

7 Per Cent Cutback Asked In Acreage Of Spud Crop

WASHINGTON (AP) — A 7 per cent cutback this year in the acreage of summer and fall crop potatoes was recommended by the Agriculture Department Friday to help stabilize grower prices.

In setting such a voluntary planting guide, the department took into account the fact that this year's acreage of spring crop potatoes is up 4 per cent from a year ago and the winter crop acreage was unchanged.

The department said its recommendations would put the 1960 total acreage at 1,341,050 acres, compared with 1,416,300 last year. This would produce, at recent acre yields, 207 million hundredweight of potatoes compared with 212 million hundredweight last year. The department said this would be adequate to satisfy all market requirements.

In announcing the planting guides, the department said it does not anticipate any government program to divert surplus potatoes from the 1960 crop into byproduct uses such as starch and livestock feed.

Any surplus removal assistance to producers in any state or area would be conditioned, it said, upon strict compliance with the acreage recommendations.

The summer acreage recommended for major producing states and the percentage change from last year, respectively, included: Washington, 23,050, down 4 per cent; Oregon, 16,600, down 10 per cent; and California, 19,000, unchanged.

The fall crop acreage recommended by major states and the percentage change from last year, respectively, included: Idaho 180,000, down 10; Washington, 18,500, down 8; Oregon, 25,450, down 6; and California 17,200, down 10.

KLAMATH COUNTY CHAMBER OF COMMERCE

The Klamath County Chamber of Commerce, developed the original idea for the folder—created the first rough layout. The finished product was the work of Agency Lithograph of Portland, who submitted the folder to the Oregon Advertising Club for consideration. Purchase of 150,000 of the striking folders was made possible through the cooperation of the wayside industries of the Klamath area, and for that, credit goes to chamber director, Charlie Schuss, and his Tourist and Convention Committee.

Jim Stilwell's Industrial Development Committee is sporting a brand new brochure extolling the Klamath area's unlimited water and timber resources, fine transportation facilities and unparalleled livability to any and all businesses and industries contemplating locating here. The brochure will be mailed out in answer to business or industrial inquiries and will become an important addition to the portfolio of the county's "traveling salesman." Oregon's top salesman, Gov. Mark Hatfield, will take a supply of the brochures along with him when he and some 30 of the state's business and industrial representatives make a prospecting swing through Chicago, New York, Boston and other Midwestern and Eastern industrial centers this spring.

The four classes in the chamber's Action Course in Practical Politics are nearing the end of their nine week session. While a complete account of the accomplishments of the course undoubtedly will appear in the news columns of this paper (Tom Stimmel and Virginia Fuller of the H & N are avid students in the Wednesday evening class), but two items which will bear fuller coverage later on (no pun intended) are well worth mentioning here. One class project uncovered what is said to be the only copy of the bill establishing Klamath County—passed by the Legislature on October 17, 1882. Another project resulted in the development of an up-to-date precinct map of the Klamath Falls area.

The interest engendered in political matters as a result of the course is, naturally, very gratifying, and was just what the U.S. Chamber hoped for when it made the course available a little over a year ago. As of January, 1960, the National Chamber reports that about 2,500 Action Courses for over 42,000 citizens have been held, are now underway or are definitely planned by business firms, chambers of commerce, trade and professional associations and other community organizations.

Obviously, no course of this kind is any better than the discussion leaders and participants make it. From the results achieved thus far there can be no doubt that the four leaders and 60-odd persons participating in the local action course are making it an outstanding example of what the course can accomplish toward reawakening interest in politics and government.

National FFA Week will be observed February 20-27.

The purpose of National Future Farmers of America Week is to focus attention on the work of the Future Farmers of today who will be the successful farmers of tomorrow.

The nation must have a constant supply of new farmers every year to replace those who die, retire or otherwise leave the farm. These must be men with experience and training, for the successful farmer today is both a scientist and a businessman, mechanic and a laborer, at the same time capable of leadership in the affairs of the community.

Vocational Agriculture and the FFA constitute one of the most effective programs yet developed for training boys to be good farmers and helping them to become established in the farming occupations of their choice. FFA chapters in this area include those at Tulelake, Malin, Lakeview, Yreka and Alturas. In view of the nation's need for new farmers, it is fitting that recognition be given to these young men who are preparing for careers in farming.
