Paratrooper Vows Loyalty To Army Boss

PARIS (UPI)—Paratrooper Gen. Jacques Massu issued a carefully worded communique today pledging his loyalty to the chief of the French army in Algeria but not directly to President Charles de Gaulle.

An angry De Gaulle abruptly summoned the major general to Paris Tuesday night for a showdown on whether the paratroopers were plotting an army-backed anti-De Gaulle uprising in Algiers.

Massu was accused of harsh criticism of De Gaulle at a moment when unrest in Algeria was increasing every hour, both among the army and the right-wing French settlers who fear a De Gaulle "sellout."

It was Massu, 51, the lean and hawk-faced head of army and civilian affairs in Algiers that led the May 13, 1958, revolt which swept away the Fourth French Republic and brought De Gaulle to power.

He was quoted this week by a German newspaper as saying in an interview the army was wondering if it had made a mistake in backing De Gaulle, hinting at the use of force and accusing him of becoming a leftist.

Today making the statements. De Gaulle after a long conference between Massu and Armed Forces Minister Pierre Guillaumat, Massu again denied the interview and affirmed his loyalty to the Algerian commander-in-chief, Gen. Andre Challe.

Massu's third-person statement also said "the efforts of General De Gaulle to restore peace in Algeria has conferred on him the confidence of the Moslem masses."

His statement said nothing about the confidence of the European settlers in De Gaulle. But in Algiers it was eroding visibly. Army sound trucks rolled through the sunny streets of Algiers today blaring the declaration last October of Paul de Loubrier, De Gaulle's chief civil administrator in Algeria: "France remains and will remain. The army remains and will remain."

WASHINGTON (AP)—A bill which would require airlines to make preflight searches of luggage and cargo for bombs and other destructive items was introduced in the House today.

Rep. James G. O'Hara (D-Mich) offered the measure which would require examination of all articles except mail taken aboard commercial passenger aircraft.

O'Hara said it would not necessarily require that passengers open all luggage because X-ray equipment "may provide adequate examinations."

Senate investigators have suggested that bombings may have been involved in the recent destruction of two airliners with a loss of 76 lives.

EARL AGER

Supervisor Files Again

TULELAKE—Earl Ager, member of the Siskiyou County Board of Supervisors, District No. 1, today announced his candidacy for a second four-year term on the board.

Ager, a native, and third generation member of a Siskiyou County family, was appointed four years ago to fill out the unexpired term of the late Howard Dayton, Tulelake, who died soon after being elected.

He was quoted this week by a German newspaper as saying in an interview the army was wondering if it had made a mistake in backing De Gaulle, hinting at the use of force and accusing him of becoming a leftist.

Either-Sex Deer Question To Be Resolved By Group

SACRAMENTO (UPI)—Assemblywoman Pauline L. Davis, chairman of the Assembly Fish and Game Committee, will appoint a citizens group this week to resolve the dispute over either-sex deer hunting in California.

The committee agreed Tuesday to select a Citizens Advisory Committee on Big Game at a session held to discuss sportsmen's views on policies of the Fish and Game Department.

Assemblyman John Williamson (D-Bakersfield) made a surprise motion to establish the group. The motion was approved without opposition.

Williamson said the committee, which he envisioned as having between 10 and 15 members, would be appointed by Mrs. Davis.

Under the resolution adopted by the committee, Mrs. Davis would be required to make appointments that will provide a representative cross-section of sportsmen's groups and of state and federal agencies.

Williamson's resolution added that the committee would "meet at its discretion and report its opinions and recommendations on big game management to the (F&G Committee) sometime prior to the 1961 general session of the Legislature."

Mrs. Davis said she would appoint the committee late this week but was unable to say how many members would be asked to serve.

Williamson said his move resulted from field trips taken by the committee at which he noted discussion among individual sports club members over deer management policies of the Fish and Game Department and the commission.

Walter T. Shannon, new director of the fish and game agency, said he would support either-sex deer hunts. He said such hunts were sound game management.

But at Tuesday's committee session, Shannon said the department had no desire to "shove antlerless hunts down people's throats." He pointed out that the great majority of western states have either-sex hunts.

This comment came after Burton Banzhaf, president of the Ukiah Rod and Gun Club, had testified that his group believes the department is spending too much money trying to convince people that antlerless deer hunting will benefit deer herds.

The final witness at the two-day hearing was Edward Bruce, president of the California Wildlife Federation. He testified that his organization, which claims 100,000 members, would oppose Gov. Edmund G. Brown's $1,750,000 water bond issue if the governor does not call a special session this year to make allowance for recreational facilities in the water program.

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Supreme Court today rejected an attempt by the state Legislature to increase the salaries of its 90 members from $600 a year to $2,100.

The court ruled unconstitutional a 1959 law making that increase. It held that the people, and not the Legislature, should decide what legislators should be paid.

The suit was brought by state Sen. Ben Chapman (D-Coos Bay), who contended that the $600 salary provided in the Constitution is not a limit on the salary.

But the Supreme Court, in a unanimous decision by Justice Hall S. Lusk, ruled that it is a limit.

At the same time that the Legislature passed the law to increase its salaries, it also proposed a constitutional amendment to boost the limit to $2,100 a year.

This constitutional amendment will be on the ballot at the primary election on May 20.

Reds Remove Former Aide

MOSCOW (UPI)—Radio Moscow today announced a major reshuffle in the government of the Kazakhstan Republic and confirmed that Nikolai Belyaev has been removed as the republic's Communist party chief.

The broadcast said Kazakhstan Premier Dinnukhamed Kunayev replaced Belyaev as Communist party first secretary.

A session of the Kazakhstan Supreme Soviet in Alma Ata today named Zhuma Bek Tashenev, former chairman of the Tashkent Soviet, to replace Kunayev as premier of the republic.

Elected to replace Tashenev was Deputy Korezhbanov (no first name given), Moscow Radio said.

Leonid Brezhnev, member of the ruling party presidium in Moscow and a secretary of the Soviet Communist Central Committee, attended the Alma Ata session.

The brief Moscow radio broadcast made no mention of Belyaev by name.

In 1957 Premier Nikita Khrushchev sent Belyaev to the huge grain-producing Kazakhstan Republic as a trouble shooter. Khrushchev's massive virgin lands scheme centers largely on Kazakhstan.

Last month, at a Central Committee meeting in Moscow, Khrushchev sternly criticized Belyaev for failing to report to Moscow serious shortcomings in the Kazakhstan agricultural situation.

The first hint that more than a reprimand was in store for Belyaev came last week when the Soviet news agency Tass listed him without title among a number of people awarded a medal for "labor valor."

Belyaev has been the only member of the ruling presidium working outside Moscow. He was also a secretary of the Central Committee.

Last week, fellow presidium member Alexei Kirichenko also apparently fell out of favor. He was assigned to the regional party secretariat in far-off Rostov on the Don River. Apparently, Kirichenko was removed from the presidium and the Central Committee secretariat.

Fifty-Eight Perish In 2 Air Crashes

ANKARA, Turkey (AP)—Two planes crashed in Turkey a few hours apart Tuesday and all the 58 persons aboard them were believed killed.

Wreckage of a U.S. Navy plane that disappeared with 16 persons on a daylight flight from Rota, Spain, to the U.S. air base at Adana, Turkey, was sighted today on Karanfil (pink) Mountain, 15 miles northwest of Adana, Turkish sources said there was no sign of life.

Forty-two persons, all aboard, were lost in the crash of a Scandinavian Airlines jet Tuesday night on a hill near Ankara, 250 miles to the west.

The Ankara disaster was the third crash of a commercial airliner since 1960 began less than three weeks ago. It brought the death toll for commercial aviation this year to 126.

The U.S. Navy plane, a twin-engine P4M reconnaissance amphibian, made a routine refueling stop Tuesday at Naples, Italy, and then took off for Adana.

It was due there at 3:45 p.m. (5:45 a.m. PST). A hunt by air, ground and sea was launched when the plane, after making radio contact with the base, failed about 50 miles from Adana, failed to show up.

A British search plane was first to spot the wreckage, on an peak about 9,500 feet high. An American rescue team of 40 men set out for the area.

Names of the persons on the Navy plane were withheld. The dead in the Ankara crash included one American, James Hopkins of Birmingham, Mich., a chemical engineer for the Pfizer Corp. stationed in Istanbul. He was going to Cairo on business.

Also aboard was a Canadian woman identified as Mariella Laurenden and two Britons.

One victim, 37-year-old Per Ekberg of Helsingborg, Sweden, was on his way to Cairo to bring home the ashes of his father, the Swedish consul general there, who died Jan. 11.

The plane was a French-built twin-jet Caravelle operated by Scandinavian Airlines. It was the first commercial crash for the Caravelle since Air France and the Scandinavian line began using it a year ago.

The plane encountered heavy rain and wind as it approached Ankara, but airport experts said the crash "was caused by technical reasons—not the weather."

The Caravelle had left Stockholm and Copenhagen Tuesday and had stopped in Duesseldorf, Germany, Vienna, Austria, and Istanbul. From Ankara it was to fly on to Damascus and Cairo. As it approached Ankara it carried 35 passengers and a crew of 7.

About five minutes before he was to land, the pilot asked the Ankara airport control tower for landing clearance. He reported an altitude of 6,500 feet, then went silent. Airport workers saw a bright flash and put out an alarm.

Rescue teams found the wreckage scattered over about 300 square yards. Half the plane lay on one slope of a hill about 75 yards high. The rest lay on another slope. Bodies were strewn over 100 yards.

Three persons were found alive. Two died soon after. The third, a woman, died in an Ankara hospital this morning.

Navy Photog Gives Account Of Sighting

HONOLULU (AP)—A Navy photographer's mate supplied an eyewitness account of the sighting of three Soviet ships deployed to participate in the Soviet rocket shoots southwest of Hawaii.

Eugene Meece, Dayton, Ohio, said he was on patrol in a P2V patrol plane Jan. 14 and 15 when the ships were sighted and photographed.

"I picked up three ships in a heavy overcast with visibility limited to about six miles. All three were in line and steaming along at about six knots with the Sibir leading," Meece said Tuesday.

"Following the Sibir were the Suchan and the Sakhalin." He said the Sibir and the Sakhalin were almost of equal size. The Suchan was smaller.

He said the Sibir and Sakhalin had three bubble-like turrets, painted white, forward and aft. "The largest of these appeared to be nearly 40 feet high," the sailor said.

The ships were identified by the Soviet names on their bows and their Soviet flags.

On Jan. 15, Meece said, "we flew out from Johnston Island to make another contact. This time the three ships were stationed in a triangular pattern, six miles apart and they appeared to be making no headway."

A Navy spokesman said movie film Meece exposed was sent to Washington for clearance and possible release to the press.

Court Nixes Salary Hike

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Oregon Supreme Court today rejected an attempt by the state Legislature to increase the salaries of its 90 members from $600 a year to $2,100.

The court ruled unconstitutional a 1959 law making that increase. It held that the people, and not the Legislature, should decide what legislators should be paid.

The suit was brought by state Sen. Ben Chapman (D-Coos Bay), who contended that the $600 salary provided in the Constitution is not a limit on the salary.

But the Supreme Court, in a unanimous decision by Justice Hall S. Lusk, ruled that it is a limit.

At the same time that the Legislature passed the law to increase its salaries, it also proposed a constitutional amendment to boost the limit to $2,100 a year.

This constitutional amendment will be on the ballot at the primary election on May 20.

The people voted in 1950 to increase legislative pay from $8 a day for the first 30 days of each session to a flat $600 a year.

Hawaii Town Dies Slowly

KAPOHO, Hawaii (UPI)—"Watching a town die is an ugly sight."

This is the way a reporter described the situation today at this tiny Hawaiian village, which appears certain to be buried by lava from Kilauea Volcano's latest eruption.

Workers bulldozer operators worked throughout the night building a huge dike of earth, but they admitted fears that the wall would not withstand the pressure of the moving mountain of lava which looms over Kapoho.

If the 2,500-foot dike fails to hold, the creeping river of molten rock will have nothing to prevent it from smothering two million dollars worth of real estate lying along the Hawaii coast.

At noon Tuesday, the lava flow was only 100 yards from the Nakamura store in the center of Kapoho. At 3 p.m. it was only 90 yards away, and all cars were ordered out of the village as huge cracks began splitting the side of the piper cone facing Kapoho. By 6 p.m. the lava had advanced another 20 yards.

3 Children Die In Fire

SMELTERTVILLE, Idaho (UPI)—Three children ranging from 2 months to 7 years died in their beds early today when their one-story frame home was swept by flames.

The youngsters were the children of Mr. and Mrs. George Ackerman.

Mrs. Ackerman escaped with singed hands and face but was taken to Shoshone General Hospital in nearby Kellogg, Idaho. Her condition was listed as good.

The father was away from home at the time.

Kellogg Fire Chief Bill Linhart said an overheated oil stove outside the door to the bedroom where the two older children slept probably set a wall on fire. The baby was sleeping in a room with the mother about 10 feet from the spot where the fire started.

Linhart said Mrs. Ackerman awoke to find the home in flames and ran to the home of a neighbor who called the Kellogg fire department.

"By the time we topped the hill going into Smelterville the sky was all lit up," Linhart said. "The children never moved. They were right there in their beds as though they were asleep. There was nothing we could do. They were dead long before we got there."

Identity Try Made By Kin

RICHMOND, Va. (UPI)—Grieving relatives of 50 men, women and children killed in the crash of a jet-powered airliner converged on Richmond today to try to identify the charred remains of their loved ones.

The last of the blackened bodies was brought to the morgue at a downtown Richmond hospital Tuesday afternoon—more than 15 hours after the Capital Airlines Viscount crashed into a creek bed near Holdercroft, Va. and burst into flames.

Officials stood by to assist the relatives as they try to find their kin among the bits of remains lying in baskets by side.

Watches, rings and other items of jewelry, carefully labeled before being removed from the bodies, were spread out on a table to assist in making the identifications.

Officials believed dental X-rays will be required in most cases. The bodies were so badly burned that only seven could be identified immediately.

Mrs. Martha W. Schaefer was called to jail on a stretcher by police when she refused to accompany officers to a scheduled court session.

The jail stay lasted nearly three hours. Mrs. Schaefer was finally persuaded to enter Judge Gilbert Bettman's courtroom voluntarily.

Officials of the state drivers' license department had been trying since last May to get Mrs. Schaefer to surrender her license. They contended her vision is too poor for driving.

Tuesday's court session was to answer a charge of failure to surrender the permit.

When she finally showed up, the judge made confiscation of the license official and fined her $25 and costs.

All proceeds will go again to the New March of Dimes, the charity organization dedicated to treatment of and research into polio, arthritis and congenital defects.

Big Phone Bill To Be Discarded

FRESNO, Calif. (AP)—That $1,642 in long distance telephone tolls talked up by 13-year-old Helen Jackson? The company has agreed to forget that.

But Pacific Telephone Co. officials said Tuesday the padlock will remain on the phone at the Jackson home.

An investigation disclosed Helen made 462 calls to Los Angeles in December 1958 and charged them to other Fresno numbers. Company attorney Nathan Gutthert said the girl's widowed mother, Myrtle Jackson, admitted the liability but is unable to pay the bill, so the company wrote it off the books.
