Congress Will Bump Heads With Ike On Major Issues

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Democratic Congress is getting ready to bump heads with President Eisenhower on four major issues with indications the outcome may be a political standoff.

Eisenhower seems likely to score an initial victory with his expected veto of a 900-million-dollar water pollution bill sent to him by Congress earlier in the week.

The President may get rid of the 4 1/2 per cent interest rate limit on long-term bonds if he is willing to do some compromising in a field where the Democrats are divided over the political potency of the issue.

But the odds are long that simply by inaction on his request for an increase in postal rates, the Democrats will punch a 600-million-dollar hole in the $4,200,000,000 Treasury surplus forecast for the fiscal year beginning July 1.

In the matter of foreign aid, which Senate Republican Leader Everett M. Dirksen of Illinois described as "close to the President's heart," Eisenhower appears likely to see his $4,175,000,000 program sliced materially.

Carefully avoiding committing Eisenhower to a veto, Dirksen said that if one is stamped on the water pollution bill he is confident Congress will sustain it. He said the measure carries built-in expenditures of 90 million dollars a year in direct government grants for 10 years.

This hardly adds up to a major addition to the $79,816,000,000 budget, but Eisenhower was represented as determined not to allow the break-through.

Democrats felt that if they can't override his expected rejection of the measure, they will have left on the Republicans' hands a political irritant difficult to erase. They think city and state officials will take their disappointment out on GOP candidates.

Dirksen reported that Secretary of the Treasury Robert B. Anderson told a White House conference Tuesday some progress was being made with House Ways and Means Committee members toward compromising the bond interest ceiling fight. Anderson contends the limitation has forced the Treasury into more costly and more inflationary short-term financing.

A group of Democratic senators who think the country is aroused against interest rate increases tried Tuesday to get Anderson to accept a series of conditions in return for action to lift the ceiling.

Defense Aides Have Power To Alert SAC

WASHINGTON (AP)—Top defense officials conceded in writing today they have full authority to order an immediate airborne alert of the Strategic Air Command.

They agreed with Sen. Leverett Saltonstall (R-Mass.) that this includes the right to spend from 600 million to a billion dollars, if necessary, which Congress voted for other defense purposes.

A written statement by Secretary of the Air Force Dudley C. Sharp—approved by both the Defense Department and the Bureau of the Budget—spelled this out for the Senate Appropriations subcommittee headed by Sen. Dennis Chavez (D-N.M.). It is now considering the new 41-billion-dollar defense money bill.

Radar Station To Be Set Up

WASHINGTON (AP)—A super-power radar station able to spot Soviet missiles thousands of miles away will be set up in England for U.S.-British defense, the State Department announced today.

The huge metal screen—bigger than a football field set on its side—is to be built at a 120-million-dollar cost at Fylingdales Moor, Yorkshire. This is midway up the east coast of Britain, between London and Edinburgh.

A controversy about the need for keeping SAC bombers aloft to avoid any surprise missile attack was kindled again this year by Gen. Thomas S. Power, SAC commander.

Ex-Felon Indicted

PORTLAND (AP)—The Multnomah County Grand Jury indicted Herbert Raymond Gerhold, 29, of Eureka, Calif., on six counts Tuesday.

Other awards presented were scout life guard to Paul Kanitz; lie scout to Stanley Lynam; Roger Rudesill, Larry Tatum; star scout to Kenny Ternus and Jim Skelton; second class to Tom Tatum; Bruce Young, Raymond Plitts, Larry Schumann, Jimmy Olkjer, Otto Olkjer, Ronald Rickett, Gary Manning and Everett Hunter. Merit badges went to Roger Rudesill, Stan Lynam, Mike Sabo, Larry Tatum, Paul Kanitz, Jim Skelton, Skipper Skelton, Jerry Potter, Kenny Ternus, Troy Wooten and Jerry Ternus.

Power said it would cost about 600 million dollars the first year and one billion annually thereafter to keep a large part of his bombers flying and loaded.

The new defense budget carries 185 million dollars to buy spare engines and parts and meet other preparatory costs for such an alert; 90 million is to be spent in the fiscal year that begins July 1.

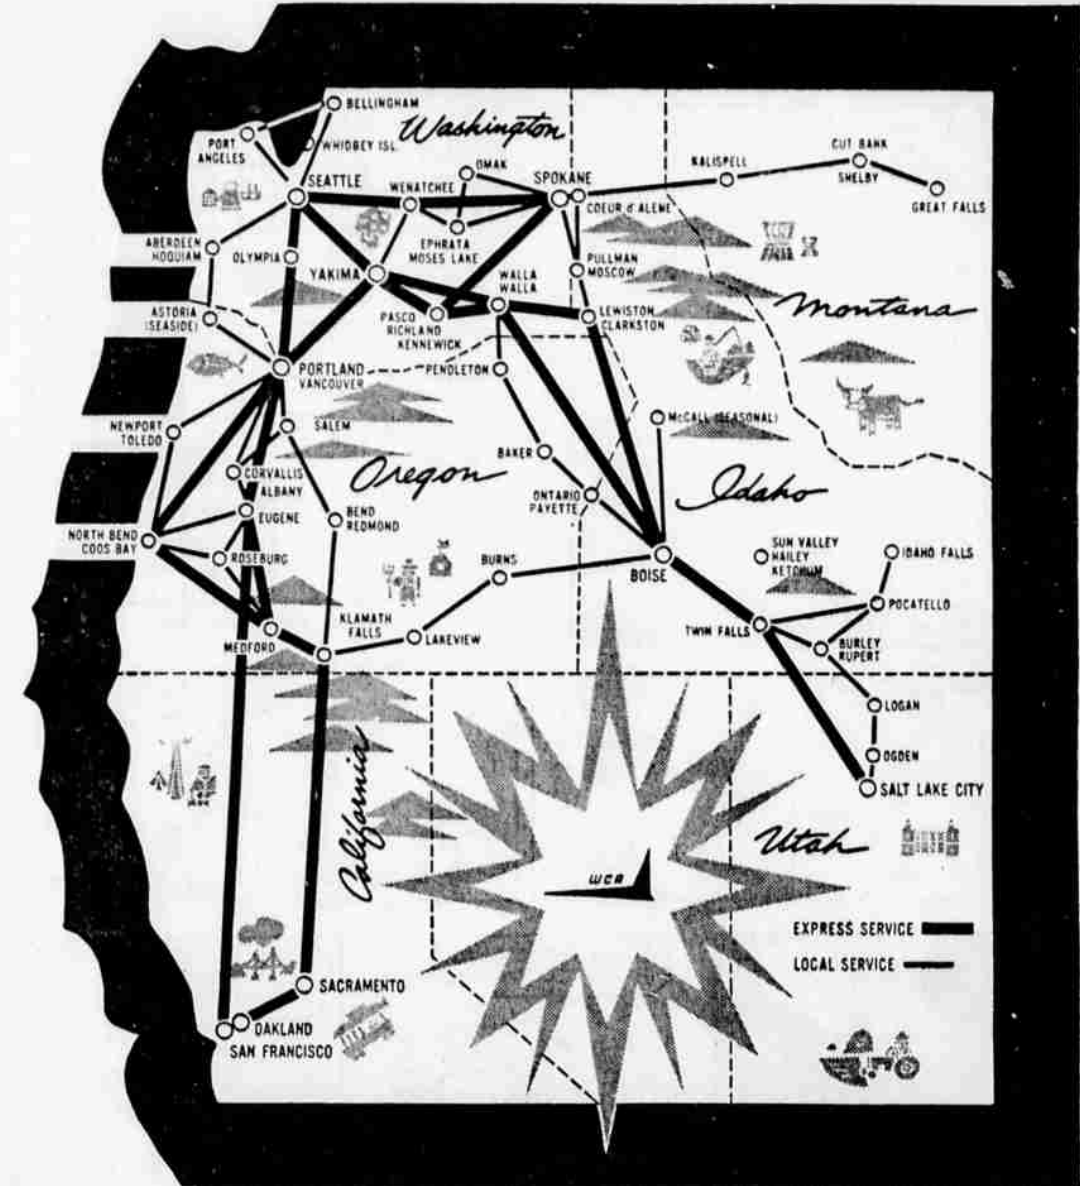

Saltonstall said Monday he believed the President already had ample authority to begin the air alert if he found it necessary. Saltonstall is a senior member of both the Appropriations and Armed Services committees.

Sharp and Gen. Thomas D. White, Air Force chief of staff, conceded this, but said Congress should spell out that authority clearly.

Sharp's written reply restated this today.

White said he backed Power's proposals to get ready for the alert but opposed immediate flying. He said: "This type of operation is very expensive, so if you start it before you have to, you are wasting money and material."
