride's father was her escort to the altar.

The attractive bride wore a floor length gown of Chantilly lace and tulle over satin in traditional white. The sleeves were long with wrist points and the neckline was outlined with seed pearls and iridescent sequins. The same trim marked the headdress which held the fingertip veil of illusion. The full skirt of the gown, descending from the fitted bodice, was gathered in the back with tiers of tulle. She carried a bouquet of white poinsettias and her only jewelry was a pearl necklace, a gift from the bridegroom.

The bridesmaids, Judith Adams, a sister of the bridegroom, and Ann Toews, a college roommate of the bride, were dressed in bright Christmas green and carried red poinsettias. Red poinsettias decorated the three altars of the church.

Mrs. Edward Zarosinski was soloist, accompanied by Mrs. Herbert Sanderson, who also played the wedding march.

Best man was Pat O'Connor and ushers were Jim Lynch of Lakeview and Barney Barnes of Bellingham. Mrs. Quisenberry's ensemble was of American Beauty red and she wore a white orchid corsage. The bridegroom's mother wore a gold and beige brocade costume with beige accessories and a brown orchid corsage.

The reception following the ceremony was held at Van's Colonial Room where the five tiered white and silver wedding cake was centered on a table decorated with red poinsettias and white tapers. Cutting the cake were Mrs. Clifton Molatore and Mrs. Leo Molatore of Klamath Falls. Coffee was poured by Eleanor Newman of Fresno, an aunt of the bridegroom, and Mrs. Gail Reynolds of Lakeview. Mrs. Tom Flynn and Mrs. George Giese served punch. Kerry Adams presided at the guest book and Judy Barry at the gift table.
