

Singer Flings Ash Tray At Guest In Restaurant

BEVERLY HILLS, Calif. (UPI)—Negro singer Lena Horne took offense at remarks about her race Monday night in a restaurant and hurled a hurricane lamp, dishes and ashtrays at a man sitting at a nearby table.

"This is America, you cannot insult people like that," she shouted. Miss Horne as she stood up from her table at the Luau and let loose with the barrage.

One ashtray struck Harvey St. Vincent, identified as the vice president of an engineering firm, on the forehead and opened a small cut.

By the time police arrived at the scene, tempers had cooled and neither Miss Horne nor St. Vincent wanted to press charges. Only police action taken was the making out of a brief report of the incident.

"I lost control," Miss Horne told police.

Don J. Viray, 43, maitre'd of the Luau, said Miss Horne and her white husband, musical director Lennie Hayton, arrived at the restaurant shortly after midnight.

Miss Horne and her husband were seated at a table with another man right below them in the dining room, Viray said.

According to the police report, St. Vincent's companion, identified as Norman Wynne, said, "There's Lena Horne," and St. Vincent made a derogatory remark.

With that Miss Horne stood up and said:

"I can hear what you are saying. Please stop."

St. Vincent made another remark. Wynne walked away and Miss Horne began throwing things from her table, police said.

Viray said St. Vincent was hit above the left eye and bleeding, but took the incident "very gentlemanly" and moved to another table after declining medical aid.

An employee called police during the brief fracas.

Hayton asked that St. Vincent be thrown out of the restaurant after the incident but the management declined.

Quentin Con Gets Reprieve

SAN QUENTIN (UPI)—If convict-author Caryl Chessman is executed on schedule Friday, the kidnap-artist will go to the gas chamber alone.

Donald L. Cash, a Southern California murderer, was scheduled to die with Chessman in a double execution. However, he received a 30-day reprieve Monday from Gov. Edmund G. Brown.

The governor's action came within hours after the California Supreme Court and the U. S. Supreme Court rejected Cash's petitions for a stay of execution.

Brown said he issued the reprieve so the condemned man could receive further psychiatric examination.

GRANGE NEWS

Masters and officers of Klamath County granges learned at a county Pomona Grange meeting recently that degrees will be conferred in a number of granges soon.

Francis Flowers, Pomona master, said first and second degrees will be conferred March 9 by Poe Valley and Lost River granges at Lost River hall, third and fourth degrees March 31 by Shasta Valley and Midland granges at Midland hall, and the fifth degree by Pomona officers at Midland May 12.

Flowers asked for a fifth degree practice session March 31.

Pomona grangers also decided to continue their Grange Purchasing Association for a few more years at least. Leon Andrieu reported on the association's status at present.

Members acted on three resolutions. Mrs. Zetta Sullivan, Pomona home economics chairman, asked the grange to furnish coffee, rolls and butter for the regional grange conference at Midland March 3 from 1 to 5 p.m. and 7 to 10 p.m. The conference will feature a no-host potluck dinner during the break.

Mary Lou Crapo, Pomona youth chairman, announced organization of a drill team for grange youth in Klamath County. A d. a. Barleen will be drill captain.

Subordinate masters Ray Scottman, Alex Cammock, Bua Scott, Rex High, Ruth Hall, Cecil Brown, Douglas Tennant, Marjorie Newnham and Charley Henderson reported for their granges. All subordinate granges were represented except Bly.

Charley Henderson, county extension agent, spoke to the membership about agriculture in the county.

Lawrence Barleen, county grange deputy, urged them to get as large as possible a turnout for the regional conference.

Master Flowers encouraged all members to secure blood donors for the forthcoming tour of the Red Cross Bloodmobile. Each subordinate master received cards for distribution to members of his grange for that purpose.

Overseer Alex Cammock presented Malin Grange with a gift, donated by Big Y Market to the local grange which sponsors a Pomona meeting.

Following a noon luncheon served by the host grange, assisted by Merrill Grange, Pomona Lecturer Mayme Cammock presented her entertainment program.

Chaplain Lucille Gray recited an opening prayer. Jim Long of Malin played a song on the piano. All Pomona officers present performed a candlelight "New Year" service. Mrs. Gray sang "God's Little Candles."

Rex High delivered a reading, dedicated to a late Pomona member, Fred Peterson. Mrs. James McCullen of Malin sang a solo, "He," accompanied on the piano by Mrs. Gray. All members sang "Happy Birthday" to Lillian Thomas, Floyd Meeker and Mayme Cammock, "who were all 33 years old."

Kathryn Smith provided accompaniment.

The traveling prize was won by Marjorie Newnham. It was donated by Ruth Johnson.

The meeting was opened by all Pomona officers, with the exception of Bill and Mildred Novotny, who were ill, and Carl Yancey. Verda Urbach and Lawrence Barleen substituted as lady assistant steward and assistant steward, respectively.

Next Pomona meeting will be conducted at Fort Klamath Grange Hall May 14. It will be an all-day session beginning at 10 a.m. Upper Klamath Lake Grange will be co-sponsor.

Carole Weeps On Stand; To Testify Again Today

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—Carole Tregoff, on trial for the murder of her lover's wife, returns to the stand today to face another withering cross-examination that reduced her to tears Monday.

LOS ANGELES (UPI)—James Pappa, 26, Monday picked up his final divorce decree from Carole Tregoff while she testified in another court at her and Dr. R. Bernard Finch's murder trial.

"I don't want to see her get the death penalty, but it wouldn't bother me if she got a couple of years," said the construction worker. "She made a fool out of me."

Pappa stopped in at the Tregoff-Finch trial for the first time earlier in the day.

"Carole used me for a sucker and I'm not going to let her use me anymore," he said. "I would say one thing, if they do both get out of this and they get married—they deserve each other."

Carole was granted an interlocutory decree Jan. 19, 1959, on grounds of cruelty. She has testified at the trial that she was Finch's mistress before filing the divorce action.

stand for six days. His cross-examination by Crail's colleague, Fred Whichello, was so gentlemanly that Whichello has gone by the nickname, "Cream Puff."

Carole's breaking point came when Crail asked her about the scene in the garage when she and Finch asked Mrs. Finch if they could talk to her about a divorce.

"She said no or something like that," Carole replied.

"The next thing that happened, she had a gun and pointed at me."

Something was thrown at me and then I left," Carole said.

She began crying. Crail said he didn't want to continue under those circumstances. Carole straightened her shoulders and said she could go on.

Still to be covered by the prosecution were these points:

Carole contracting and paying $1,350 to convict John Patrick Cody in Las Vegas. She and Finch say it was to trail Mrs. Finch for divorce evidence. Cody says it was for murder. The big question is why Carole paid the full amount at the outset.

Crouching in the bushes for six hours outside the Finch home while police swarmed about it. If she was completely innocent, why did she not emerge?

The so-called "murder kit." Carole admitted Monday she carried the attaché kit to the scene. She also admitted she did not tell police about it at first because she "didn't think it was important."

Her testimony that Finch dug a shaving kit with bullets to her in the garage. That is the crux of the defense case — that Mrs. Finch had the gun and bullets in her car. Crail said Monday that any person would have fled the minute they saw Mrs. Finch with the gun. Carole said she waited until she got the kit.
