Let's Make February Favors

by Jane McHenry

February is a month chock-full of occasions that call for a celebration. Are you going to give a party? It could be a Valentine one, of course, or a party to honor Washington or Lincoln. Here are some fun-to-make favors!

Fig. 1 is a special Valentine plate. Make one for each guest at an after-school party, and serve cookies, candy, and cakes. Paste a lace paper doily on a plain paper plate. Cut out, arrange at random on the doily, and paste in place two or three sizes of hearts—some red, some silver. Add a pink paper cupid, using Fig. 2 as a pattern, and make a tiny pretense envelope with a cancelled stamp in one corner to complete the decoration. These can be "take-home" favors, and if each one is different, they'll be amusing "conversation pieces" for your guests.

A place card for Lincoln's birthday is pictured in Fig. 3. Buy a chocolate candy bar that looks like a log. Make a cut in it large enough to hold the blade of a hatchet, which you can make from the pattern shown out of cardboard, and cover with silver foil. Place on a card and print your guest's name in front.
