Facilities At School 'Sparkle'

By NORM CARDOZA Sacred Heart Academy high school students moved last week into bright rooms on the second floor of the new academy wing. The ground floor, except for the auditorium, should be ready to accommodate students next Monday. Except for minor finishing touches, work should be complete then. Sacred Heart Catholic Parish is planning dedication ceremonies to be scheduled sometime during the first half of March. The building, engineered by Architect Howard Perrin, is of informal, massive brick design. It contains three homerooms and various store rooms upstairs and a big science room that can be divided by a sliding curtain, a photographic darkroom and the auditorium downstairs. It is of fire resistant construction, and all rooms are furnished with acoustic panels to cut down echoes. The carefully engineered auditorium will seat more than 300. It widens, fanlike, from the stage to the rear for best acoustics, and the ceiling is studded with vee-shaped ridges for the same purpose. Workmen will soon install curtains on the roomy stage which may be arranged in a square or rounded backdrop. A heating system circulates hot water through a series of radiators built much like those used in autos. They will eliminate hammering steam pipes and allow better control of temperature. The building also features an automatic sprinkling fire protection system which automatically rings fire alarms in all segments of the academy in case of fire. Juniors, sophomores and freshmen use second-floor classrooms for English, math, Latin and religious courses. Journalism students also use the English room. Social sciences, commercial subjects and Spanish will continue to be taught in the older building. New classrooms are walled on one side completely with windows except for a low bookshelf running room-length beneath them. Each has a sink and drinking fountain. They also are supplied amply with blackboards and bulletin boards. Pastel colors harmonize with smart, modern desks. Built-in steel lockers line one side of corridors on both floors. The annex was first to have been opened at Christmas, but construction was delayed. It cost $229,425. Vik Construction Company of Eugene, and 20 subcontractors built it.

NEW CLASSROOMS were opened recently to Sacred Heart Academy students, thus alleviating crowded conditions due to heavy enrollment this year. This is a home room on the second floor.

Youths Face Damage Quiz

At least 15 juveniles questioned in the wholesale destruction of a summer cabin are willing to help repair damages. So the juveniles said at a mass meeting of 20 youths questioned in the juvenile office about destruction wrought a Denny Creek cabin owned by Dave and Hubert Totton. Deputy Sheriff Del Summers and City Juvenile Officer Ray Howard brought 20 juveniles in for questioning about the early December raid brought about by a drinking party. Another youth, Lyle Dean McFarland, 18, was charged with malicious destruction of property, pleaded guilty, and was fined $200 by District Judge D. E. Van Vactor. A dispute between youths invited and youths not invited to a barbecue at the cabin site apparently brought about the raid. Destruction advanced from throwing beer bottles to ripping apart windows, doors, and furniture. Damage was estimated about $2,000. The juvenile office said five youths refused to offer assistance in reconstructing the cabin because they stoutly maintained that they had nothing to do with its destruction. They said they had been invited to a party, saw what was going on, and went home. Whether the cabin is to be repaired, with the help of parents, was yet to be decided. One of the owners said he had not been approached with the idea.

Bard Festival Dates Noted

The Oregon Shakespearean Festival will mark its 20th season by playing the longest run in its history. Fresh from 1959's record-breaking season and the launching of its unique new theater, the festival will open its 1960 season on July 25 and play 41 consecutive nights until September 3. The festival was a three-day community event when founded in 1935 by Angus L. Bowmer, professor of drama at Southern Oregon College. As its producing director, Bowmer has guided its growth from that small beginning to a theater of international renown that is attracting actors and audiences from all parts of the world. Plays for the 1960 repertoire will be Taming of the Shrew, The Tempest, Julius Caesar and Richard II, plus the Duchess of Malfi.

3-Year Term Given Airman

John William Carswell, a 22-year-old airman, was sentenced to three years in the penitentiary Tuesday afternoon for illegal possession of narcotics. Sentence was passed by Circuit Judge David R. Vandenberg after Carswell testified briefly in his own behalf in an attempt to lessen his sentence. Carswell was convicted January 19 by a circuit court jury that deliberated only 14 minutes before reaching its verdict. The young airman was arrested on a downtown street corner October 1 on a charge of selling marijuana to another Kingsley Field airman. Carswell had not taken the stand in his own trial. But before sentencing he testified he had obtained money from the other airman, passed the money to a Broad Street resident known as "Light" Brown, and had driven around the block while Brown obtained the drug. Defense attorneys Richard C. Beesley and P. K. Puckett emphasized to the court that this was Carswell's first offense, and maintained he had been talked into making the transaction.

Five Juveniles Reprimanded

Five juveniles — two of them girls — were lectured sternly by juvenile authorities after city police found them in a parked car in which beer had been drunk. With the juveniles was Emerson Jerome Adams, 18, Route 3, Wocous, who forfeited $25 in municipal court on a charge of being a minor in possession. Juvenile officers said interviews with the juveniles involved, with their parents and Lawrence Lusk, liquor inspector, determined that the juveniles had been invited into the car and had not known beer was in the vehicle.

A county road department pickup truck stolen from in front of a foreman's home Monday night was recovered Tuesday near Sand Creek. Operations Of SA Given Praise

The 1959 operation of the Klamath Falls Christmas Clearing Bureau moved smoothly with less conflicts and duplications than in previous years. A report of the operation was made by Maj. M. Lewis Kendall, commander of the Klamath Falls Salvation Army which successfully conducted the bureau for the second consecutive year. Investigations of requests made to the bureau by individuals and agencies were made by a committee appointed by the Inter-Agency Council which included Paul Campbell, executive director of the YMCA; Virginia Dixon, executive director of the Klamath Basin Chapter Red Cross; Ella Parker, Klamath County Welfare Office, and Major Kendall of the Salvation Army. Personal contacts were made to 80 families by Major Kendall to determine actual needs. Through the screening process many of the previous embarrassing problems encountered in 1958 were eliminated. There were 184 applicants; 950 individuals involved; 30 groups used the bureau; 163 families received baskets; 624 children received toys and names of 32 children were submitted for attendance at the children's pre-Christmas party. Participating groups included Jaycettes, Elks, Seventh Day Adventists; Loyal Order of Moose, Klamath Temple, St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church, American Legion Auxiliary, Sons of Norway, Peace Memorial Presbyterian Church, Pacific Telephone operators, Carpenters' Auxiliary, Boy Scout Troop No. 8, Kingsley Field Air Force Base, Eagles Lodge. Klamath Lutheran Church, Women of the Moose, Klamath Union High School teachers and janitors, Dr. H. M. Amshberg, First Presbyterian Church, Free Methodist Church, Oregon Technical Institute, Plumbers' Auxiliary, Insurance Association, local woman's card club by Mrs. Walker, YMCA, Mr. and Mrs. Bud Stump, Salvation Army, KUHS Pep Peppers, anonymous contributor. A stronger, better coordinated program for the 1960 cheer season is planned.
