

President Of Broadcasters Testifies Before FCC's

WASHINGTON (AP)—The nation would be turning its back on democracy if the government should start decreeing what is good for the people to see on television, CBS President Frank Stanton said today.

Full-Scale Landing Test To Be Tried

WESTMORELAND Calif. (UPI)—Nearly complete "landing" tests of a full-scale, one-ton project Mercury space capsule were to be highlighted today with a drop from high altitude into the Salton Sea.

The National Aeronautics and Space Administration (NASA) declined to say how many of the high and low altitude drops of the vehicle capable of carrying a man into orbit had been made but revealed some 35 tests were on the schedule.

Today's drop was scheduled sometime after 1:30 p.m. All of the drops have been successful it was learned, with recovery of the Mercury capsule made each time on the 60-mile long sea that lies below sea level about 175 miles southeast of Los Angeles.

Objectives of the Mercury program are to put a manned spacecraft into orbit around the earth, to recover the capsule and its occupant and to investigate the capabilities of man in a new environment beyond the atmosphere.

A powerful rocket booster is planned to hurl the manned satellite or capsule into orbit for about 24 hours.

Arbitration, Fact Board Only Way To Halt Strike

CHICAGO (UPI)—Arbitration or appointment of a presidential fact-finding board appeared the only alternatives today to head off a possible nationwide strike of two large railroad unions.

Wage negotiations between major railroads and the unions, representing 97,000 workers, virtually all the nation's engineers and firemen, became deadlocked Thursday and no new sessions were scheduled.

Bad Weather Slows Work

DALLAS, Tex. (AP)—Nike missile bases being built at four sites around the Dallas-Fort Worth area are being slowed because of inclement weather, the commander of the defense ring said Thursday.

Lt. Col. Tom B. Strother told newsmen at a briefing that since construction began on the sites—at Denton, Alvarado, Terrell and Mineral Wells—in 1958 bad weather has delayed the completion date.

Strother, who said security restrictions prevent his saying when the bases will be finished, hinted they might be ready soon.

The bases will operate on a 24-hour basis to keep Ajax and Hercules missiles ready in case of enemy attack.

SON BORN
HOLLYWOOD (AP)—London-born actress Dana Wynter and her attorney husband, Gregson Bautzer, are parents of a son, born Thursday at a Hollywood hospital.

They have been married three years. This is their first child.

The power that tin has to harden copper was attributed to the devil by the ancients.

Stanton appeared at FCC's hearings on possible tighter controls over broadcasting after NBC Board Chairman Robert W. Sarnoff had told the commission that abuses in broadcasting, such as rigged quiz shows and payola, have been eradicated by industry action.

Like Stanton, Sarnoff urged that the industry be given continued opportunity to regulate itself.

Stanton pictured the industry as constantly striving to put a better product before the public. But he emphasized his belief that this is a matter which must be handled through contact between broadcasters and the public—not by government dictation.

Gals, Don't Be Depressed If Hubby Can't Understand

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—Lady, don't be depressed because your husband doesn't understand you. He can't, according to Dr. Wendell Johnson, prominent semantologist at the University of Iowa.

And you can't understand him. "The war between the sexes is intensified, moreover, by the complaints of men who feel that women should understand them better than they do, and vice versa," Johnson declared Thursday night.

Speaking before Temple University's 17th annual Reading Institute banquet, Johnson said "Peace—and even love—comes when it does with the realization by both of them that neither is going to be understood by the other except on different levels of abstraction, and so only in a limited sense."

"To put it in simple terms," Johnson explained later in an interview, "a man can't understand his wife completely because he can't have her feelings."

Further, Johnson added, a limitation of understanding due to built-in errors in our language causes prejudices.

Johnson, author of the book, "People in Quandaries," said, "If you tell me a teenager is delinquent and then a lawyer asks me what the boy does I wouldn't know. That is because you only told me how you classify him and not what it was you classified. The point is instead of talking about him you talked about yourself. This happens all the time."

"Rather than tell the how, what, when and where of the incident, people talk more about themselves and their judgment."

"Most people have an accustomed level of vagueness and find it hard and even painful to be descriptive."

Johnson said we should train ourselves to be aware of what we say. He added this can be accomplished by asking ourselves three questions—what do you mean, how do you know (evidence) and the eventual effects of what we say.

Insurgents, France Differ On How To Pacify Algeria

PARIS (AP)—Both the insurgents holding the barricades in Algiers and the government in Paris want the same thing—a pacified Algeria firmly French.

They differ on how to bring it about.

That accounts for the strange quirks and contradictions that seem to give a split personality to some of the actors on both sides of the uprising.

The insurgents feel the government's policy of self-determination will fail and ultimately result in independence for the predominantly Moslem land.

The government feels President Charles de Gaulle's moderate policy represents the only hope for ending the five-year-old Moslem rebellion and the best hope of preserving the French position in Algeria.

This was the gist of Delegate-General Paul Delouvrier's plea to the insurgents—you can't settle the Algerian question without the help of the Moslems, and the Moslems trust De Gaulle.

This common bond—the passionate desire for a French Algeria—which unites insurgents and government loyalists has resulted in such odd things as these:

Government officials refer to the insurgents as patriots.

Paratroopers watch idly as the insurgents reinforce the stronghold the troops may be asked to storm.

CONSTRUCTION DOWN

WASHINGTON (UPI)—The Commerce Department Thursday reported this month's new construction valued at $3,700,000,000 was 8 per cent less than last month.

Nickel is alloyed with aluminum to produce automotive and aircraft parts requiring strength in addition to light weight at elevated temperatures.
