

Problem With China Eyed Now That U.S. Pact OK'd

TOKYO (AP) — Prime Minister Nobusuke Kishi is under rising pressure from many Japanese sources, including some members of his own Liberal-Democratic party, to move closer to neighboring Communist China.

The nettlesome China question is high on the agenda of the Japanese leader's talks in Washington with President Eisenhower. Kishi said after their first meeting Tuesday he had pointed out to Eisenhower that Japan historically has had ties with the Chinese mainland and that Japan is strongly interested in all Asian problems.

Socialists, Communists, conservative business interests and some leading conservative politicians are pressing Kishi to seek a rapprochement with the big Communist neighbor. There is speculation that once Kishi has placed Japan-U.S. relations on a secure basis for at least another decade, he will make a serious effort to come to grips with the Chinese problem.

Peiping itself has done nothing to help relax the tension which now exists between the two countries. After breaking off trade talks in the spring of 1958, it insisted that future commercial agreements must be accompanied by political concessions. The Communists want Japan to break off its present diplomatic ties with Nationalist China and then to recognize the Peiping government.

The Communist aim is to see Japan turned into a neutralist country, leaning toward Moscow and Peiping. This would involve treaties with Communist China and the Soviet Union and a break in the military tie with the United States.

Kishi has made it plain he is buying none of this. But if he is to survive the struggle now developing within his own party, he may feel it necessary to make some concessions to critics clamoring for a change.

Two prominent Tories, former Premier Tanzan Ishibashi and Kenzo Matsunura, recently made trips to the Chinese mainland and discussed Chinese-Japanese relations with Red leaders. Ishibashi returned advocating recognition.

Hayato Ikeda, Kishi's international trade and industry minister, prominently mentioned as a possible future premier, created a stir two weeks ago by suggesting that once the Japan-U.S. treaty is ratified, steps should be taken to break the deadlock with China.

Business interests have their eyes on the two-way, 196-million-dollar trade between the two countries envisioned in the interrupted 1958 talks.

The trade argument is a strong one in a nation which depends on selling its goods abroad.

Many Japanese also are influenced by less tangible but just as powerful considerations in their desire to get closer to the Chinese.

One of these is the belief that the Japanese understand the Chinese mind better than any Occidental can.

Under the surface, also, is admiration for the industrial progress the Chinese have accomplished in only 10 years.

Some Japanese also feel that it might be a good idea to be on the good side of the giant casting a long shadow across Asia. The Japanese, a practical people, look at a map and point out that the United States, with all its good will, is a long distance away.

Girl Sledder Dies Crashing Vehicle

KANSAS CITY, Mo. (AP) — A frolic on an icy hill proved fatal Tuesday night for Shyre Lynn Schaeffer, 10.

She was killed when her sled crashed into a car at the foot of the slope near her home.

Shyre Lynn was the daughter of Capt. Norman Schaeffer, hero of an emergency landing at nearby Olathe, Kan., last year. Schaeffer made a safe belly-landing of his Trans-World Airlines plane after its landing gear failed. The plane's 27 passengers and four crewmen escaped unhurt.
