Reynolds Voters Ballot On Issues

TROUTDALE (AP) — Voters of the Reynolds school district in this area will go to the polls Tuesday for a special election. On the ballot will be a three-part, $1,500,000 bond issue. An issue of that amount was turned down by a 30-vote margin last fall. So it is being resubmitted in three parts.

One would provide $1,400,000 for a new junior high school, a kindergarten-through-third grade unit and additions to Reynolds High School.

Another would provide $40,000 for high school field lights, fencing and a grandstand. A third would provide $50,000 for purchase of a new school site and improvements at grade school.

Dr. Paul A. Siple recorded an officially accepted temperature of minus 102.1 degrees at the South Pole on Sept. 17, 1957.

Controversy Over Manual Being Squeezed By USAF

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Air Force, buffeted between two groups of critics, is trying to calm the controversy into which a training manual has thrust it. First a major church organization protested sharply statements in the manual that Communists had infiltrated some of the nation's churches. The Air Force apologized, disavowed the statements, and withdrew the manual. That brought criticism from others who contended the statements were true, and who said the Air Force should have stuck by them. The upshot apparently is that the manual will be re-edited without using names of churches or churchmen. Rep. Francis E. Walter quoted Secretary of the Air Force Dudley C. Sharp as saying

World Famed Scientist Dies

CORVALLIS, Ore. (AP) — A world famed plant scientist, Dr. Ezra Jacob Kraus, 74, died Sunday in a Corvallis hospital. Funeral arrangements are pending. He helped develop 2-4-D as a weed spray, discovered the basic carbohydrate-nitrogen growth ratio principle in plants, did pioneer work on plant growth regulators and developed scores of new chrysothamnium varieties. In 1908 Dr. Kraus started as a plant physiologist at Oregon State College, but left in 1910 to join the University of Wisconsin staff. In 1931 he became chairman of the University of Chicago botany department. Dr. Kraus retired from the University of Chicago in 1949 and returned to Oregon State as visiting professor in horticulture. His research in the past 10 years has centered on developing new varieties of ornamental plants. He was president of the Botanical Society of America in 1933, the American Society of Horticultural Science in 1927 and the American Society of Plant Physiologists in 1928. He was honorary vice president of the American Forestry Assn. in 1947.

Talented Musicians Die In Crash High Over Bay

WASHINGTON (AP) — A sudden collision of planes in fog high over Rio de Janeiro's lovely bay has wiped out a select group of the most talented musicians in the world-famous Navy Band. The news that 19 Navy musicians were among the more than 60 persons killed in Thursday's tragedy shocked and saddened those they left behind at home. Many lived in southeast Washington or in Virginia and Maryland not far from the old Navy Yard, where the band had its headquarters in an old, unused sail loft. Many of the victims had been with the band for 20 years or more. They were selected for the Rio trip because of their double talents in both martial band music and intricate orchestral classics. Just before Musician I.C. Vincent P. Tramontana, 29, left on the South American tour, his wife Beatrice was called to New York where her mother had suffered a stroke. Then their four-year-old son had an asthmatic attack and had to have an emergency operation to place a breathing tube in his throat. Tramontana's mother has a heart condition. Relatives didn't know whether they should tell her of her son's death. Tramontana, of Hyattsville, Md., was a violinist and joined the Navy Band 10 years ago after studying at New York's Juilliard School of Music. Ann E. Armiger, 47, wife of Chief Musician Elmer E. Armiger, had to tell their 14-year-old daughter, Lana Mae, of the accident. When the girl came home from school she said "your daddy's missing." "No, he isn't," the daughter protested. "He can't be." Wives of several of the men said their husbands disliked flying. "But he didn't make an issue of it," said distraught Marjorie Albrecht, wife of Musician T.C. William F. Albrecht. Chief Musician Jerome Rosenthal had been planning to retire within a year. Between hitches in the Navy, he had been a violinist with the National Symphony Orchestra of Washington and the Baltimore Symphony Orchestra. His wife, Frances, and two teenage children live here. On the other extreme, Apprentice Musician A. J. Desiderio, 24, a violinist, had been with the band only three months. He was unmarried, had a bachelor's degree in music from the University of Pennsylvania and had studied four years at the Philadelphia Conservatory of Music. Lt. Johann J. Fultz had headed the unit that flew to Rio for a rendezvous with death. He had been assistant leader of the entire Navy Band since 1956 and had distinguished himself as soloist, conductor and composer in a Navy Band career that spanned 25 years. The Navy Band, an outgrowth of hundreds years of enthusiastic amateur performers on American warships, was organized in 1924. Now made up of 128 men, it has played in a thousand cities here and abroad. Many units in the band can play everything from chamber music to modern danceband style or boogie woogie. It was greatly respected as a versatile musical organization. The band traditionally takes part in Washington's parades and inaugural ceremonies. It has a library of more than 20,000 selections. Among its members are three doctors of music and 30 masters of music. Almost all its members are college graduates. At Buenos Aires, where the home ship Macon was anchored with the rest of the touring band, the news was received with grief and a sense of loss. A Macon officer said "the orchestra was the most talented non-professional orchestra I ever heard." He added that he didn't know whether the band would ever recover from the shock.

THE REPERTOIRE of the Little Gaelic Singers is as extensive as it is unusual. All their music is Irish and ranges in mood from the haunting "Eileen Aroon" to the infectious gaiety of the "Kerry Dance." Those who hear this well-trained young group during the 1960-1961 Community Concert Season will hear little-known gems as well as the old songs beloved by the public, "The Last Rose of Summer" and "Mother Machree." Their songs are sung both in English and in their own melodious tongue.
