

Protests Rise In Tennessee

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (UPI) — Downtown five and dime stores reopened today for what officials fear will be another week of demonstrations in protest of segregated eating facilities in the South.

"We'll keep coming back until they fill the jail," one Negro threatened after a wild, fist-swinging outburst here Saturday that led to the arrest of 76 Negroes and whites.

With trials of many of those arrested set for today, police kept an extra close watch for signs of a new demonstration. They had instructions against permitting crowds to form in the downtown area.

Tennessee Gov. Buford Ellington took notice of the protests, as did Alabama Gov. John Patterson.

Ellington called the Nashville demonstration "unfortunate" and hinted he would take action against the Tennessee Agricultural and Industrial University if there were further outbursts. Many of the demonstrators Saturday were identified as university students.

Similarly Gov. Patterson called for a meeting of the Alabama Board of Education Wednesday, presumably for the purpose of dealing with Negro students who took part in a demonstration Saturday. President H. C. Trenholm of Alabama State College was to report to Patterson today on an attempt by 35 students of the Negro institution to obtain lunch counter service at the Montgomery County courthouse cafeteria.

Fire Truck Burns — RICHLAND, Tex. (AP) — The Richland Volunteer Fire Department's truck bogged down in soft ground and burned along with a six-room frame home Saturday night.

The fire truck was used to haul water to fight fires because the city has no central water system. Firemen were unable to move the truck to safety after it became stuck at the rear of the Raymond Livingston home.

The date was changed to the 29th. His fiancée then thought it best to wait until they met each other's families. They argued Sunday night about a third date. Scientist Finds Allergy May Prove Cancer Enemy

NEW YORK (UPI) — A statistical study suggests that "atopic" allergy, which makes its victims miserable periodically in the well-known allergic ways, has the hidden virtue of protecting them from cancer.

Dr. Elmer W. Fisherman, allergy scientist of the University of Illinois, Chicago, undertook the study because of the growing body of evidence that there are natural body defenses against cancer.

Those who had somewhat similar sensitivities and allergic symptoms. Of the 1,185 only 38 were atopically allergic, or 3.2 per cent of the total.

The allergy histories of the 38 cancer patients atopically allergic. He discovered that 14 of the 38 had been but were no longer; their allergic symptoms had disappeared 10 or more years before their cancers developed.

Drink, Smoking Figures Noted

SACRAMENTO (UPI) — Californians bought enough cigarettes and alcoholic beverages last December to supply 13 packs and 20 gallons to every person in the state.

These may explain the difference between a cancer-prone and a cancer-resistant person and differences in the rate of tumor growth, invasiveness, curability, and, on very rare occasions, spontaneous disappearance of the malignancy," he said.

The accepted figure for the total population is about 10 per cent. But at the same time, Fisherman was making the same investigation in 298 hospital patients whose troubles had nothing to do with cancer. Of these 298, 12.9 per cent were subject to "atopic" allergy.

Two more had noticed that their allergic symptoms were diminishing at about the time they were developing symptoms of cancer. Of the remaining 22, only one was severely allergic.

The statistics came Sunday from the Board of Equalization. The board counted 194 million packs distributed along with 26,019,241 gallons of hard liquor; 225,132,719 gallons of beer and 30,472,197 gallons of wine.

"Atopic" allergy represents an excessive response of defensive body chemistry to foreign substances, (such as house dust or pollen) to which it is sensitive. Nonallergic people have a defensive chemistry which isn't sensitive to these substances.

Fisherman made some startling discoveries when he investigated

Fisherman reported his findings to the technical journal of the American Academy of Allergy.

Grandpa Is 25

SOMERVILLE, Mass. (AP) — For a man who has had but 25 birthdays, Roderick P. Lewis has quite a family.

For the purpose of his study, Fisherman assumed that the body chemistries of "atopic" allergy victims would react to any developing cancer cells as they'd react to other foreign substances — or "antigens." That is, they'd over-react and so, over-protect.

Whether this is so or not can't be demonstrated chemically; the science of biochemistry hasn't advanced far enough to do that. Hence, it is a theoretical idea, but one backed by a large number of related facts.
