

Valley Livestock Leader Addresses Market Group

Flocco Feldmiller who heads the Valley Livestock Marketing Association, Stockton, guest speaker at the annual meeting of the Klamath County Livestock Marketing Association in the Henley Grange Hall, January 13, spoke on imports of lamb and mutton, the need for standardization of meat merchandising and other problems pertinent to livestock production.

THE MEETING, second since association incorporation, followed a potluck dinner. The organization, a Farm Bureau-sponsored service, was organized several years ago and in its earlier history was active in shipping cattle to California markets.

For the last two years the Klamath County marketing group has concentrated efforts to aiding sheep producers through two marketing pools, for lambs and wool. The lamb pool is headed by George Rankin, Merrill, the wool pool by Earl Mack, Henley.

Feldmiller stated that pool marketing of hogs and sheep is more successful than similar handling of cattle due to uniformity of size.

He recommended that import quotas be imposed on lamb and mutton with excesses subject to higher tariffs, the setting up of a government agency with a view to spreading imports over areas where the impact on the market would be lessened and stricter inspection, sanitation, and quarantine measures.

HE FURTHER said that standardization is needed in the merchandising of meat to reduce the use of different companies of descriptive wordage indicating meat grades. Standardization would thus be of aid to the smaller packers, Feldmiller stated.

The U.S. Department of Agriculture plans suspension of lamb grading, Feldmiller said, but some system of grading should be continued. Lamb grading and handling services through the affiliate Valley Association are provided locally by Gene Slater who personally assists on the ranches before shipments.

Aid to the wool pool has consisted of extending protection of incorporation to its business transactions, certain office and book-keeping and office services performed.

Wool is sold after bids are submitted to the wool pool by individual buyers from various parts of the country.

DURING THE LAST YEAR, Lucille Estes, Federal Land Bank, and Gene McCurley, First National Bank, assisted the sheepmen in figuring paychecks; Ray Peterson, extension office, and Bryant Williams, Federal Land Bank, aided in sorting the lambs for shipment.

The lamb pool did a business of $217,462.43 in 11 shipments during 1959, Marketing Association records show. A total of 141 sheep producers benefited from the pool. The wool pool in a single shipment sold $80,111.52 in wool. The figures for the two pools total $297,573.95.

Earl Kerns is president of the Klamath County Marketing Association board of directors; Kermit Peterson of Klamath Production Credit Association is secretary. Other board members are Gerald West, M. G. Burke, Lloyd Hankins; Aubrey Fleming and Bob Lynn, reelected at the meeting for three-year terms, and George Rankin, elected to fill the unexpired term of Bob Burleigh of Merrill.

$10,000 Limit On Campaigns Starts Row

WASHINGTON (AP) — A proposal to impose a $10,000 limit on individual campaign contributions stirred a fresh round of Senate controversy today over a bill to regulate spending in federal elections.

The measure already has been strengthened in two major respects by amendments covering primary elections and state and local political committees which support candidates for federal office.

Sen. Everett M. Dirksen (R-Ill.), who fought both amendments, told a reporter he would not be surprised if the bill now is pigeon-holed in the House.

From the start of Senate debate last week, the bill never has been rated much chance of House passage. No action has been taken there looking toward a comparable measure.

The bill, revising the 1925 Corrupt Practices Act, would require more detailed reporting of campaign contributions and expenditures in federal elections and raise legal spending ceilings to reflect cost increases.

The amendment to put an overall limit of $10,000 a year on any individual's contributions to or expenditures for federal election campaigns was offered by Sen. Thomas C. Hennings Jr. (D-Mo.).

Under present law, an individual is limited to contributing $5,000 to any one candidate or campaign committee but there is no limit on the number of candidates or committees to which he may contribute.

Hennings said a Senate investigation of campaign spending showed that in the 1956 election members of 12 prominent families contributed $1,153,000 and one family alone gave $248,423.

He said that these contributions were within the letter of the law as it now exists, but he said "it must be admitted that the possibility of influencing candidates or the results of an election is clear in the light of such heavy contributions."

The amendment provides that violators of the proposed limitation would be subject to a $5,000 fine or five years' imprisonment, or both.

KPCA Issues Car Stickers

Courtesy stickers have been issued to members and guests of the Klamath Production Credit Association for parking Saturday, January 23, during the annual membership meeting at the Klamath Auditorium.

Members will begin registration at 11:30 a.m. A smorgasbord luncheon is to be served followed by the annual business meeting, election of two directors, reports and a talk by Fred P. Hahn, secretary-treasurer, of the Federal Intermediate Credit Bank of Spokane.

Luncheon will be prepared and served by Dick Marks, former owner of the Palm Cafe in Merrill, now at Reames Golf and Country Club.

Mayor Slater will welcome guests on behalf of the city and M. A. Long, KPCA board member, will emcee the meeting.

Students of the Malin High School will sing and Robertson Accordion School students will entertain. Shirley Bunnell will be at the Baldwin organ, used through courtesy of the Bowden Music Store.

Regard Mergers Carefully, Says President Of Liberia

MONROVIA, Liberia (UPI) — President William V. S. Tubman of Liberia said today he favored some sort of an economic common market for Liberia and the new independent states in West Africa but all talk of political mergers should be regarded with caution.

Starting his 17th year as president, Tubman said in an exclusive UPI interview "with all this agitation for takeovers and giving up national sovereignty I have been preaching the doctrine in my fellow heads of state in West Africa that we must show much caution and consideration in what we do."

He added: "Conditions are too unsettled to determine now what countries would fit into any kind of social, economic or political union."

"None of us knows enough about our neighbors down here yet. All West African states have been separated by artificial boundaries and there's too little communication across the borders."

Tubman said African leaders should delay "any serious talks" until after the advent of Nigerian independence in October. He added that "our minimum wish and desire would be to see all West African nations fit into some kind of economic unity like the European common market but it must depend on the respective countries themselves."

The Liberian president added: "The basis should exist for stronger economic ties and exchanges between Guinea, Ghana, Nigeria, Cameroon, Togoland, the Ivory Coast, Mali, Gambia, Sierra Leone and Liberia."

Tubman went on to say that the first steps in strengthening ties between Africans should be regional "not continental, economic or political."

Tubman said he favors, for example, opening "the door to multinational investment in enterprises requiring greater resources and markets than any single country has available."

sources so each nation has access to existing educational and training institutions in other countries."
